Job Insurance Aim: $100 Weekly

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey Wednesday unveiled an unemployment insurance white paper seen in part as a counterweight to government planners interested in putting slack in the economy to cure inflation.

The white paper calls for vastly broadened and increased benefits for the unemployed at a time when the federal government is emphasizing economic restraint, a policy which runs the risk of creating unemployment.

Of government planners committed to the restraint idea, Mackasey said his white paper "will give them something to think about." His comment came in an interview after he tabled the 8,500-word document in the Commons chamber.

● New job insurance plan reflects work instability. Page 15

Under the new plan the government would have to absorb the entire extra charge on the unemployment insurance fund should the unemployment rate rise above a national, seasonally-adjusted average of 4 per cent of the work force.

For each .1 per cent escalation in the rate, the government would need to pay out an estimated $12,000,000—a sobering consideration, perhaps, for members of the government prepared to accept a relatively high rate of unemployment in the fight against inflation.

The white paper changes also would increase maximum insurance benefits to $100 a week from $53 and reduce eligibility requirments to a minimum of eight employment weeks in a year from 30. Coverage, meanwhile, would be extended to all but self-employed members of the work force, adding 1,180,000 contributors to the fund for a total of 8,500,000.

The new plan would be entirely self-financing at an unemployment rate of less than 4 per cent and the government's liability would be sharply reduced from the $175,000,000 it now contributes to the fund annually.

Where the reforms in effect now, however, they would mean that the 5.8-per-cent national rate of unemployment in April would cost the

Inflation Fought By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon delivered a stern lecture to business and labor Wednesday, urging them to curb price boosts and wage demands. To back it up, he created two commissions and a new "inflation alert" system to spotlight excessive increases.

"The fight against inflation is everybody's business," Nixon said in a United States-wide radio and television broadcast.

"If you act against the national interest, if you contribute to inflation in your price and wage demands, then you are acting against your own best interests and your customer's best interest."

Nixon's words were the strongest of his presidency and appeared to mark another step away from his earlier policy of not seeking to influence industry's prices or labor's wage settlements.

It was the first time he had gone so far as to set up an entirely new mechanism for helping control inflation, which is emerging as a crucial issue of the November congressional elections — in which the Republicans have hopes of capturing control of Congress.

The president's steps received a mixed reaction in congress, and drew praise from some Democrats.

His tone was optimistic. He said the U.S. is succeeding in its tasks of converting from a wartime to a peacetime

Vancouver Island's turn in the rotating mail strike came Wednesday — along with other communities across Western Canada — and strike leaders in Victoria and Vancouver were so pleased with the results they said they feel there may be no need for an overall national strike.

Union officials said mail service would return to normal today.

Jim McCall of Vancouver, strike director for the Council of Postal Unions in the coastal region, said:

"The rotation strike method (separate cities or sections of the country on a 24-hour basis) has been so effective there just may be no need for one nationwide strike."

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria local of the Canadian Union of Postal Employees, said the strike in

Sniper Fire Rips Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — Snipers, looters and firebombers stalked the city's northwest section Wednesday night in Miami's third straight night of racial violence.

City officials clamped a curfew on nearly half of the city Wednesday but police were unable to stop the sporadic, widely scattered incidents.

A sniper who had pinned down two patrolmen was shot and taken to Jacksonville Memorial Hospital. His condition was unknown.

A woman was shot in the arm as she watched a fire at a convenience store. It was not known who fired the shot.

Jacksonville Memorial Hospital said it had admitted 22 persons with injuries, seven of them with gunshot wounds. City and county police reported more than 60 arrests, mainly for curfew violations and looting.

Heavily-traveled U.S. 1, about six miles south of the main trouble area, was closed because of youths throwing missiles at passing motorists.

"Curfew areas are not completely evacuated," said a police spokesman. "There still are a few people milling around and a few small gangs here and there.

"There's been a few incidents of sniper fire here and there," he said. At least a half-dozen police units were pinned down by snipers during the night.

At the height of the disturbance early Wednesday, Miami City Manager Melvin Reese declared "a state of emergency" and ordered an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew over most of the northwest section of the city and in the Coconut Grove area southwest of downtown.

The limits of the curfew were reduced slightly during the day by Reese and supplemented by another curfew order from Wilson Purdy, county public safety director and sheriff.

The orders prohibited the sale or display of weapons, alcoholic drinks and the sale of inflammables such as gasoline except into the tank of motor vehicles.

U.K. Vote Changes From Shoo-In To Cliffhanger

LONDON (UPI)—British party leaders Wednesday threw everything into a final battle for votes amid growing Conservative confidence that warnings of impending economic crisis and devaluation may at last be striking home.

Britons vote today in a parliamentary general election to decide whether Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party or Edward Heath's Conservatives will govern for the next five years.

But party strategists could not explain why some gave him more than a 12 per cent lead and others only 2 per cent. The confusion was increased by a series of local polls that indicated the Conservatives may be catching up or even may have overtaken Labor's lead in some key voting districts.

Heath at his final campaign news conference acted more relaxed and confident than he has for days. His campaign manager, Anthony Barber, said his own reports from 50 key areas he has visited indicated the Conservatives still could win.

Home Secretary James Callaghan said, however, "I have every confidence Harold Wilson will continue to be prime minister of this country."

But British commentators said the economic crisis issue may well have turned an apparent shoo-in victory for Wilson into a cliffhanger.

London Bookies quoted latest betting odds of 1-10 on a Laborite victory and 4-1 against the Conservatives.

Kidnappers Covered By Clan-Type Hoods

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — West German Ambassador Ehrenfried von Holleben said Wednesday night he was abducted by persons wearing Ku Klux Klan-type hoods, and was chloroformed and stuffed into a wooden box while being driven to the kidnappers' hideaway.

Speaking at a news conference at his residence, the 61-year old career diplomat said, "I never saw my kidnappers because they were always masked.

"They looked like the masks of the Ku Klux Klan so you could not see anything."

The ambassador was kidnapped from his car last Thursday by a group of leftists as he was driving home from the embassy. The kidnappers shot and killed a federal police officer assigned to guard him and wounded another policeman.

Von Holleben was released Tuesday night after the Brazilian government freed 40 political prisoners and flew them to Algeria.

Asked if his kidnappers explained why they chose to abduct him, the ambassador said, "They informed me that they had chosen me because I was the ambassador of a country which did a lot in Brazil and therefore the Brazilian government would be entrusted not to harm the friendly relations between our two countries."

Meanwhile, a nationwide search was started Wednesday for the kidnappers. Airports, bus depots and rail stations were watched and roadblocks set up on access roads to both Rio and Sao Paulo.

Another upshot of the kidnapping was that it has thrown a major scare into an already-frightened diplomatic corps in Brazil. As one diplomat said Wednesday, "We're afraid it can be all repeated again at any moment."

Postal Powwow Still Deadlocked

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators reported no progress Wednesday as the federal treasury board and the Council of Postal Unions attempted to break their deadlock in contract negotiations.

The parties spent the morning discussing differences over statutory holidays, and were also reported to have probed other issues.

An unscheduled walkout in Montreal ended after a meeting was scheduled to settle issues of using temporary labor to clear backlogs and the lack of air conditioning in the city's main post office.

CALGARY (CP) — The provincial government has given approval in principle to a lottery to raise money for the performing arts in Calgary, businessman Harry E. Cohen said Wednesday.

The beneficiaries of the lottery would be the Calgary Philharmonic Society, Theatre Calgary and Five Corner Productions. Cohen said details on the size and draw date will be submitted to Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart.

Mercury Pollution Ruins Whale Meat

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — Thousands of cans of whale meat will have to be destroyed at the Northwest Territories community of Rankin Inlet because of mercury content nearly twice the level accepted by the federal government for human consumption.

The territorial government was told the cans must be destroyed because the meat contained .99 parts per million of mercury.

Acceptable level for the federal health department is between .05 and .5 parts per million.

Canadian Vessel to Probe Loss to West Coast Boats

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The fisheries department is preparing a companion for the Russian fishing fleet when it makes its annual appearance off the western shore of Vancouver Island this summer.

A fisheries research board vessel, the G. B. Reid, is being fitted out to fish alongside the Russians and obtain first-hand information on the size and content of the Soviet haul.

The object, officials say, is to secure information rather than to plan action against the Russians, who operate outside the 12-mile Canadian territorial limit now being enacted by Parliament.

As far as possible, equipment identical to that used by Soviet trawlers will be employed, though trawl nets from the G. B. Reid will be lowered over the side rather than over the stern.

There has been increasing concern on the West Coast

about operations of the Soviet fleet which moves into offshore fishing banks each year for several months.

With an estimated 8,000 inhabitants, the Soviet "floating community" is one of the largest on the West Coast.

Though the Russians have been thought to be primarily interested in ocean perch and halibut, British Columbia fishermen suspect they are also taking sizable quantities of free-swimming salmon, thereby possibly depleting stock available to inshore fishermen.

There also is an underlying anxiety that whatever the Russians are taking, the great size of their catch may be upsetting the natural balance among salmon, perch, halibut and other species such as herring.

Canadian authorities have no way of knowing the exact mix of fish the Russians are catching. In the past, when observation planes have flown over the Soviet fleet, tarpaulins have been drawn over the catch.

Public opinion on the coast can be gauged by the fact that 33,000 Vancouver Islanders signed a petition earlier this year calling for Canadian fisheries control to the limits of the continental shelf.

The petition was presented to Liberal MP David Anderson (Esquimalt—Saanich), who in turn presented it to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Trudeau visited the island's west coast with Anderson last weekend and talked to some of the people who fear their livelihood may be jeopardized by the activities of the Soviet fleet.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has rejected the suggestion that Canada should unilaterally appropriate the area of the continental shelf, which goes out 100 miles and more from land, for exclusive exploitation by Canadian fishermen.

However, he believes that the coastal state should have primary responsibility for management and conservation of fish resources out over the shelf. Canada may move at the next law-of-the-sea conference to have this concept accepted in international practice.

ANDY CAPP

Nixon Issues Inflation Warning

He noted that spending for weapons is dropping, and pledged to continue his previously-announced plan to withdraw all U.S. troops from Cambodia by June 30 and 150,000 men from Vietnam during the next year.

At the same time, Nixon stood by his earlier pledges that he will not impose prices and wage controls, and will not use such a standby authority even if Congress grants it.

Nor will he allow individual businessmen or labor leaders to be called on the federal carpet and forced into non-inflationary submission, he said.

The three new steps he is taking are:

● To set up a 23-member national commission of productivity, headed by a government official, to seek ways to improve industrial output per man-hour. This summer it will conduct a special president's conference on productivity, Nixon said.

Productivity, which has increased far less than usual over the last two years, is the key to raising wages without inflation, economists say, because it allows business to reap a correspondingly greater income without raising prices.

● To tell the Council of Economic Advisers to prepare a periodic "inflation alert" which will "spotlight the significant areas of wage and price increases and objectively analyze their impact on the price level."

The alerts will be sounded by the productivity commission, but one official said they will "not get into the business of labelling what is inflationary or not."

● To create a new regulations and purchasing review board to review government actions that might be inflationary.

"All government actions will be reviewed to determine where Federal purchasing and regulations drive up costs and prices," Nixon said.

Administration officials said the new productivity commission will consist of six representatives from labor, management and the general public — not yet named — plus Treasury Secretary David Kennedy; Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans; Labor Secretary James Hodgson; Paul McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; and George Shultz, former labor secretary and director-designate of the new Office of Management and Budget.

The review board, officials said, will be headed by Caspar Weinberger, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and deputy director-designate of Schultz's new agency.

In his speech, Nixon urged Congress to pass seven legislative proposals he favors, which would provide a stronger unemployment insurance system, widened manpower training and aid to the troubled housing industry.

He asked Congress for a $50,008,000 supplemental appropriation "to provide useful training and support to young people who are out of school for the summer months."

Nixon's new anti-inflationary program differs from the methods being used by Canada and Britain to keep wages and prices in line.

The programs vary in the degree of governmental intervention in the wage-price area.

In calling for establishment of a productivity commission, an inflation alert and a review board, Nixon said his government would refrain from dictating "specific prices and wages without the authority of law."

Canada established a Prices Incomes Commission to get labor and management to accept a policy of self-restraint in wages and prices.

John Young, the commission's chairman, has indicated, however, that the government will wield plenty of clout if self-restraint is absent.

government on an annual basis more than $250,000,000. Officials of the Unemployment Insurance Commission estimate that, apart from the cost of special benefits in regionally-depressed areas of the country, the new plan would cost the government treasury $12,000,000 for every increase of .1 per cent in the national average.

"It clearly establishes the government's responsibility for the financial support of a national unemployment insurance program over and above the self-financing aspect."

It stressed at the same time that the 4-per-cent benchmark "is in no way intended as a definition of full employment for the economy."

The white paper proposals, scheduled for implementation in a period beginning July 1, 1971, and Jan. 1, 1975, are described as practically a new life for the present insurance scheme which was enacted in 1940.

"Since the 1940s, the social, technological and economic fabric of our society has changed with the result that the act must be reoriented in a major way in order to meet present needs," the white paper says.

"If it is to reflect the shift in thinking from the welfare state to the service state, then a new reoriented program must provide an efficient pipeline to vocational counselling, job opportunities and other manpower programs in order to help the unemployed requalify for jobs under changing technological conditions."

In line with this approach, all members of the work force except the self-employed would be required to contribute to the scheme, eliminating the present cut-off

The paper says the move is justified both in terms of the increased need for protection of clerks and professional workers such as teachers and as a gesture of responsibility by "more fortunate, better-placed Canadians toward those who through lack of education and opportunity are in less secure occupations."

Also proposed is a program of counselling by commission officers which would weed out illegitimate claims on the fund and also provide links with other government services. This is an extension of present practice by the commission.

Reorganization of the plan would divide its operation into five phases and provide increased protection in the form of maternity leave and sick leave benefits for a 15-week period.

Claimants working for 20 weeks or more in the previous year would be entitled to all five phases of the benefits for up to 51 weeks if national or regional unemployment rates exceeded the 4-per-cent limit.

Those workers with eight to 19 weeks of employment would be entitled to three phases of benefits for 30 weeks.

The white paper states that progress from phase to phase would depend partly on the claimant's co-operativeness in taking advantage of suggested services. It adds that a refusal to do so would risk disqualification.

Commission officials say they hope legislation based on the white paper will be introduced in the Commons in the fall to enable payment of the increased benefits starting next summer. The payments would be 66 per cent of the average income over the previous 20 weeks of the claimant.

The new coverage rulings would also be effective at that time but the additional 1,160,000 workers would not be required to pay full premiums until Jan. 1, 1975.

Employees now paying a top rate of $1.40 on weekly incomes of $100 or more would instead pay a top of $1.19 on $150. Their employer's contribution would be seven-fifths of their own until Jan. 1, 1974, when a new merit rating scheme would take effect.

The merit rating, expressed as a layoff factor, would lower the charge for employers whose plant or plants, had a lower layoff pattern over a three-year period than the national average. Those with a higher-than-average rating would have to pay more.

The phased introduction of the new plan would take advantage of the current balance in the unemployment insurance fund, which stood at just under $500,000,000 in May. The fund now covers 80 per cent of the work force.

Under the new plan, administration costs of close to $50,000,000 would be absorbed by the fund and the government's 20-per-cent contribution would end.

In return, collection of premiums would be made through the department of national revenue rather than in direct payment to the commission — a move to reduce administration costs.

Even with a national unemployment rate of 4 per cent or less, however, the government would still be required to cover the costs of benefits to workers in any of 25 designated regions across the country where unemployment exceeded the national average level by more than 1 per cent.

Mail Back Today

his area had been "very successful" and had "gone like clockwork."

There has been widespread speculation that the two postal unions, with more than $1,500,000 now pledged by the Canadian Labor Congress, would be in a position to call a national strike and abandon the hit-and-run system.

But Darlington said: "I think even if we are bankrolled by the CLC, a million and a half dollars is not a lot when distributed to 27,000 strikers."

He said he thought the rotating strike had considerable effect.

The strike, which idled about 500 postal workers on Vancouver Island — 320 of them in Victoria — began at Nanaimo at mignight and in Victoria at 5:30 a.m.

Times were also juggled in other parts of the province as part of a strategy aimed at having the most impact possible in each area.

McCall said one example was the midnight start for Nanaimo, which meant that a load of mail for various points on the Island was stranded after late arrival by ferry.

The time of the strike start at White Rock cut off a major movement of mail into the U.S., he said.

Choice of communities — some of them tiny and seemingly unimportant — also fitted into the scheme of things, strike leaders said.

One such point was Cache Creek which employs only four postal workers. However, a shutdown in service there directly affects numerous other communities, union officials said.

The strike involved most parts of B.C. that hadn't already fallen victim in earlier shutdowns.

Excluded were some parts of the Vancouver area, the Okanagan Valley, the Kootenays, Prince Rupert, Terrace, Kitimat, Haney, and Mission.

McCall estimated that 1,200 to 1,500 postal workers were idle.

Victoria post office information officer Ken Stofer said there appeared to have been very little mailing in the city during the day.

Still Deadlocked

toba were also hit, as well as Downsview, Ont.

About 100 letter carriers at the Downsview post office went on strike Wednesday rather than work overtime with casual, non-union help.

Robert McGarry, district field supervisor of the letter Carriers Union of Canada, said his men would work only if casual employees are fired and all overtime given to regular carriers.

Windsor, Ont. postal workers are to return to work today with the main post office staff doubled to help clear a backlog of over 2,000,000 pieces of mail.

In an agreement hammered out Saturday between postal officials and union officials and approved by postal workers Tuesday, Windsor is to receive mail for the first time in 22 days except for a 15-hour lull in the strike June 8.

Under the agreement the

Spy Plane Crashes

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — An air force SR-71 spy plane collided with a tanker during in-flight refueling and crashed Wednesday, injuring two crewmen who parachuted to safety.

Major Mortimer Jarvis, 36, and Lt.-Col. Buddy Brown, 41, parachuted from the jet shortly after the accident and suffered minor injuries. The tanker was undamaged.

Anybody Can Be a Carrier

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Many women fear they have gonorrhea. How can you tell? I have had a discharge but thought it was natural. Does intercourse have to occur to get it? Is the male the carrier? If so, how can you tell? Can you be cured if you have waited for a long time to be treated?—Miss X.

Men and boys seldom need have any doubt about it when they have contracted gonorrhea. With girls and women, it is not as certain.

In general, the symptoms

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

are the same: a discharge from the genital organs, and a burning sensation during urination, but in about 80 per cent of females, the symptoms are not as severe as in males.

But the consequences can be as bad — sterility, infection of kidneys, bladder, bones, heart and elsewhere if the infection is not adequately treated.

There are, in women, other causes of the same symptoms: urinary tract infections and various common vaginal infections. But a woman knows whether she has had recent sexual activity, and if the signs follow a week or two later, she should have a physician or clinic test cultures grown from the vaginal secretions.

Our 1,500,000 cases a year — and the number is rising — are evidence that entirely too many of our "sophisticated" young people aren't being tested and treated. Instead, they are spreading the disease.

Are "males the carriers"? Anybody with the infection is a "carrier"! Perhaps females are the more dangerous, because their symptoms are not quite as obvious. Girls and women, therefore, should be even more suspicious of possible signs.

I have had some questions from people who have tried to treat themselves by taking penicillin. (One school girl said she did so because she was afraid her parents would find out if she went to a doctor.)

Self-treatment is NOT safe, sometimes not effective, either. Some states recently have passed laws permitting physicians to treat young patients without notification of or permission from parents — the disease has become so widespread as to show the need for this.

So I urge young people to inquire, immediately on any suspicion of the disease, whether they can be so treated. But if they can't — having parents find out is less to be dreaded than the consequences, to self and others, of not getting treatment.

Penicillin is not by any means the only medication used; if not used correctly it can "mask" other diseases, including syphilis, which can then break out long afterward.

There is no way to be certain whether a sex partner is infected. You MUST be suspicious!

And if you have neglected treatment, get it now. Better late than never. Better late than risking heart disease, sterility, infected kidneys. These are not bogies. These are real dangers.

Kennedy Backs Dissenters

Senator Edward Kennedy stands in front of monument to Bunker Hill battle and asks "Did not the men on this hill feel they had the right to question their government? Israeli Planes Lambast Egyptian Posts

By United Press International

Forty-eight Israeli warplanes struck Egyptian defences along the Suez Canal Wednesday killing 15 Egyptian soldiers and wounding seven, an Egyptian spokesman said. It was the highest one-day casualty toll announced by Cairo in three months.

Wednesday's action marked the 11th straight day of fighting along the waterway.

The Egyptian spokesman said Arab gunners hit one of the American-built Phantom or Skyhawk jet fighter-bombers when they attacked Egyptian positions on the canal's southern sector. He did not indicate, however, whether the plane was shot down or just damaged.

In Syria, a military spokesman also claimed that one Israeli plane had been hit during a commando raid into the country during the night.

Jordan was reported quiet during the day but two extremist guerrilla leaders warned more trouble was possible unless the army and government were purged of anti-guerrilla elements. An estimated 500 persons were killed or wounded in clashes between the Jordanian army and Palestinian guerrillas last week.

Making his first public appearance since the fighting, King Hussein told a news conference in Amman he was "not the kind of a man to quit" and had no intention of abdicating. He said attempts were underway to heal the divisions caused by last week's bloodshed.

Hussein said he would go to Cairo soon to meet Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser and might visit other Arab nations in an attempt to resolve the crisis which shook his throne.

In Cairo, Egyptian officials said they would welcome any new U.S. initiative for a peaceful settlement of the crisis.

Egypt said, however, it has not received word so far about such an initiative or any suggestion that Secretary of State William Rogers would come to Cairo for this purpose.

Hussein Won't Abdicate

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — King Hussein said Wednesday he had no plans to abdicate following last week's guerrilla-army turmoil in Jordan.

In his first public appearance since the battle between Palestinian guerrillas and the Jordanian Army, he told a news conference:

"I am not the kind of man to quit. I am part of this country and this country is part of me."

He said the crisis had "a foreign origin," adding that "our enemies played a big part in it."

Asked about the 1967 UN Security Council resolution for peace in the Middle East, Hussein said "to hell with the resolution . . . the one solution is every inch of territory taken from us in 1967 should be returned. This is the one solution for peace."

Hussein said the situation in Jordan was calm. He said the crisis which killed or wounded at least 50 persons by conservative estimate was "the most anxious time of my life, as the man who holds responsibility in this country . . .

"I felt we were moving through a minefield."

Logger Killed

WEST LAKE (CP) — Wallace Harvey Lacoursier 53, died Tuesday when a tree fell on him at the East Fraser Logging operation, 22 miles south of Prince George.

Reds' Blockade Choking Capital

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Cambodian army units rushed to the railroad town of Kraing Lovea Wednesday to try to punch a hole in a Communist rail and road blockade that has all but isolated the capital city of Phnom Penh.

They also cut the Highway 4 oil route to the port of Kompong Som again after it was briefly reopened by combined South Vietnamese and Cambodian forces, and attacked Kompong Chang, northwest of Phnom Penh, on the highway to Bangkok. The only remaining route was highway 1 to Saigon.

In Bangkok, Thai officials, growing concerned about the military situation in neighboring Cambodia, have firmly decided to send part of their 12,000-man Vietnam force to the aid of the Phnom Penh government.

"The situation in Cambodia is very serious now, and we can't wait any longer to help that country," Thai sources said.

Meantime U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said in Europe some western allies doubted all U.S. ground troops would be out of Cambodia by President Nixon's June 30 deadline, but "I have assured them the president's timetable will be met."

Thieu Predicts Less Shooting

VUNG TAU, Vietnam (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu predicted Tuesday the shooting war in South Vietnam would subside, starting in 1971, to become "No longer of great significance." He said this would be the case because of successful pacification and rural development programs.

Activities Banned By Turks

ISTANBUL (Reuters) — All assemblies and political activity were banned Wednesday in Istanbul and neighboring Kocaleli province under martial law proclaimed after rioting Tuesday between left-wing Turkish workers and police and troops.

The ban was one of a series of restrictions imposed by Gen. Kemnal Atalay, commander of the 1st Army, who was appointed military governor with full administrative powers for the month-long duration of martial law.

Three persons died and more than 280 were seriously injured during the rioting over proposed changes in trade union law, Instanbul radio said Wednesday. A police headquarters, a bank and union and political offices were among buildings seriously damaged.

Other restrictions included a curfew between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m. and a prohibition on the possession of arms except by police and night watchmen.

Brandt Underlines Inviolable Borders

BONN (UPI) — American failure to come to the aid of East Germans revolting against Communist rule 17 years ago proved the post-war borders in Europe are inviolable, Chancellor Willy Brandt told parliament Wednesday.

Brandt said he based his willingness to recognize the territorial integrity of all East European states as the basis for a new relationship with them was founded on the fact that the rest of the world rank the maintenance of peace higher than the desire for German unification.

The chancellor said he was following "a policy of reason."

Further proof of the inviolability of post-war borders in Europe was the failure of America and its allies to prevent the Communist construction of a wall through the heart of Berlin in 1961, the chancellor said.

Brandt was mayor of West Berlin at the time.

"The lines drawn at the end of the Second World War have hardened into what they are today, namely, as we have seen, borders that long ago became unassailable and inviolable," Brandt said.

For this reason, the government is prepared to sign non-aggression pacts with Moscow, Warsaw, East Berlin and Prague that together with the renunciation of force, in both directions, also respect the territorial integrity of the treaty partner and the inviolability of borders, also in both directions, Brandt said.

Contradictory Comments

NO ONE IS GOING TO FIND reassurance in the contention of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that Time Magazine's publication of details of a still secret report on non-medical use of narcotics in this country was "erroneous."

If he is implying that there was no leak of information on this document and expects the Canadian people to swallow such nonsense, he is insulting their intelligence.

Gullible on occasion they may be, but in this instance they are more likely to accept what a member of the Gerald LeDain commission has said of the report and recommendations for which it is responsible:

The Time Magazine disclosures were "substantially correct."

The LeDain report has been in the hands of the cabinet for two weeks and, according to Time, it recommends, among other things, very much less severe restraints not only for users of the so-called "soft" drugs but even for the people who peddle them. First offenders on a charge of possession, for instance, would get a suspended sentence, and a second offence would call for no more than a maximum $100 fine.

Time is a reputable and cautious magazine, and when it says in language directly quoted from what obviously must be an official document that the recommendation is for prosecution of traffickers in cannabis drugs under the Food and Drug Act instead of the harsher Narcotics Control Act we had better believe it. The Food and Drug Act, it says, would be amended so that a trafficker could be sentenced to a maximum — maximum, mark it — of 18 months in prison.

The prime minister may contend the report is erroneous, but in the meantime the federal cabinet is investigating the article's source. In other words, they are looking for the leak.

It will be interesting to compare the text of the LeDain report when it is tabled in the Commons with what Time has said in advance of its release.

Somebody is going to look very silly.

There Aren't Many Good Guys

WITHOUT FOR A MOMENT trying to excuse or condone savagery against civilians or captives by the United States armed forces and their allies — and there are documented instances in plenty, unfortunately — it is an extraordinary fact that such incidents are invariably reported with almost hysterical enthusiasm.

On the other hand, the atrocities committed by the communist side in the southeast Asian war rate the merest mention.

The explanation for this odd attitude is probably that shock and incredulity are involved in the first case. After all, these are "the good guys."

When the other side commits some dreadful inhumanity it comes as no surprise.

There is, too, the political factor. Prejudice.

When the massacre at My Lai was disclosed, there was furious protest in the United States and the punishment of those responsible was demanded. Courts martial were set up. Officers and other ranks were immediately arrested pending inquiry. And quite properly.

But the other day, when the communists massacred a hundred men, women and children in a village near Da Nang the story got just four paragraphs by the wire service which covered it.

It is estimated that in their war of terror the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have executed at least 50,000, mostly peasants in the countryside. Some estimates go as high as half a million.

Why is it, an American who was angrily condemning His own people for their brutality at My Lai was asked, that he and his countrymen were not equally appalled by the communist massacres?

"Well," he replied, "our boys are supposed to be civilized."

It is a sad fact that there are not very many "good guys" on either side in war, particularly in the combat zones. But the people, and not only the radicals of the left, who cry out against cruelty on one side are wrong to close their eyes to the brutalities of the other. That is not the way to salve one's conscience.

Illegal Beach Fires

DESPITE THE JOYS of incinerating marshmallows and wieners over beach fires, there are good reasons for the ban on them on the Victoria waterfront. As Fire Chief Eric Simmons says, fires "muck up" the beaches and spoil logs otherwise fit for scavenging. They also sometimes leave hot buried embers as traps for bare feet. But more important, when they spread and have to be extinguished by the fire department, they tie up men and equipment, possibly for long periods. Thus one beach fire this week took 17 man-hours to control.

Anyone who lights a beach fire in the city is liable to wind up in court, the fire chief says. It strikes us, however, that the fire-lighters would be much more likely to end up in court if someone were keeping a watch for fires at the outset. A patrol to spot smoke or flames and call the police could be more effective and less expensive than taking care of the results of ignored warnings.

Civil War Persistent Danger

King Hussein's Endless Crisis

By GAVIN YOUNG

CIVIL war in Jordan has been a simmering threat for the last three years. Now Jordanian soldiers, backed by armored cars and artillery, and stubble-chinned Palestinian guerrillas have swarmed through the streets, shooting it out with feelings of brotherhood thrown to the mountain winds. Bedouin troops mowed down Palestinians. The commandos shot back with rockets. Scores have died and nobody wins except those arrogant ideologists in Jordan — both Arab and non-Arab — who want to bring anarchy a step nearer on this frontier with Israel.

The extent of the showdown is wider than ever before. Troops in Irbid, the northern town which has taken months of Israeli shelling and air attack, and where civilians, including women and children have been killed, are reported—and this is significant — to have refused to move against Palestinian commando headquarters. Irbid, precisely because of its battering from the Israelis, is fiercely pro-Palestinian, anti-American, and infested with revolutionaries who make no secret of their hatred of King Hussein.

This dramatic sign that some Jordanian army units will not attack their Palestinian "brothers" at the behest of their commander-in-chief will certainly give pause to those top Jordanians who have all along been in favor of a major, once-and-for-all neutralization of the growing Palestinian commando strength throughout Jordan, and hang the consequences in terms of human life.

There is no knowing what might have happened if a reported commando attempt to kill Hussein in a roadside ambush had succeeded. Hussein is still the pivot around which even moderate stability in Jordan turns. With Hussein gone, anarchy would seem to be certain. The reason for this is also an answer to the key question now: why, if things looked like a real showdown mutually desired, did Hussein and Nasser and the commando leaders, notably Yasir Arafat, the leader of El Fatah, decide to work together for a cease-fire?

There is no doubt that both King Hussein and the commando leaders wanted a cease-fire. The trouble is that both sides have their irresponsible elements. They are not always easy to control. They can spark off violence and then leave it to Hussein or El Fatah to douse it — if they can.

Once a local shooting match has begun, other elements come in to exacerbate it. One predictable element is usually — as in this case — a broadcast from Radio Israel. Soon after the shooting began, Radio Israel announced that the king's uncle, Sharif Nasser, the army commander, had been killed. A later report from Amman said this was not true, but the initial news report landed like one more psychological mortar bomb in the streets of Amman.

The Palestinians have blamed the fighting on "plotters," trying to disrupt Jordan's solidarity in the face of the Israeli enemy. It might have been ignited by the kidnapping of an American diplomat from the American embassy in Amman on June 8. He was released unharmed, but this is obviously something that would have annoyed King Hussein, despite his own by now obvious disillusionment with the lack of support he has been getting from his American allies.

The kidnapping was probably the work of an extremist Palestinian group which believes in a policy of harassment against the American presence in the Middle East, wherever it may be and in whatever form. These extremists are a thorn in the flesh of the more "moderate" commandos like El Fatah. But when Jordanian soldiers or police move against the extremists, El Fatah is still obliged to regard that as an attack on all Palestinian organizations. When shooting starts, all Palestinians are bound to stand together. Hence, the danger that some small incident might start the slide to "nationwide massacre," that commando leaders have warned against.

But if it was not the irresponsibility of commando extremists that caused the recent killings, it could equally well have been irresponsibility from another quarter — as the Palestinian leaders are saying. There are elements in the Jordanian army — and King Hussein has angrily hinted as much in the recent past — who would like to wipe out the Palestinians, regarding them as "red revolutionaries," ignoring the fact that the major commando organizations are ideologically quite moderate.

One reason why the American embassy is so universally hated in Amman, why the American ambassador, Harrison Sims, was recently expelled and why the American diplomat was kidnapped, is that the embassy seems to agree with this line and has been urging it on Hussein for many months. The fact that this is the line that would suit the Israelis, too, also reinforces popular Jordanian, as well as Palestinian, ire against the Americans and those Jordanians said to sympathize with them, both in the armed forces, the police and even the palace. It is Hussein's strength that he has stood realistically outside this line of thought. He has no wish to launch into a national civil war. He differs with the Palestinian militants on the ways and means of ridding Jordan's West Bank of the occupying Israeli army — he prefers peaceful settlement, they prefer uncompromising war. But as long as the present "no peace" situation continues between Israelis and Arabs, he has the same desire for a political equilibrium in Jordan as has, for example, Yasir Arafat.

That is why, even after the deeply disturbing and tragically violent confrontation, the news that Hussein and the Palestinians are jointly trying to cool the situation is not surprising. But it is a situation that could recur at any time, if the hotheads and "plotters" continue to put their political interests above human life in a frustrated and divided Jordan.

I Beg to Differ

Dining on the Terrace

By FRANK LOWE
from Montreal

NOW that warmth has crept into the atmosphere, one danger that has to be faced is the danger of being dragooned into eating at a terrace, or outdoor - facing - the - sidewalk restaurant.

Many people think it is chic to take their meals during the summer evenings while seated on a terrace flanked tastefully by a sidewalk.

Frankly, I think it is more gritty than chic.

Mind you, I didn't always think this way. My first terrace-restaurant experience had me all up tight. This place was at the corner of a swank hotel in New York and I was assured it was THE place to be seen when dusk came to Gotham.

So I took my girl there. The eating area was separated from the sidewalk by an artificial hedge. But just as I was about to take a bite out of my steak, I looked across the hedge and found myself eye to eye with an urchin standing on the sidewalk.

He watched avidly as I took each bite. I swear he actually chewed in rhythm with me.

I have never had such an unpleasant experience in my life. Because how does one handle such a situation?

Does one hand the urchin the steak, and order another one for himself? Well, one doesn't if one is eating out on a reporter's salary.

Or does one take off after said urchin and threaten him with a steak knife? But there would always be the ugly possibility that the kid might be better armed — with a switch-blade, for instance.

The next time I was coerced into his fancy bit of eating my vittles at the side of the road was equally as disastrous. True, the terrace cafe was very charming with its red check table cloths and cute, mini-skirted waitresses.

But nobody had warned me that this particular outdoor restaurant was adjacent a bus stop. And each time a bus, after stopping to let on its passengers, started up great black waves of nauseous fumes were wafted across my table.

It was like dining on the leeward side of an oil refinery.

There is also the problem of heat. Terrace-type cafes blossom during the summer, naturally. And many of them, probably to keep the soot from falling too heavily on one's head, are covered with canvas tops.

Inside the hotel, sensible people are eating in air-conditioned comfort. Outside, we terrace lovers are sitting in the steamy heat collected under the canvas top and talking about the good old days on the road to El Alamein when at least, after the sun went down, a breeze would spring up.

Then there is the problem of service. No sane restaurant owner is going to build a separate kitchen for a terrace dining spot that will be used only a few months a year.

So the food and drink must come from the same kitchen that was built to serve the permanent restaurant, the one that is tucked sensibly well back inside the hotel.

So the meals one gets on a terrace are apt to be clammier, and the drinks warmer, than those acquired in the regular restaurant.

Then, of course, there is the matter of bugs. It is for this reason that while I like a good barbecue, I insist the meat, after it has been done, should be carried into the house and eaten there.

Why should I fight for my life with mosquitos and hornets and some ugly-looking flying things I can't even identify?

Mind you, there are exceptions. I have sat on terraces where the ocean thunders in at one's feet and the moon rides high in a cloudless sky while an evening breeze riffles comfortingly through one's lightweight jacket. That is just great.

But those terraces are seldom found in cities. In cities the only thunder one hears is the thunder of the traffic. The moon is a neon light. And if a breeze does come along it carries with it the smog of the day.

All of which, I know, re-emphasizes the point that when it comes to today's lifestyle I am an incurable square.

But I'll tell you one thing: I'm a comfortable square.

Formidable White Paper Opposition

Winnipeg Free Press

IN the Canadian economic structure Ontario and Quebec hold the lion's share of the nation's current assets. In the political structure they control the votes that make or break any federal government. For better or worse, the great Laurentian complex of industry, population and wealth is, and will long remain, Canada's heartland. Thus, when the governments of the two largest provinces agree on any basic policy their views cannot be overridden by the strongest federal government without grave effects on that national unity which is the core of Prime Minister Trudeau's whole approach to politics.

Now, for the first time in many years, a Conservative government in Ontario and a new Liberal government in Quebec have come together in opposition to the federal government's proposed tax reforms. Their agreement, disregarding party lines, must drastically alter these policies, unless Mr. Trudeau is prepared to quarrel with a majority of the nation and his own political base in French Canada. No longer is the revolt against the white paper confined to the smaller western provinces or the financial community. It has found formidable leaders in Premiers John Robarts and Robert Bourassa, the most powerful Canadian politicans outside Ottawa.

Ontario's objections to the white paper have long been known and are fully explained in Mr. Robarts' latest brief. The provincial teasurer, Charles MacNaughton, even attacks the federal government's estimate of increased revenue from a capital gains tax as about a hundred per cent inaccurate. Until Mr. Bourassa was elected, however, Quebec's attitude on taxes, and most other problems, remained ambiguous under a Union Nationale government too fractured and sick to think clearly about anything. Today Quebec has a government capable of governing and a vigorous young premier determined to repair a mismanaged and impoverished estate.

Mr. Robarts, who has always rejected the cheap local votes of an anti-French attitude, was one of the first national figures to see the meaning of Mr. Bourassa's election as Quebec's decisive vote for Canada. Disregarding party labels, the Ontario premier immediately offered his support and goodwill to a neighboring Liberal government. If this gesture had been a gesture only, without any common view on policy, it would have meant little in practical politics. But at the recent federal-provincial conference in Winnipeg the joint opposition of Ontario and Quebec not to some details but to the fundamentals of the federal tax program emerged with vivid clarity.

Mr. Bourassa, like Mr. Robarts, quarrels with the white paper because it would discourage the economic growth on which all Quebec's hope of a better life is based. He favors the federal objective of equity (who does not?) but "only if economic growth is assured," he says, "will it be possible to reach that objective successfully."

As a serious barrier to growth he specifically condemns the white paper for proposing to tax capital gains, at income tax rates and to tax them, at five-year intervals, even if they are not actually received. Instead, he would tax only half of any capital gain, regardless of source, only when it is received, and would increase from 20 to 25 per cent the present tax exemption of dividends paid by Canadian corporations. Mr. Bourassa also believes that concessions to small business, as eliminated in the white paper, should be retained and that, in some form, mining companies should continue to receive tax incentives.

These recommendations, and others yet to be studied, do not come from a right-wing government like that of the Union Nationale but from a Liberal premier and trained economist who regards himself as a social reformer in the avant garde of politics. When Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Robarts are agreed on basic principles — above all, the need to promote economic growth instead of throttling it by excessive taxes — Mr. Trudeau confronts a new political situation unforseen by the draftsmen of the white paper and their advocate, Edgar Benson.

To be sure, Mr. Trudeau can reject the views of the two big provinces if he is willing to take the political consequences. But those consequences would not be confined to a loss of seats in the next federal election. They would be far more serious in damaging the nation's unity which Mr. Trudeau rightly considers his primary mission in government. And if he fails to carry Ontario, Quebec and the other provinces with him, at least in the fundamentals of a tax policy, the entire basis of the white paper must collapse. For then the provinces, breaking the so-called "symmetry" of the tax limits proposed by the federal government, will turn the nation into a tax jungle and vastly widen its regional disparities.

In the light of such prospects Mr. Benson's reforms can be seen as a reliable, foolproof method of damaging not merely the Trudeau government but the nation itself. The prime minister, almost silent on tax policy so far, should be wise enough to grasp and avoid these dangers.

A Vision of Horror

The Ottawa Journal

THE home of the future may have conveniences beyond imagining and still be a goldfish-bowl horror.

Cameras that photograph the interior of dark rooms with infra-red film.

The wiring of a person's clothing to let an investigator hear everything he says to anyone else — or mutters to himself.

A phone could become a microphone, even when it is in its cradle.

"The open society has become the bugged society," said the minister.

He'll do what he can to ensure that "the right to sanctuary remains sacrosanct." That will be no easy job.

Communications Minister Kierans speaks of "wired cities" with more than 115 services carried to homes by cables and wires, including "remote secretarial assistance, cashless-society transactions, computer-assisted education, legal and medical advice, electronic shopping and an encyclopedic information system."

The wires of convenience will be a menace to privacy and a threat to individual security. Perhaps a threat to happiness too. With every home equipped to handle all the business a man may wish to do, educate the children and let the housewife shop, our homes could become factories. To get out of the house and have a rest will be what man will save up to do in his old age.

The Battle of Waterloo was fought 155 years ago today — in 1815 — and Napoleon's attempt to regain power was decisively defeated. After escape from Elba, Napoleon marched north through France for 100 days, gathering men and arms. The Duke of Wellington, with a mixed allied army, met him on the Brussels road, knowing the Prussian army was approaching. The fighting lasted all day until the whole allied line advanced at dusk and the French disintegrated. French casualties were 40,000 of 72,000 men.

Indo-China Fate in Balance As U.S. Pullout Date Nears

"I've a question, General. What time on Tuesday, June 30, are we due to pull out of Cambodia?

By DAVID MASON, from Vientiane, Laos

The fate of Cambodia is in doubt. The impact of Cambodia on the situation in South Vietnam is yet to be measured. Related developments in Laos are causing increased concern among those seeking to restrict Communist actions in Southeast Asia.

This, in short, is the outlook across Indochina three months after Prince Sihanouk fell from power and six weeks after American and South Vietnamese forces went into Cambodia.

The long-run impact is still far from clear. Many in a position to know feel southern allied forces scored a short-range tactical advantage by robbing communist-led troops of mountains of arms and ammunition. Yet there is a feeling that the assault into the area of Cambodian sanctuaries may have brought the communist command to a new strategy aimed at crushing the government of Gen. Lon Nol, which replaced Sihanouk.

There are few accented signs of crisis in Phnom Penh, Vientiane, Bangkok or Saigon. All eyes are fixed on June 30 when American ground forces will be out of Cambodia.

In Cambodia Communist command forces squeezed out of the sanctuary areas have been harrassing towns and cities in scattered areas of the country.

Cambodian government officials say the Cambodian army, now said to be about triple its former number of 35,000 can netraline the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, with continued arms aid and some finance help from the United States. But few foreign officials or observers reflect thisoptimism.

One Western diplomat with long experience in Cambodia said: "Phnom Penh would fall in a few days ... if the Communists decided to take it. A few shots would panic the Cambodians."

There have been signs that Hanoi is trying to shore up its supply lines and continuing to erect a "People's Liberation" structure possibly leading to Sihanouk's return.

But on Wednesday some diplomatic and intelligence sources in Phnom Penh seemed convinced that Hanoi strategy now is a major assault of Phnom Penh and possibly involving Saigon or U.S. aircraft in bombings that would tend to reinforce Cambodians' distrust of the South Vietnamese.

In Laos North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao forces recently captured two remote cities in the southern panhandle — Attopeu and Saravan.

These places are roughly on the western edge of the Ho Chi Minh trail complex leading into northern Cambodia and South Vietnam. With at least temporary denial of the Cambodian sanctuaries, Hanoi may have decided to shore up the trail complex.

Another theory here is that the moves against the two cities were more politically motivated. The largely dormant Lantian right has shown signs of discontent and is pressing the nominally neutral government of Prince Souvanna Phouma to react.

Such talk naturally brings rumors of a planned rightist coup. If this should occur, some reasoning runs, the North Vietnamese would feel less restraint in more overt military action in Laos.

But no one is predicting inevitable disaster for Laos. It has accommodated itself to a lengthy list of previous crises.

Long-ruptured relations between Bangkok and Phnom Penh are being resumed, and officials in Bangkok speak of military assistance to the Lon Nol regime in threatened areas beyond the Thai border. But it is generally considered that any effective military help is still several weeks or months away.

The operations in the Cambodian sanctuaries have netted huge quantities of arms, ammunition and other supplies, which officials say will set back for six months or so any plans for major offensive in South Vietnam.

But one source in Phnom Penh, who has close Hanoi contacts, estimates that the communist command was able to save at least half of its weapons and arms in the border areas.

Sources say the Communist-led forces began moving their caches westward as early as the second week in March, when demonstrations broke out in Cambodia against the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

The Communists seemed to be aware of how events would evolve, right up to the South Vietnamese and American intervention.

Goal of Program in Tanzania

Chinese Gamble Aid On Africa Race War

By STANLEY MEISLER
From Dar-es-Salaam ★ Tanzania

The Chinese are gambling that a future race war in Africa will make them the main foreign influence here. That seems to be the goal of their heavy economic and military assistance program in Tanzania.

Since the beginning of the year, the Chinese have become the most important foreign force in Tanzanian military organizations. They train both the army and the black guerrillas trying to wrest control of southern Africa from its white supremacist governments.

It's not hard to imagine what could happen. If the guerrillas, who now control a tenth of neighboring Mozambique, ever succeeded in pushing deeper into the Portuguese territory, the Portuguese out of desperation might decide to bomb the guerrilla sanctuaries in Tanzania.

This would intensify the war. The guerrillas and Tanzanians then would demand more arms. The United States would hardly come forward but China, the chief supplier now, surely would.

That would make the guerrillas even stronger, the Portuguese more desperate and the Chinese more influential.

A spiral would begin, much as happened in the Middle East with Russian assistance to Egypt. Years ago, outsiders were talking about the independence of President Nasser much as they talk about the independence of President Julius Nyerere now.

All this, of course, depends on the guerrillas increasing their strength until their incursions into southern Africa take on the character of a war. The guerrillas hardly look formidable now but the Chinese clearly and patiently believe in the inevitability of a coming race war.

Nyerere recognizes the danger. But he is committed to the overthrow of white-ruled governments of Africa and to the strengthening of his defences against any future Portuguese counter-attack.

Only China is willing to help. Nyerere is confident he can accept this help and still control events.

It is believed that perhaps 200 Chinese military advisers are assigned to the Tanzanian peoples defence forces and to the guerrilla training camps.

The Chinese began building a Tanzanian naval base in Dar es Salaam last month and promised the Tanzanians six more patrol boats.

There are reports that China also has offered to build an air force base for the Tanzanians. If so, an agreement might include a delivery of Chinese jets.

In economic assistance, the railway overshadows all other Chinese have started to build Chinese have started to build the 1,000-mile railroad from Dar es Salaam on the Indian Ocean coast through the highlands and escarpment of southern Tanzania to the Zambian copper belt.

A hugh work camp has been set up outside Dar es Salaam and tons of equipment are unloaded at the docks weekly. Several hundred Chinese are working on the job now and there should be more than a thousand soon.

The project has political significance, for it is aimed at freeing Zambia from its dependence on southern Africa. At present, Zambia is forced to export most of its profitable copper through railroads in Rhodesia and Portuguese Angola.

Startling New Drug

Anti-Sex Pill Tested

By DENNIS EISENBERG, from London

Research workers in the United States and several European countries, including Britain, are in the advanced stages of testing a startling new drug — the anti-sex pill. If successful, the results could be as universally beneficial as the birth control pill, and just as profitable to pharmaceutical companies.

It fits into a new group of drugs called anti-androgens, and its application has already had such widespread effects as helping sex criminals to lead normal lives. The drug may also cure acne and baldness and can combat cancer of the prostate gland in men.

U.S. hospitals are experimenting to see what other effects the drug may have on humans, and tests are also underway to find out if cattle reared on the drug will produce better quality meat.

Anti-androgens are a new type of synthetic sex hormone. They are part of the steroid family to which also belongs synthetic hormones used in the birth control pill. The anti-androgens suppress the effects of male hormones, and so widespread are the possible uses of these drugs that pharmaceutical companies are pouring millions of dollars into research projects concerning their use.

The most spectacular use of the new wonder drug, developed by Dr. Friedmund Neumann, who heads a hormone research department of the German Schering company, is to cut down excessive sexuality in men. A number of compounds have been tried, but so far the best results have been obtained with Schering's SH714 or Cyproterone Acetate.

The very first case tried with the new drug was on a 35-year-old schoolmaster who suffered from such a powerful obsession for his young girl pupils that he tried to commit suicide. He could not concentrate on his work or hope to live a normal life. Yet after taking the drug he wept with relief at finding that his problem had disappeared.

In Britain and Germany, experiments are being carried out on men such as sex criminals and murderers, as well as homosexuals who have uncontrollable or misdirected sex drives. In almost all the cases involving much humiliation and suffering for the men and their families — for not all were criminals — the patients are now able to lead normal social lives.

It appears, however, that the patients must keep up their daily dose of the drug. And there do appear to be bad side-effects, such as an increase in weight, changes in personality and the growth of hair on bald heads.

In fact, some of the treated patients have found their baldness has been partially reversed. British scientists say, however, "we must be cautious about making claims for growing hair. Baldness involves hereditary factors and genes. We have still got a long way to go."

Kaiser Shares Fall Heavily

Nixon Talk Too Mild To Suit Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — The market closed off after see-sawing downward, following President Nixon's noontime economic address.

The market had been up almost six points earlier in the day after Tuesday's 18-point rally.

Analysts reaction to the President's speech was generally neutral. Previously they had attributed Tuesday's rally to investor hope the President would offer encouragement about curbing inflation.

Many observers felt the measures Nixon proposed were a little mild.

One analyst said there is a big short position in the market now which makes the market's technical position strong.

Steels, motors and rails were off. Aircrafts, utilities, metals, oils and airlines were up. Mail order-retail and rubber issues were unchanged. Electronics and chemicals were mixed.

Most-active issue was Telex off ⅛ at 15⅝, Natomas off 1 at 28½, Penn Central up ⅜ at 11⅜, International Telephone and Telegraph up ⅝ at 36¼, Pittston Co. up ⅜ at 32¼, VSI Corp. off 3⅝ at 18½ and Memorex, off 1 at 83¼.

Brenda Eases Off

VANCOUVER — Kaiser dropped 1⅛ points to 14 for the days' largest decline. Elsewhere prices were fairly well maintained among industrials.

Brenda shed ¼ of its recent big gains in the mining list, while Western Mines expected shortly to redeem its remaining debentures, was up .15 at 4.15.

Silver Standard was off .11 at 1.33 and Gibraltar was off .10 at 4.40. Valley Copper at 9.40 was up .10.

Stampede was active and down .10 at 1.40 in the oils section.

Gains Whittled

TORONTO (CP) — The market moved downward in afternoon trading, erasing most morning gains.

The market was up sharply during the first two hours of trading, continuing a technical rally which had begun Tuesday.

Prices began to fall during the third hour of trading when Wall Street's strength faltered.

The New York market headed downward after President Richard Nixon's address on the United States economy which he said was the strongest in the world. But he cautioned that it still faces difficult problems.

Largest gains at Toronto were in construction and materials, food processing, oil refining and real estate sectors.

Falconbridge rose 1⅛ to 135 and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ⅝ to 23⅝ while Kaiser Resources fell 1⅛ to 14⅛.

Imperial Oil Active

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices firmed in quiet trading although they drifted down slightly from mid-day highs.

Rothmans, which did not trade, said it will acquire all the issued and outstanding shares of Alfred Dunhill of London Ltd., the Canadian distributor for the international Dunhill organization. Price of the purchase, from W. Lloyd Wood Co. Ltd., was not disclosed.

Canada Cement gained 1 to 34, CPR ⅝ to 57⅞, Velcro Industries ⅜ to 21 and Weston ⅝ to 21. Seagrams dipped 1¼ to 65⅝.

Imperial Oil, the most active issue, gained ⅝ to 16⅝ on volume of about 13,500 shares. Falconbridge rose 1⅛ to 135 and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ⅝ to 23⅝, while Kaiser Resources fell 1⅛ to 14⅛.

Airline Buys Hotel Chain

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward E. Carlson, chairman of Western International Hotels Co., announced Wednesday that an agreement has been made to merge with UAL, Inc., parent corporation of United Air Lines.

Under the agreement signed with G. E. Keck, president of UAL, 1.3 shares of preferred stock would be issued by UAL in a new series for each share of Western's common stock outstanding.

The new preferred stock would have an annual dividend rate of 40 cents a share and becomes convertible after July 30, 1973, into the Common stock of UAL on a share for share basis. Western owns or operates hotels in the United States, Canada and 12 other countries. The hotel system will retain its name and staff.

The hotel firm will submit the proposal to stockholders for approval at a meeting set for July 23. UAL's stockholders will meet to vote on the merger July 30.

Western International Hotels owns the Imperial Inn in Victoria and the Bayshore and the Georgia Hotels in Vancouver.

Superport, Then Superdrop

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The flags and the bunting over the Roberts Bank superport were hardly down; the fanfares of the great opening were still echoing through the world's press and the visiting political giants were little more than settled at their work desks, when Kaiser Resources announced to its shareholders things weren't going so well with its giant B.C. coal enterprise.

At Sparwood, site of the mine in the Kootenays, Jack Carlson, president, told shareholders the company's earnings this year would be 50 per cent less than anticipated.

One main reason was that Kaiser had underestimated its costs by about 15 per cent. The overspending, estimated at about $100,000,000, would make it difficult for Kaiser to achieve the results it had estimated the prospectus it attached to the sale of its shares to the Canadian public only last summer.

Carlson added that because much of the machinery was a brand new concept, many starting-up bugs had appeared, and although the $85,000,000 plant at Sparwood was in production it was not working to the full requirements of the company's contractual sales.

In the first quarter there had been a loss of $486,000, and the present shipments—about 75 per cent of those planned—would continue to have a severe impact on 1970 earnings.

Carlson, however, expected full production to be achieved later this year, and he held out some hope that costs might be cut to meet some of the adverse effects of the increased capital spending.

Meantime, the new coastal range of coal mountains esthetically polluting the mouth of the Fraser River and the Gulf of Georgia, is in deeper mourning than ever.

Even the stock markets put the Kaiser flags at half-mast—down to $14, or $8 below their high of the year.

IOS IN DOGHOUSE

Shares of IOS Ltd. have been suspended on three exchanges and the Ontario Securities Commission has placed a ban on all trading in the stock either on the exchange or over-the-counter for 15 days.

The Toronto and Montreal Stock exchanges took the lead and were followed by London, which followed suit because Toronto is the primary listed market for the stock.

In the Ontario legislature, Financial and Consumers Affairs Minister Bert Lawrence indicated charges could follow but declined to elaborate.

The delisting by Toronto Stock Exchange was on the grounds that the financial report and the auditors' statement of the IOS Ltd. 1969 accounts did not give all the information required by the exchange.

Sir Eric Wyndham White, the recently-elected chairman of IOS, said it was hoped the information required by the Toronto Stock Exchange would be available shortly.

He said the company was seeking permission to disclose supplementary information that had been withheld to comply with banking laws in various countries.

IOS is an international mutual fund holding company that last year made a public offering of its shares in Canada and elsewhere at $10.80 a share. The last official quotation on the shares was $2.50 on Tuesday.

The company has run into trouble through overspending and making loans to allow members to purchase company stock.

Its founder, Bernard Cornfeld, was sacked as chairman when it was announced the company had fallen into financial difficulties.

ASBESTOS TO BORROW

Asbestos Corp. the world's largest producer of asbestos, is planning to raise $20,000,000 through the sale next month at par of 20-year debentures that will pay 9¾ per cent and will mature July 15, 1990.

It is the only debt of the company and will be the senior security in which the interest is covered six times by earnings.

Asbestos Corp's main operations are at Thetford, Que.

MARGINAL BUYING?

Collateral borrowings by member firms and member corporations of the Montreal and Canadian Stock exchange had grown to $51,083,647 at May 31. This was up from $40,413,100 at the end of April but still lower than the $53,155,323 on May 31, 1969.

U.S. Increases Oil Imports From Canada

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States increased Wednesday its crude oil import quota by 100,000 barrels a day, retroactive to March 1.

The increase, announced by President Nixon, applies to all areas east of the Rocky Mountains and includes 63,000 barrels a day in additional imports from Canada announced earlier.

The announcement opened now new import avenues for Canadian crude oil and simply covered retroactively the quota figure of 385,000 barrels a day set in President Nixon's controversial March announcement.

In Wednesday's proclamation, the source of the balance of the 100,000 barrels daily, after Canada's 63,000 barrels, was left vague. It would come from other global sources, but the way was left open for a small amount of additional Canadian oil to meet "hardship cases" in the U.S.-Canada border areas where congressmen have been complaining that the reduction in cheaper Canadian oil is a source of concern.

This additional inflow, however, would not be large.

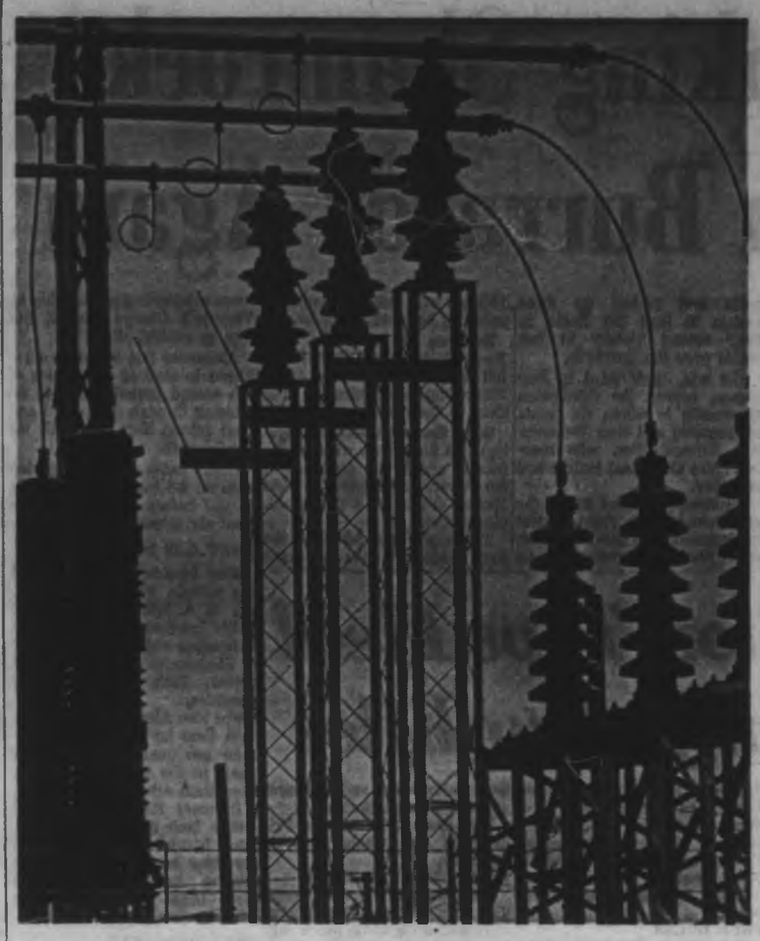

Gen. George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, said some of the remaining 37,000 daily barrels would be distributed among exporting countries, including Venezuela. Historically, about 40 per cent of crude imports to the U.S. come from Venezuela.

Rye Trade Shot Down

CHICAGO (AP) — Trading in rye futures, a major commodity for more than a century, will be discontinued on the Board of Trade next month.

Directors of the big grain exchange said the decision to take rye off the floor resulted from declining importance of rye as a major crop, and a resultant lack of futures trading volume.

Rye is used principally as a feed grain for livestock. It also is used in the production of rye bread and rye whisky. Some is exported and the remainder is used for seed.

Calgary Firm Abandons Propane Pipeline Project

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Hydrocarbons Ltd. of Calgary has abandoned plans to ship 7,100,000 barrels of propane from Alberta to British Columbia by pipeline.

The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board announced Wednesday that a 20-year removal permit granted in September, 1965, has been cancelled because there seems little likelihood that Canadian Hydrocarbons can meet the terms.

The propane was to have come from the Harmattan area gas processing plant northwest of Calgary and transported through a pipeline to be constructed by Hydrocarbons Pipeline Ltd.

But the National Energy Board refused permission to construct a products pipeline from southwest Alberta to the Pacific coast and Canadian Hydrocarbons failed in several attempts to reactive the project by increasing its export markets or getting others interested in the project.

J. G. Spratt, president of Hydrocarbons Pipelines, told the board that Canadian Hydrocarbons has considerably expanded its export markets for propane but transportation has been by tank car and truck. He said Canadian Hydrocarbons can see no possibility of developing the pipeline project in the immediate future.

Weather Holds Up Seeding

OTTAWA (CP) — Cool, wet weather continus to delay seeding of grain crops in the Prairie provinces, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

By May 31 only 63 per cent of the five major grains had been seeded. This compares with 91 per cent a year ago and a five-year average of 88 per cent.

The report, eighth in a special series on seeding progress, said the percentage of wheat sown in the three provinces was 70 per cent compared to 97 per cent a year earlier.

About 56 per cent of the oats and 64 per cent of barley acreage had been seeded compared with 84 per cent and 82 per cent, respectively.

Extradition Pending In B.C. Case

NEW YORK (CP) — The extradition hearing of George S. Groves, 32, who faces an arrest warrant in Vancouver, was put over until July 1 in federal court Tuesday.

Groves, formerly of Armonk, N.Y., was earlier sought by the FBI at the request of the RCMP in connection with an investigation into an alleged securities theft in 1965 from Sunshine Comstock Mines Ltd., and Maralgo Mines Ltd., both in British Columbia.

He surrendered June 2 in New York.

Car Industry

Assistance Extended

OTTAWA (UPI) — The federal government's automotive manufacturing assistance regulations, a program which has lent $75,000,000 to Canadian manufacturers in the automotive industry since 1965, will be extended one year, to June 30, 1971.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin announced the extension Wednesday.

The assistance program was established in 1965, to offset any disadvantages to Canadian makers of parts, commercial vehicles, and buses which might result from the Canada-U.S. car trade pact.

Manufacturers of passenger vehicles and their wholly-owned or controlled subsidiaries are not eligible for assistance loans.

Pepin reported that since 1965, 26 loans, totalling some $75,000,000, have been granted under the program.

Streaking Shamrocks Down Burrards Again

By KEVAN HULL

Ken Alexander broke out of his slump Wednesday to lead Victoria Shamrocks to a 15-11 victory over Vancouver Burrards in a tempestuous Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena.

The burly forward, who tied Nirmal Dillon for the club lead last season with 31, scored four goals and picked up three assists to lead the Rocks to their second victory in two nights over the Burrards.

The win, their third in four games, moved the third-place Shamrocks to within six points of Burrards and New Westminster Salmonbellies, who meet last place Coquitlam tonight and Saturday.

Wednesday's game was a far cry from te fast, clean contest in Vancouver the previous night, when Shamrocks romped to an 18-0 win with only 22 minutes in penalties between the clubs.

Referees Jim Follis and Barry Ballance had their hands full at Memorial Arena, assessing a total of 85 minutes, 43 of them to Shamrocks.

Both the public-address system and time clock went on the fritz to add to the confusion of the players and referees in what started out to be a fast-paced, clean game.

The score was 3-3 after the first period, thanks to some more outstanding goalkeeping by Victoria's George Grover, but was no contest after that.

Alexancer put Shmrocks ahead to stay at 47 seconds of the second period, made it 5-3 midway through the period and then set up Tom Churchill for the 6-3 goal.

Rocks came out of the period with an 8-5 lead and boosted it to 15-7 before easing up in the final six minutes.

THEY GOT MAD

Play became more chippy as the margin widened, culminating in a butting and kicking battle between Brian Ansley of Vancouver and Frank Alexander of Shamrocks late in the third period. Both received match penalties.

For Ken Alexander it was the first time he had scored more than one goal since his three goals in the 15-14 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs, May 23.

Brothers Ranjit and Nirmal Dillon both got five points to leave Nirmal one point ahead of his older brother in the league scoring race. Ranjit scored three times and Nirmal, who has 49 points, twice.

PENALTIES HELP

Churchill also scored twice for Shamrocks, who got six of their goals on power play and four of them while shorthanded.

Champion Tops Field Schwantje Qualifies

PITT MEADOWS — Defending-champion Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver's Marine Drive, won medal honors in the B.C. men's amateur golf championship Wednesday, shooting a 70 in the last round to finish the 72-hole qualifying test with 288.

Roxburgh soared to a 76 in the first of Wednesday's two rounds and was within one stroke of being caught by Carl Schwantje, a youngster from the Victoria Golf Club.

STROKE AWAY

Schwantje started the final day with a 73 to pick up three strokes on the leader but the long-hitting Victorian finished with a 72 which left him in third place at 291.

A stroke ahead of Schwantje was Neil Crofton of Vancouver, who moved past Schwantje with a last-round 70.

Six of the eight who qualified for the match play which will decide the provincial honors were Vancouver golfers, the only "outsiders" being Schwantje and Gary Clinton of Seattle, who meet today in one of the quarter-final matches.

Veteran John Russell finished fourth with a 294 after Wednesday rounds of 73 and 74. Then Cake Mike Buckley, Bert Ticehurst and Clinton at 295. Larry Haddock and Mark Daniel of Vancouver finished in an eighth-place tie at 296 and had to play off for the eighth qualifying berth.

FOUR HOLES

It took four holes. They halved the first two in pars and the third with bogeys before Haddock won with a par three on the fourth hole.

Victory put Haddock in against Russell in the quarter-finals. Other matches today are betweenRoxburgh and Ticehurst and Crofton and Buckley.

DAVE CAME CLOSE

Jack Frank of Campbell River and Ron Howard of Victoria, other Vancouver Island golfers who made the 36-hole cut, finished at 304 and 305, respectively. Frank finished 76-78 and Howard 74-78.

NHL to Choose Oakland Owner

MONTREAL (CP) — Two bids for the financially-troubled Oakland Seals National Hockey League franchise will be heard by the league governors at a special meeting in New York June 29.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said Wednesday the league now is in a position to choose who should operate the franchise.

DATE CHANGED

Previous reports had indicated the meeting would be held in Montreal June 26-27.

Jerry Seltzer, the Roller Derby king, and two unnamed partners have offered $4,500,000 for the Seals, while Charles O. Finley, owner of Oakland Athletics of baseball's American League, has offered $4,100,000.

Finley's offer was found "commercially reasonable" Tuesday by Judge Robert H. Schnacke of San Francisco Superior Court.

The Seals were sold a year ago by San Francisco Seals Ltd., to Trans-National Communications Inc. of New York for $3,400,000.

TNC Inc. defaulted on payments and Judge Schnacke ruled the Seals be returned to the club's original owner, Barry Van Gerbig, for resale to Finley.

IT WORKED

But Trans-National claimed Finley's bid was too low, filed a bankruptcy petition and obtained a restraining order in a United States federal court to prevent any sale until Seltzer was considered.

Cardinals May Be Ailing But Not When Bob Pitches

St. Louis Cardinals, National League champions in 1967 and 1968, are having troubles for a second straight year but there is nothing wrong with Bob Gibson.

The fireballing righthander flirted with the first no-hitter of his brilliant career Wednesday before settling for a one-hit, 8-0 win over San Diego Padres.

Before that, the 34-year-old veteran was virtually untouchable. He had struck out 10 and had faced the minimum number of 23 hitters, Nate Colbert being wiped out by a double play after a fifth-inning base on balls which at the time was all that stood between Gibson and a perfect game.

Gibson, now 8-3 for the season and winner of six in a row, wound up with 13 strikeouts. It was his second one-hitter, the first coming against Philadelphia in 1965.

CUBS GAIN

Chicago Cubs gained a game in the Eastern Division, clobbering San Francisco Giants, 6-1, while Cincinnati Reds bounced back to end New York Mets' win streak at four games.

Paul Popovich and Ernie Banks both hit two-run homers and Ken Holtzman turned in a strong pitching job for the Cubs.

Trailing, 2-4, after seven innings, the Reds tied it in the eighth on a two-run homer by Lee May and won it when pinch-hitter Hal McRae hit a bases-loaded single in the ninth.

PURSUERS WIN

Atlanta's second-place Braves and the third-place Los Angeles Dodgers were also Western Division winners.

The Braves scored three runs in the seventh inning and one in the eighth to slip by Montreal Expos, 6-5. Claude Osteen got out of two early jams and carried on to pitch the Dodgers to a 4-0 win over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dock Ellis, who pitched a no-hitter last week, didn't yield a hit until the fourth inning. The Dodgers got to him for a run then and scored twice more in the seventh.

ORIOLES LOSE AGAIN

Baltimore Orioles continued their skid in the American League, taking a 5-1 trimming from Milwaukee Brewers.

It could have cut Orioles' Eastern Division lead to a single game but New York Yankees ran into trouble with a rookie pitcher and had their win streak snapped at six games by losing, 3-6, to Chicago White Sox.

Jerry Janeski, who lasted until the eighth inning to gain credit for his sixth victory, drove in three runs with a bases-loaded single and a squeeze bunt.

Detroit Tigers, who will have ace-righthander Denny McLain off the suspended list on July 1, continued to sneak up by outscoring Oakland Athletics, 9-7.

The Tigers made it despite six errors and 10 Oakland hits off four pitchers who combined for a total of four throwing errors.

Light-hitting Ken Szotkiewicz, connecting with two mates on base, and Jim Northrup hit home runs for the Tigers. Northrup's four-baser came in the seventh inning and ended a scoreless skein at 27 consecutive innings for Oakland reliever Mudcat Grant.

Curved Bluelines To Get Trial Run

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP) — The curved blueline will make its debut on a trial basis in exhibition games in the International Hockey League next season, president Bill Beagan announced Wednesday.

Beagan said the lines will be curved back so that the wingers would be a stride ahead of the centre going into the opposing area.

"I've worked the lines in the National Hockey League and I've seen thousands of offsides by a foot or less," he said. This should speed up play by cutting down on the offsides."

Another innovation next season is the making of face-masks mandatory for all goalies. The IHL made helmets compulsory for other players last season.

The Brice brothers have combined to stop Transport Workers from making a runaway of the Senior Amateur Baseball League.

Transports, who had their seven-game winning streak broken by Les Brice of Greaves Movers Tuesday, dropped their second game in two nights as George Brice scattered seven hits effectively to lead Gorge Hotel to a 5-1 victory at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday.

Gorge scored four runs in the second inning, hitting three singles and getting three base on balls.

Quarry Upsets Foster

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Quarry moved himself back into the middle of the heavyweight picture Wednesday night by stopping previously unbeaten Mac Foster on a technical knockout in 2:00 of the sixth round at Madison Square Garden.

Foster weighed 210, Quarry 196 pounds.

Foster, an ex-Marine from Fresno, Calif., who had won all of his 24 previous fights by knockouts, was dropped through the ropes on the ring apron by a right hand punch after a wild barrage by Quarry. The referee stopped the bout after the count had reached three.

'Bloody Fool' Winner Over 'Communist Pig'

LONDON (AP) — Tennis stars Frew McMillan of South Africa and Alexander Metreveli of Russia swapped insults and a woman umpire walked off the court during a match at the London grass court championships Wednesday.

McMillan won the stormy match 9-7, 6-4. The trouble started over a disputed line call at 6-6 in the first set.

As the two men changed ends for the next game, Metreveli shouted across the net: "Bloody fool."

McMillan was heard to say: "Communist pig."

Later McMillan walked over to the umpire, Mrs. Dorothy Cavis-Brown, pointed to a group of Russians who were talking behind the umpire's chair, and said, "Will you please clear these people out?"

The umpire on an adjoining court, where American stars Marty Riessen and Stan Smith were playing, looked over and shouted, "Will you please all behave?'

The argument went on and a linesman said to Mrs. Cavis-Brown: "Would you like me to take over?"

Mrs. Cavis-Brown, one of Britain's veteran tennis umpires, nodded, climbed down from her seat and walked off.

Denford Electric handed Bate Construction its second loss in the last three games by beating the Victoria Major Men's Softball League leaders, 2-1, Wednesday night at Central Park.

Bates have managed only five runs in their last four games but good pitching enabled them to break even with 1-0 and 2-1 victories. However, the two defeats have narrowed their lead over second-place Molsons to one game.

Rick Rawnsley held Bates to four hits and scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth inning. With the score tied, 1-1, Rawnsley reached base on a fielder's choice, stole second base and scored on Pete Isaacson's double.

Mix Up a Bit of Hackett, Chaplin and Hope And You Get a Funny Fellow Who's No Joke

By MILTON RICHMAN

Everybody knows Lee Trevino is the nearest thing in the hemisphere to Bob Hope. He's funny. Naturally funny.

Everything about him is funny including the name by which those in his gallery go by, Lee's Fleas.

Lee Trevino's jokes usually are home-made. Fresh, never stale. His general build reminds you a lot more of Buddy Hackett than Rock Hudson and when you hear some of the situations he has been in during his lifetime he is reminiscent of nobody so much as the perpetually muddled, mixed up Charlie Chaplin who was so familiar to all movie-goers. But the one thing you have to give Lee Trevino, that amusing happy-go-lucky son of poor Mexican parents, he sure knows his way around a golf course.

That's not all he knows either. He also knows there's a time to be serious and when Lee Trevino gets serious and starts talking about a number of things, say even something like what the U.S. Open means to him, he has a way of making the other golfers sound as if they're talking with potatoes in their mouth. When Lee Trevino gets serious he suddenly becomes inordinately articulate and then he isn't so funny anymore, Ha, Ha.

"I think," he says, "the United States Open is the greatest tournament in the world. It's called the U.S. Open because everybody who carries a golf bag and wants to qualify regardless of what his background is, or where he comes from or if he's got a (PGA) card or hasn't got a card, he has a right to play in this thing. And if he's good enough to win, then he's good enough to win."

Without saying so, Lee Trevino is saying look at me!

The most noticeable aspect about Trevino since he came to Rochester, N.Y., two years ago with only one shirt, the same one he had on his back, and won the U.S. Open is that he hasn't changed a speck since then.

"The only change I've noticed is that people recognize me more," he says. "I'm having the time of my life. I've never been the type person who watches what he says and I don't think I'll ever be. Wait-a-minute-now. Yeah, I have changed a little. Before I won the U.S. Open all I ever drank was beer. Now I drink scotch. Sometimes. I still drink a lotta beer though. I haven't really changed. I don't think I ever will."

Whips Ease Hurt For All-Out Fan

His money was returned Tuesday with an invitation to become a weekend celebrity in Winnipeg, new home of the International League team.

Christopher J. Parker of suburban West Seneca will make the trip as the guest of the Winnipeg Whips management. He has been invited to participate in a parade through the city's main streets, take sight-seeing trips and attend three Whips' games.

Italy in Spectacular Win To Earn Chance at Brazil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Italy defeated West Germany, 4-3, Wednesday night in a nerve-tingling match in which Gianni Rivera got the winning goal in extra time to send the Italians into the final of the World Cup soccer championships Sunday against Brazil.

In the other semi-final, Brazil defeated Uruguay 3-1 at Guadalajara.

Both Brazil and Italy have won the Jules Rimet trophy twice—Brazil in 1958 and 1962 and Italy in 1934 and 1938.

No matter who wins, therefore, it means the end of the present trophy. The rules state that any team winning the championship three times has the right to take the cup home for keeps.

Mexico, as host country, has offered to provide a new trophy. The International Football Federation (FIFA) will debate the issue Tuesday.

The scene is set for one of the most enthralling finals in the 40-year history of the championship—a European-Latin American affair between two superbly fit and talented teams.

The final will be played at Aztec Stadium.

Brazil's victory over Uruguay, after trailing 1-0, was completely overshadowed by the epic staged by Italy and West Germany before a crowd of 90,000 at the Aztec Stadium here.

About 80,000,000 people in more than 50 countries watched on television a contest that undoubtedly will go down as the most exciting match ever seen in the championships.

Italy led 1-0 with only seconds of the match to go. Then Karl-Heinz Schnellinger scored for the West Germans.

The stadium erupted in wild cheering and the match went into 30-minute extra time.

It looked as though the Germans would go on to win when Gerhard Mueller scored in the 95th minute.

Now it was 2-1 for Germany and the noise from the fans seemed to thunder all over Mexico City.

Five minutes later Tarsisio Burgnick scored for Italy tying it up again.

There were fears that this great match would end in a tie.

If that had happened the team to advance would have been decided by the drawing of lots.

But Rivera came storming through in the 111th minute to settle the issue.

When the two hours of drama were over, players of both teams fell to the ground—at the end of their strength.

Then the Germans congratulated the Italians.

It was the 14th international match between the two countries. The Italians now have won nine games, the Germans two and three ended in a draw.

In Guadalajara, Uruguay took the lead in the 15th minute on a goal by Luis Cubilla. Clodoaldo evened it for Brazil in first-half extra time allowed due to stoppages of play due to injuries.

Goals by Jair in the 75th minute and Rivellino in the 89th wrapped up the match for the Brazilians.

The ninth world soccer championships goes into the final without a single player being sent off by a referee. That in itself makes history.

With West Germany's 3-2 victory over defending champion England in the quarter-finals, Wednesday's dramatic clash between Italy and West Germany, Mexico's feat in reaching the quarter-finals for the first time in its history, plus a dozen other incidents, the championships will be remembered as one of the best since it all started in 1930 in Uruguay.

Mexican Hostility Bothers Ex-Champs

LONDON (AP) — England's defeated World Cup soccer champions arrived home to a rousing reception Wednesday and said they couldn't understand why they weren't liked in Mexico.

As 850 fans waved banners and cheered, Bobby Charlton told reporters the hostility of the Mexico public had had an affect on the players.

"I couldn't understand it," he said. "We were not a dirty side — but I think the Mexicans wanted a change in the world champions."

On manager Sir Alf Ramsey's uneasy relations with the Mexican press, Charlton said: "I don't see why he should have co-operated with them more than he did. One thing you can say is that Alf is not two-faced."

Ramsey strode off the plane into a brush with reporters. He refused to talk and waved aside a microphone snapping: "Turn that thing off."

Ramsey said: "I have had a very long journey and I am very tired."

Both Medallists Among Last Four

Co-medallists Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale and Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows have reached the semi-finals of the City and District Ladies Golf Championship along with Margaret Todd and Dalma Mann of the host Victoria club.

Mrs. Naysmith, Miss Shaw and Mrs. Todd continued their impressive play Tuesday with comfortable victories for the second straight round.

LONE SURPRISE

Unheralded Mrs. Mann needed to go to the last hole to defeat Lil Thirlwell of Uplands, a former finalist, 1 up.

Miss Shaw, 23, who is currently running second in the qualifying tests for the ladies' inter-provincial team, had the largest margin of victory in the quarter-finals. She downed Elsie Saunders of Gorge Vale, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Todd, seeking her unprecedented 12th title, sidelined Kay Tribe of Uplands, 5 and 4, while Mrs. Naysmith, another former champion, downed Edna Hicks of Uplands, 4 and 3.

In today's semi-finals, Mrs. Naysmith meets Mrs. Mann and Mrs. Todd faces Miss Shaw.

Seattle Gets $585,000 From Pilots

SEATTLE (CP) — A $585,000 settlement between the city and former owners of the Seattle Pilots' baseball club has been approved by city council.

Mayor Wes Uhlman has asked the council to decide on the proposal from Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., offering the city $585,000 plus equipment valued at $60,000.

Corporation counsel A. L. Newbould said the city had claimed $1,300,000 in federal bankruptcy court against Northwest Sports for rent due on Sicks' Stadium and for the cost of remodelling the facility.

Northwest Sports had paid $165,000 rent for the stadium in 1969 and had agreed to rent the stadium for four more years.

Century Inn is taking a serious run at the lead in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League after getting away to a slow start.

The second-place club made it four victories in a row and got within three points of the top on Wednesday night by defeating league-leading Colwood Inn, 9-3, at Heywood Avenue Park.

Winners broke the game open in the second innings, making the most of three errors and contributing four hits to score five times.

Two runs followed in each of the next two innings to build a 9-0 lead for Mike Cox, who eased up a bit in the last two innings but finished with a three-hitter.

U.S. Team Outbids Lions For Rookie Canadian Star

VANCOUVER (CP) — Running back Dave Corcoran may be one of the best pro football prospects ever to come out of the University of British Columbia, but he doesn't think that means much to his local professional football team, B.C. Lions.

Corcoran, 22, a star for four years with UBC Thunderbirds and third-round Canadian college draft choice by Lions of the western Football Conference, reports July 19 to the training camp of San Francisco 49ers.

He says the decision to head south was strictly a question of $11,000.

Lions offered Corcoran a $6,500 basic salary plus a $1,500 bonus for the season.

A BIT DIFFERENT

The 49ers will give him $500 for showing up at training camp, a $14,000 salary, a $4,500 bonus if he makes the 40-man squad and an automatic $16,000 next year plus bonuses.

If cut from the team he still can play on the taxi squad for $1,000 a month.

The 49ers first became interested in Corcoran three years ago, put him on their negotiating list and waited for him to develop under the eyes of UBC coach Frank Gnup, who after 15 years as Thunderbird coach says Corcoran "is possibly the best pro prospect to come out of here in my time."

NOT INTERESTED?

"I felt I was getting the brushoff as soon as I entered the Lions' office in March," Corcoran said.

"First of all they kept me waiting for about 20 minutes, then I had to talk contract with Ackles (Bobby Ackles, Lions' minor football co-ordinator) because Veitch (general manager Denny Veitch) was out of town.

"Canadians are paid a basic salary because they wear the Canadian label," he said. "That's the difference between the big time and the Canadian Football League. Americans judge you on your talent, not on your nationality.

"It's disheartening for Canadians to watch Americans come up here to training camp driving a Rolls Royce, bought from the bonus they got to sign."

Minor Upset In Doubles At Club Meet

Faith Graham and Ken Scorey, third seeds, advanced to the final of the mixed doubles competition in the Oak Bay Tennis Club tournament by beating second-seeded Heather Graham and Howie Tooby, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, Wednesday.

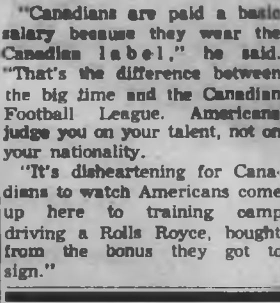

In men's quarter-final play, Ivor Goodmanson eliminated Glen MacDonald, 8-6, 7-5.

Play continues today and finals in all events will be held Saturday.

Today's draw:

After Victoria, Campbell Meet

Fire, Police Forces No Nearer to Unity

By HUBERT BEYER

Victoria's bid to bring about unification of fire and police forces in the four core municipalities seems to have failed, Victoria Ald. Harold Olafson said Wednesday.

He told the Colonist that a meeting earlier in the day between city officials and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell had produced no results.

"I think, for the time being, we can forget about unification of Greater Victoria's police and fire services. We got a very good reception and the minister listened to our case, but I doubt that the matter will go any further at this time," Olafson said.

The attempt to bring police and fire services of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt under regional control began three weeks ago when Victoria city council approved a motion calling for the minister's "advice and assistance" in the amalgamation drive.

Olafson, who introduced the motion at the time, said Wednesday he didn't think the minister was against the idea as such.

"I believe he's very sincere and co-operative, but for some reason or other, nothing will be done about the matter right now," he said.

In spite of apparent temporary setbacks, Olafson said, he would continue to press for amalgamation of fire and police services.

"They are obvious fields for co-operation between the municipalities. Maybe some day, we will have one police and one fire department for Greater Victoria."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, who also attended the meeting, was a little more optimistic.

"I think we accomplished as much as we could hope to accomplish at an initial meeting. Mr. Campbell listened to us, and I'm sure he will at least think about it," he said.

"We have to give him time. These things aren't accomplished overnight."

"There was every reason to believe that eventually police and fire services will come under regional control," Ramsay said.

Campbell said he didn't want to make any comment at this time.

"I will write a letter to all four municipalities and inform them of the contents of today's discussion, but it wouldn't be fair if I told the press before I let the municipalities know," he said.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said he wasn't sure if Campbell would be of immediate assistance in bringing about the unification of services.

"I was very pleased with the meeting, and who knows — something may eventually be accomplished," the mayor said.

"I don't believe that amalgamation of our police and fire departments would save money as far as operating costs are concerned, but the taxpayers would get better service for their money."

Unification, Haddock said, would eliminate duplication and result in better utilization of equipment.

"From that point of view it would be a desirable thing. On the other hand, I think it's only fair to say that the various police and fire departments are doing a fine job now."

A delegation of transport department officials from Ottawa paid a quick visit to Victoria Wednesday in connection with the city's bid for a harbor commission.

Deputy Transport Minister A. H. Brown and head maritime transportation administrator Pierre Camu spent several hours with Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock discussing the pros and cons of the proposed harbor commission.

The mayor said in an interview the meeting had been "very informative and encouraging." Both the deputy minister and Camu had, once again, told him that Victoria's chances of getting control over its harbor facilities were excellent.

"The only difficulty we could possibly foresee was to get Canadian National Railways to give up its jurisdiction of Ogden Point," Haddock said.

"They have control over the dock facilities now and they have invested some money in the operation recently. I think that the CNR may be the biggest obstacle in the city's way towards control over the harbor."

From unofficial sources, the mayor said, he had heard that the CNR might not oppose the idea of giving up Ogden Point, but he would have to check that.

He said the question of who would hold the land leases for the waterfront properties, currently controlled by the federal government, had also been resolved.

"The deputy minister assured us that the city would get permission to hold the head (main) leases on those properties."

Last week, Camu stated that Victoria's chances of getting control over its harbor were "very good indeed." He said the matter would have to wait until a major study of Canadian harbor administration was released. This would probably be within the next two months, he said.

Meanwhile, a feasibility study prepared by Harold Elworthy and a special committee has been awaiting final approval by Victoria and Esquimalt councils for more than two months.

The report, which strongly recommended the formation of a Greater Victoria Harbor Commission, will be sent to Ottawa as soon as the two councils have approved it.

Haddock said, "This will be done very soon, and something will happen within a few weeks now."

Among the recommendations contained in the study were an immediate facelift for Ogden Point docks, further development of all harbor facilities and promotion of increased commodity shipments through the proposed commission's facilities.

Junkyard Blaze

A rubbish fire in the junkyard of the Northern Junk Co., 100 Block, Esquimalt Road, which started about 5 p.m. Wednesday took Victoria firefighters about two hours to extinguish. Fire department spokesmen did not know how the fire began.

Story of a Fugitive: It's Been a Nightmare

By BRUCE LOWTHER

On July 21, 1967, Anthony Garfield Brown escaped from the William Head minimum security prison near Victoria. Wednesday, he was sentenced to six months in jail for staging that escape.

In between, he was cleared of three charges in California, including one of murder.

His story — which he described in Victoria Provincial Court as "a nightmare" — was pieced together Wednesday from reports from Colwood RCMP, Victoria police, Los Angeles police and The Los Angeles Times.

Brown, 30, first appeared Tuesday in the Victoria court, where a two-count charge was read — escaping custody July 21, 1967, from William Head and being unlawfully at large within Canada after that date. The case was adjourned for one day.

Wednesday, Brown elected trial before Judge William Ostler and pleaded guilty to both counts. Police told court that after his escape Brown obtained transportation from a private citizen "to downtown Esquimalt," then took a taxi to Swartz Bay.

Police also said that Brown was arrested in San Diego, Calif., soon after. He had been "only free approximately 10 days" since his escape, they said. He was returned to Canada from the U.S. about nine weeks ago and is presently completing his sentence in the B.C. penitentiary.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said that Brown was sentenced Aug. 2, 1966, in Winnipeg to a total of three years in prison on five counts. He also said that Brown had received prison terms in 1961 and 1963 for various offences.

The record read by the prosecutor for Brown included such offences as breaking and entering and theft, possession of stolen goods, car theft and forgery.

"I can't understand the mentality of escaping when you were in an open institution like William Head," the judge said. "You certainly brought a lot down on your head by escaping."

"Yes, it's been a nightmare," Brown replied.

The judge, taking note of the fact that Brown had imposed punishment on himself, gave him a total of six months in jail for escaping and for being unlawfully at large.

What about the time between the escape and the sentence?

Colwood RCMP said their information was that Brown was arrested Aug. 10, 1967, in San Diego on a charge of carryihg a concealed weapon. He was ordered Oct. 9, 1967, deported to Canada from the U.S. at San Diego but, at about that time, he was charged in San Diego in connection with the theft of one or more cars.

The Colwood police said that Brown was eventually cleared of both San Diego charges.

But on Oct. 30, 1968, he was removed from the San Diego jail to be charged in Los Angeles with murder.

A spokesman for Los Angeles police and a reporter at The Los Angeles Times said that the case involved the death of Mrs. Inga Danielson Wester, 45, a Hollywood surgical nurse and divorcee who was reported missing March 21, 1968.

Two days later, her car was found in Santa Ana, 30 miles south of Los Angeles. Brown was sleeping in it but was not arrested at that time.

On Oct. 13, 1968, Mrs. Wester's badly-decomposed body was found by hikers in foothills near the Los Angeles suburb of Chatsworth. The body had three bullet wounds but only one bullet was recovered.

Last March 13, a Los Angeles Superior Court jury that deliberated for two and one-half days acquitted Brown of the murder charge. He had testified during his trial that he was driving Mrs. Wester's car with her permission and had denied any knowledge of how she was killed.

Colwood RCMP said that Brown is due to be released from the penitentiary at New Westminster July 20, 1971, after completing the three-year term received in 1966. Six months was added to that Wednesday, making his probable freedom date Jan. 20, 1972.

'Mackasey Mosaic' Viewed

Some Answers, Some Questions

The federal government's proposed new unemployment insurance scheme should be dubbed the Mackasey mosaic, says Victoria Labor Council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan.

He said he hopes it will provide a basis for further reassessment of social and economic needs in Canada.

Ryan noted the white paper tabled in the House Wednesday continues the old policy of not giving benefits to workers involved in labor disputes.

"Whether it can be criticized on that count I'm not prepared to say," said Ryan.

The incentive clauses, under which employers with below average lay-offs pay lower premiums, Ryan said, were interesting and imaginative inventions to try to stabilize employment.

He also felt there would be difficulty in the differences between the amount to be received by those on unemployment insurance and those on welfare.

Any meaningful reform would have to take into account conditions beyond the periphery of the insurance, said Ryan.

"In labor we don't subscribe to marginality," said Ryan. "The marginal groups —those on welfare, the fishermen, and other small groups — can't be ignored. It's to be hoped the Mackasey mosaic comes up with some answers for them."

Four Area Yachts Among 23 Starters

Preparations Half the Battle on This Sailing Course

By JIM BRAHAN

It takes a tremendous amount of sailing and lots of luck for a 36-foot sloop to win the 2,310-mile Victoria-Maui International yacht race, says veteran skipper Wally Meakes.

"But it can be done," Meakes said Wednesday night, and recalled the 1968 classic when the 35-foot sloop Jeunesse of Seattle missed out on winning the race by 20 minutes after the handicaps were tallied.

"In a race like this it doesn't necessarily mean the biggest boat is going to win," he said and explained that a boat's rating based on so many seconds per mile makes it an even race.

The third biennial Victoria to Maui classic will start at 3 p.m. July 1 off Brotchie Ledge and finish at Lahaina on the Island of Maui in the Hawaiian chain.

Twenty-three yachts will be in this year's race, of which 11 are Canadian, including four from Victoria. The remainder are from the U.S.

Entries from this area are: Gabriel II, owned by Ralph Higgins; Potlatch, Wally Meakes; Oriole, Canadian Forces; Cubara, owned by Don Lawson.

Meakes

"There is a tremendous amount of preparation for such a long race, and the preparations are every bit as important as the race."

He added the participants would start arriving at Victoria's Inner Harbor about June 28 to make last-minute preparations.

"It took us 21 days last time and we hope to shave a couple of days off our time in this race," said Meakes as he talked about his 36-foot sloop Potlatch and its six-member crew.

"Every skipper has his own ideas about how to win the race and when you have boats strung out with about 500 miles between them, nobody can see what the other boats are doing," he said.

"It's heavy drill all the way, and it's also mighty hard to outguess the weatherman in a race of this distance," Meakes added.

He agreed that storing for the race was of prime importance.

"We work on a five-day menu and slightly in excess of 15 gallons of fresh water per man. We also use salt water for non-drinking purposes whenever possible.

"Last time we had prepared an adequate, varied diet and we fared fine," he said.

He described the race as being a tremendous experience.

The first Victoria-Maui race was a trial run in 1965 when three boats took part. In 1968 there were 14 yachts competing for various trophies.

Federal Ombudsman 'Ineffective' In Big Country

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner cast doubt Wednesday on the effectiveness of a federal ombudsman in Canada.

Speaking to the Senate legal affairs committee, Turner said a federal ombudsman would have to set up a bureaucracy of his own to carry out on-the-spot investigations of complaints by citizens against the processes of government.

But a bureaucracy would rule out the personal touch that is effective with ombudsmen in smaller countries such as Sweden, Britain and New Zealand, he said. Canada was too large a country for the same approach.

SAFEGUARD STUDY

The justice minister was testifying before the committee studying safeguards against improper regulations made by government agencies under authority granted by Parliament.

Turner said an ombudsman would be less necessary if the citizen had other ways to appeal against government decisions affecting him.

The government announced Tuesday it will take steps to improve methods of dealing with government regulations. One of the proposals was that the government intends to set up a scrutiny committee to look into the regulations.

ALTERNATIVE

Turner told the senators the committee might either be a joint committee or separate committees in both the Senate and Commons.

Senator Muriel Fergusson (L—New Brunswick) said the ombudsman in New Brunswick gives residents of that province a feeling that they have a way of appealing against government. A scrutiny committee might not give citizens the same feeling.

Senator Hazen Argue (L—Saskatchewan, said the government's wheat inventory program has changed the Wheat Board Act by preventing farmers from growing wheat. It was a "punitive measure."

SCRUTINY URGED

The government should not undertake such a far-reaching change without careful public scrutiny beforehand.

Turner said he will be getting some control over legislation so that he can keep an eye on the regulatory powers granted by Parliament.

Public Link Lacking

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ombudsman Louis Marceau's first report as public protector for Quebec finds government departments lacking in public relations.

The report, tabled in the legislature, said the government has not adequately fulfilled its duty to inform the citizens of their rights and obligations nor of its workings.

He said too many administrators fail to take into account the "state of inequality" that exists between the administration and the people.

The report said 11 per cent of the 507 complaints investigated by his department resulted in formal recommendations to the departments concerned and 13 per cent resulted in corrections without formal recommendations. The rest were unfounded.

Self-Employed Fishermen Face Loss of Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — Fishermen eventually will be available for unemployment insurance benefits only if they are working for someone else, a federal policy statement says.

However, until alternate plans for their protection are prepared, self-employed fishermen will continue to be eligible for benefits.

"Plans are being designed to protect them against risks peculiar to their occupation, such as a catch failure or closure of a fishery."

The white paper on a new unemployment insurance policy was tabled Wednesday in the Commons.

Wide Range Of Jobs Included

OTTAWA (CP) — Athletes, servicemen, government employees, maids, teachers and hospital workers would pay unemployment insurance contributions on adoption of a plan unveiled Wednesday by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

So would workers earning more than $7,800 a year, the present salary cut-off point for unemployment insurance.

The proposed plan would cover 95.3 per cent of all employees in the labor force, compared with about 80 per cent now. About 1,160,000 persons would be added to the plan bringing the total to 6,500,000.

The labor department estimates the new plan would add 437,000 government employees, 233,000 teachers, 180,000 hospital and charitable institution workers, 165,000 persons over the current salary cut-off, 110,000 armed forces employees, 50,000 nurses, 25,000 policemen and 3,000 professional athletes to the list of contributors.

About the only workers to be excluded would be the self-employed, although fishermen would continue to be eligible until alternate protection is established.

Workers such as teachers and government clerks have always been considered all but immune from unemployment, Mackasey says in the report tabled in the Commons that this is no longer the case.

His policy statement says: "Unexpected layoffs and unemployment because of automation and other technological changes are beginning to disturb a wide range of workers from all occupation.

"The traditional stability of occupations such as nursing, teaching, police work, the armed forces and the public service can no longer be taken for granted."

Among the workers excluded since the plan began in 1940 are many who earn less than $7,800 — maids, many government employees, low-paid workers in hospitals or charitable institutions. Either job stability or the nature of their work govern exclusion. It was felt, for instance, that unemployment insurance payments would burden hospitals.

The newly-covered employees would come into the plan July 1, 1971. The revenue from new contributors would lower contribution rates for all but the workers at the bottom, who will continue to pay 20 cents a week on a wage of $25 or less.

Current top rate is $1.40 a week on earnings of more than $100. It will drop to 79 cents for the $100-$120 range, 95 cents for the $120-$140 range, $1.11 for the $140-$150 range, and a top rate of $1.19 for those earning $150 or more weekly.

Proposed Job Insurance Changes Welcomed by Opposition MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — A policy paper outlining sweeping changes in Canada's unemployment insurance program was generally welcomed by opposition spokesmen after its tabling in the Commons Wednesday by Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey.

"The mountainous Mackasey has brought forth not a mouse but a Trojan horse," said Robert Muir (PC-Cape Breton-The Sydneys) of the proposed scheme, which will increase the size of benefits and extend coverage to an additional 1,160,000 workers.

Muir said he welcomes the improved benefits proposed in the white paper, including the provision for pregnancy leaves.

But he said the white paper "may be a pig in a poke." It would impose great new tax burdens on the public.

John Skoberg (NDP-Moose Jaw) said he welcomed many of the proposals.

He suggested that some responsibilities of the manpower department could be transferred to the labor department, making the entire field of labor and unemployment more efficient.

Greene Nationalism Sans Socialism, Anti-Americanism

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister J. J. Greene further defined his concept of Canadian nationalism Wednesday, rejecting socialism and anti-Americanism as components.

Greene called for a united Canada "doing its own thing"—striving "not to a great society in terms of growth" but measuring its achievement by "the excellence of our accomplishment, the fulfilment of the individual."

The minister, who told a conference of American oilmen in Denver last month that Canadians were rejecting the American experiment in favor of their own identity, addressed the Canadian Club here.

ANY ATTEMPT

Greene rejected anti-Americanism as a nationalistic force.

"Any attempt to build on a real or imagined antagonism of one people or country against another is a process that is not only unworthy, but can be unproductive."

He said he rejected the school of nationalism that maintains that a unique Canadian identity must have a socialist base.

'NOT VIABLE'

"To suggest the achievement of national identity through a socialist solution is an academic alternative, but not a viable one in the real world."

"I see a Canada," he said, "where we will rejoice in our diversity, in the lack of pressure to conformity, where we will educate for individuality . . . despite the clear need that, in social and economic terms, we must act collectively."

FIRM BASIS

Canada would grow on a basis of private enterprise, "welcoming the foreign capital needed for development and growth on a basis of just treatment and fair return to the investor."

At the same time the "capitalism of the tomorrows" would be more involved in the public sector of the economy.

Fears that this would sound the death knell of capitalism are ill-founded, Greene said.

" . . . The contribution of the private sector is needed in enlarged degree to participate in the public sectors of our economy if we are to have a worthy tomorrow."

Greene admitted that "much of negative history has been written in the name of nationalism."

"But is it not equally true that much of what has been positive and productive has marched under the same banner of nationalism?"

Ra Sails Past Mid-Point

CLEARWATER, Fla., (UPI) — Thor Heyerdahl's papyrus boat Ra-2 has passed mid-point in its Atlantic voyage and at its present speed should reach the West Indies within four weeks, radio reports from the crew said Tuesday.

Hyerdahl disclosed that a charter vessel, the Ring Andersen, will leave Barbados next Monday for a two-day mid-Atlantic rendezvous to make films of the Ra-2 at sea and bring mail to the eight-man crew.

Navigator Norman Baker reported Tuesday that the reed boat had covered 304 nautical miles in the past four days and its position at noon Monday was about 1,200 miles due west of the African coast of Mauretania.

After 30 days at sea, the craft had covered 1,669 nautical miles. It sailed May 17 from Safi, Morocco.

The Norwegian scientist said "the papyrus bundles, rigging and steering systems are in perfect condition, in marked contrast to the heavy damage which Ra-1 had suffered at the equivalent point in its voyage last year." He attributed this to "much greater structural integrity of the boat design, the experience of the crew in sailing a type of vessel unused by ocean travellers for nearly 3,000 years, and better weather." Ra-1 sank in shark-infested Caribbean waters.

Canada's Exports Rocket

OTTAWA (CP) — A surge in Canadian exports carried through May and boosted the country's favorable trade balance to more than $1,000,000,000 for the first five months of the year.

Preliminary estimates published Wednesday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show May exports valued at $1,498,600,000 and imports down to $1,280,400,000 for a favorable balance of $218,200,000.

EXPORTS, IMPORTS

In May, 1969, exports were $1,331,700,000 and imports $1,299,100,000 for a favorable balance of $32,600,000 in the month.

In the first five months of this year exports were up to $6,911,300,000 from $5,993,200,000 in the same 1969 period. Imports increased marginally to $5,910,000,000 from $5,803,900,000.

Excess of foreign sales over purchases from abroad thus widened to $1,001,300,000 in the five months from $189,300,000 in the 1969 period.

TRADE CHANGES

The estimates reflected a turnaround in the pattern of trade with the U.S. to a Canadian surplus this year from a deficit in the first five months of 1969.

In May, Canadian shipments to the United States outstripped imports from that country by $971,400,000 to $924,000,000 for a favorable Canadian balance of $47,400,000.

Wheat Grant Stand Sympathetic

OTTAWA (CP) — An official request from Pakistan asking Canada for an additional 50,800-ton free wheat grant is receiving "sympathetic consideration," a spokesman in the external affairs department said Wednesday.

The $3,500,000 request for wheat is over and above the estimated $4,000,000 food aid grant Canada will allocate to Pakistan this year.

Pakistan is asking Canada, the United States and Australia for an extra 100,000 tons of wheat to counter the threat of starvation for thousands in the northern districts of East Pakistan.

Six Million Scenic Miles

Russians Still Soaring

MOSCOW (UPI) — The two-man Soyuz 9 spacecraft Wednesday soared toward the achievement of 6,500,000 miles and 16 full days in space, its pilots enjoying panoramic views of Athens, Istanbul and other cities.

In a progress report on what has become man's longest space flight, the Soviet news agency Tass said that "by 1:45 p.m. (3:45 a.m. PDT) Wednesday the ship had made 253 orbits of the earth and spent 375 hours in space."

The orbital information indicated Col. Andrian Kikolayev and Vitaly Sevastianov would have travelled about 6,300,000 miles since their blastoff from Baikonur Spacedrome June 1.

"They could see well Mediterranean islands and coastline, the Crimea, the Black Sea coast of the Caucasus, the Volga River's delta ... and the cities in these areas — Athens, Istanbul, Yalta, Sochi, Astrakhan and other cities," Tass said.

The cosmonauts also continued their strict regimen of exercise to prevent deterioration of muscles that showed up in past space journeys.

Scientists writing in the Soviet newspaper Red Star said vision reliability is sharply reduced after 24 hours in space and that tests are being made to learn more about the problem and to seek ways of solving it.

They said weightlessness affects vision by reducing the co-ordination of the eye muscles. The muscles tend to pull too strongly when the friction and weight is reduced in the space environment, the scientists said.

The specialists said the tests so far have shown that colors do not seem as bright in space.

Nikolayev appeared on a television broadcast from space Thursday dressed in a special suit with elastic braces that made his every move a strain. A web of sensor wires relayed his pulse, blood pressure and breathing rate to Earth.

U.S. Court Reverses Mutiny Conviction

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Court of Military Review has ruled that no mutiny took place at the San Francisco Presidio Oct. 14, 1968, and has reversed the conviction of the first of 22 men tried on that charge.

The court acted Tuesday, with its three military judges agreeing that Pte. Nearey Sood, 27, was guilty of a lesser charge of willful disobedience of an order. He had been sentenced to 15 years at hard labor for mutiny.

The review court gave him one year at hard labor, and sentenced him to forfeiture of all pay and allowances and a bad-conduct discharge.

The review court, sitting in Washington, also ruled unanimously that it was not mutiny when 27 stockade inmates sat down and sang We Shall Overcome when ordered to go on a work detail.

American Civil Liberties Union lawyer Paul Halvonik, who helped handle Sood's appeal last February, said Tuesday's reversal could mean similar action for the other 21 men convicted of mutiny.

Sood was paroled last March and already has served 13 months, more than the year to which the review court sentenced him Tuesday.

Canada Makes UN Medal

TORONTO (UPI) — The first Canadian medal commemorating the 25th anniversary of the United Nations was struck here Wednesday.

Robert Welch, Ontario minister of citizenship and immigration, pressed a button at the Wellings mint to stamp out the sterling silver medal.

The medals stamped will be presented by Secretary-General U Thant to heads of state participating in the fall session of the UN General Assembly later this year.

The medal, which will be produced in three sizes, will be available for public sale throughout Canada.

When Helicopter Door Gives Way

Airman Saved from Plunge to Sea

SHEARWATER, N.S. (CP) — A young Canadian naval airman was pulled back aboard a helicopter off the Nova Scotia coast last week by two other men after being sucked through an open door 300 feet over the Atlantic Ocean.

Ordinary Seaman John Barker, a member of the crew of a helicopter which assisted in the rescue of four fishermen off southwestern Nova Scotia, leaned against the door and it suddenly opened. He was pulled out but managed to cling to a six-foot stub wing on the side of the helicopter and was grabbed by a fellow crew member, Leading Seaman Gordon Rowe. Rowe.

Rowe hung on to Barker with one hand and a seat inside the chopper with the other. Rowe, in turn, was grabbed by Sgt. David Veyerle of the United States Air Force, a para-rescue team member picked up from the sea by the Canadian helicopter after being dropped to assist the drifting fishermen.

A spokesman for helicopter squadron HU-21 said today Veyerle and Rowe managed to pull Barker back into the helicopter.

The four fishermen were rescued by HU-31 helicopters after their 56-foot vessel was rammed by a ship which failed to stop.

Liners Bringing Tourist Flood

The P and O 30,000-ton liner, Arcadia, carrying about 880 passengers, will dock at Ogden Point between 6 and 7 a.m. today for a 12-hour stopover during its current Alaskan cruise from San Francisco.

Next Tuesday, the 15,000-ton liner, President Wilson, will make its inaugural call to Victoria and is expected to arrive with about 400 passengers at 9 a.m. and stay for 12 hours.

The following day, Matson Line's sister ships, Monterey and Mariposa, will each spend six hours in Victoria. The Monterey will dock at 7 a.m. and leave at 1 p.m., and the Mariposa will be at Ogden Point from 1:30 to 7 p.m.

The ship's two-week Alaskan cruise began June 11 in Los Angeles.

The Arcadia will be piped into harbor by Victoria piper Heather Zink, and also be welcomed by the Esquimalt Thunderbird Girls' Drum Corps.

When the ship departs at 6 p.m. it will be speeded on its way by a 20-piece band directed by Howard Denike.

Citizen Health Study Invited

By KEN KELLY

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dr. Maurice Leclair, federal deputy health minister, called Wednesday for greater citizen involvement in shaping the health care system of the future.

While he appealed to the Canadian Medical Association annual meeting for stronger government and professional co-operation, he also made it plain that the consumer must have a larger role.

STUDENT'S MESSAGE

He quoted with apparent approval the November, 1969, address by a second-year medical student to the Association of American Medical Colleges:

"We believe that health care systems must be a public service responsible to the people and not an extractive industry responsible only to itself."

"While we may think that the language is excessive and perhaps exaggerated I am sure that we all get the message," he said in his first major address since becoming deputy health minister last December.

Dr. Leclair said the movement toward integration and regionalization means, among other things, "citizen involvement in getting health care system truly responsive to their health needs."

For that reason, the federal authorities supported community-based health clinics and group practices embracing different doctor-specialists.

This movement also means more general practitioners and better status for them, plus the training of many new health workers, such as doctor-assistants, to fill the gap between doctors and nurses.

NOT REFLECTIVE

Dr. Leclair also said many of the advisory bodies at the federal level "have not been really and truly reflective of the Canadian public at large."

"A characteristic of the health side of my department in the next few years will be that of widespread participation and consultation not only from the medical profession but from the consumer as well."

Dr. Leclair, former dean of medicine at the University of Sherbrooke, indicated his personal approval of proposals from the profession and others that a new national council of health be formed to provide advice to government from a wider base than the provinces and the professional associations.

Pay Guide Still Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Wednesday that the six-per-cent restraint guide on wages still is government policy, despite opposition from the Canadian Labor Congress.

Benson replied non-committaly that the government will accept its responsibility at the proper moment.

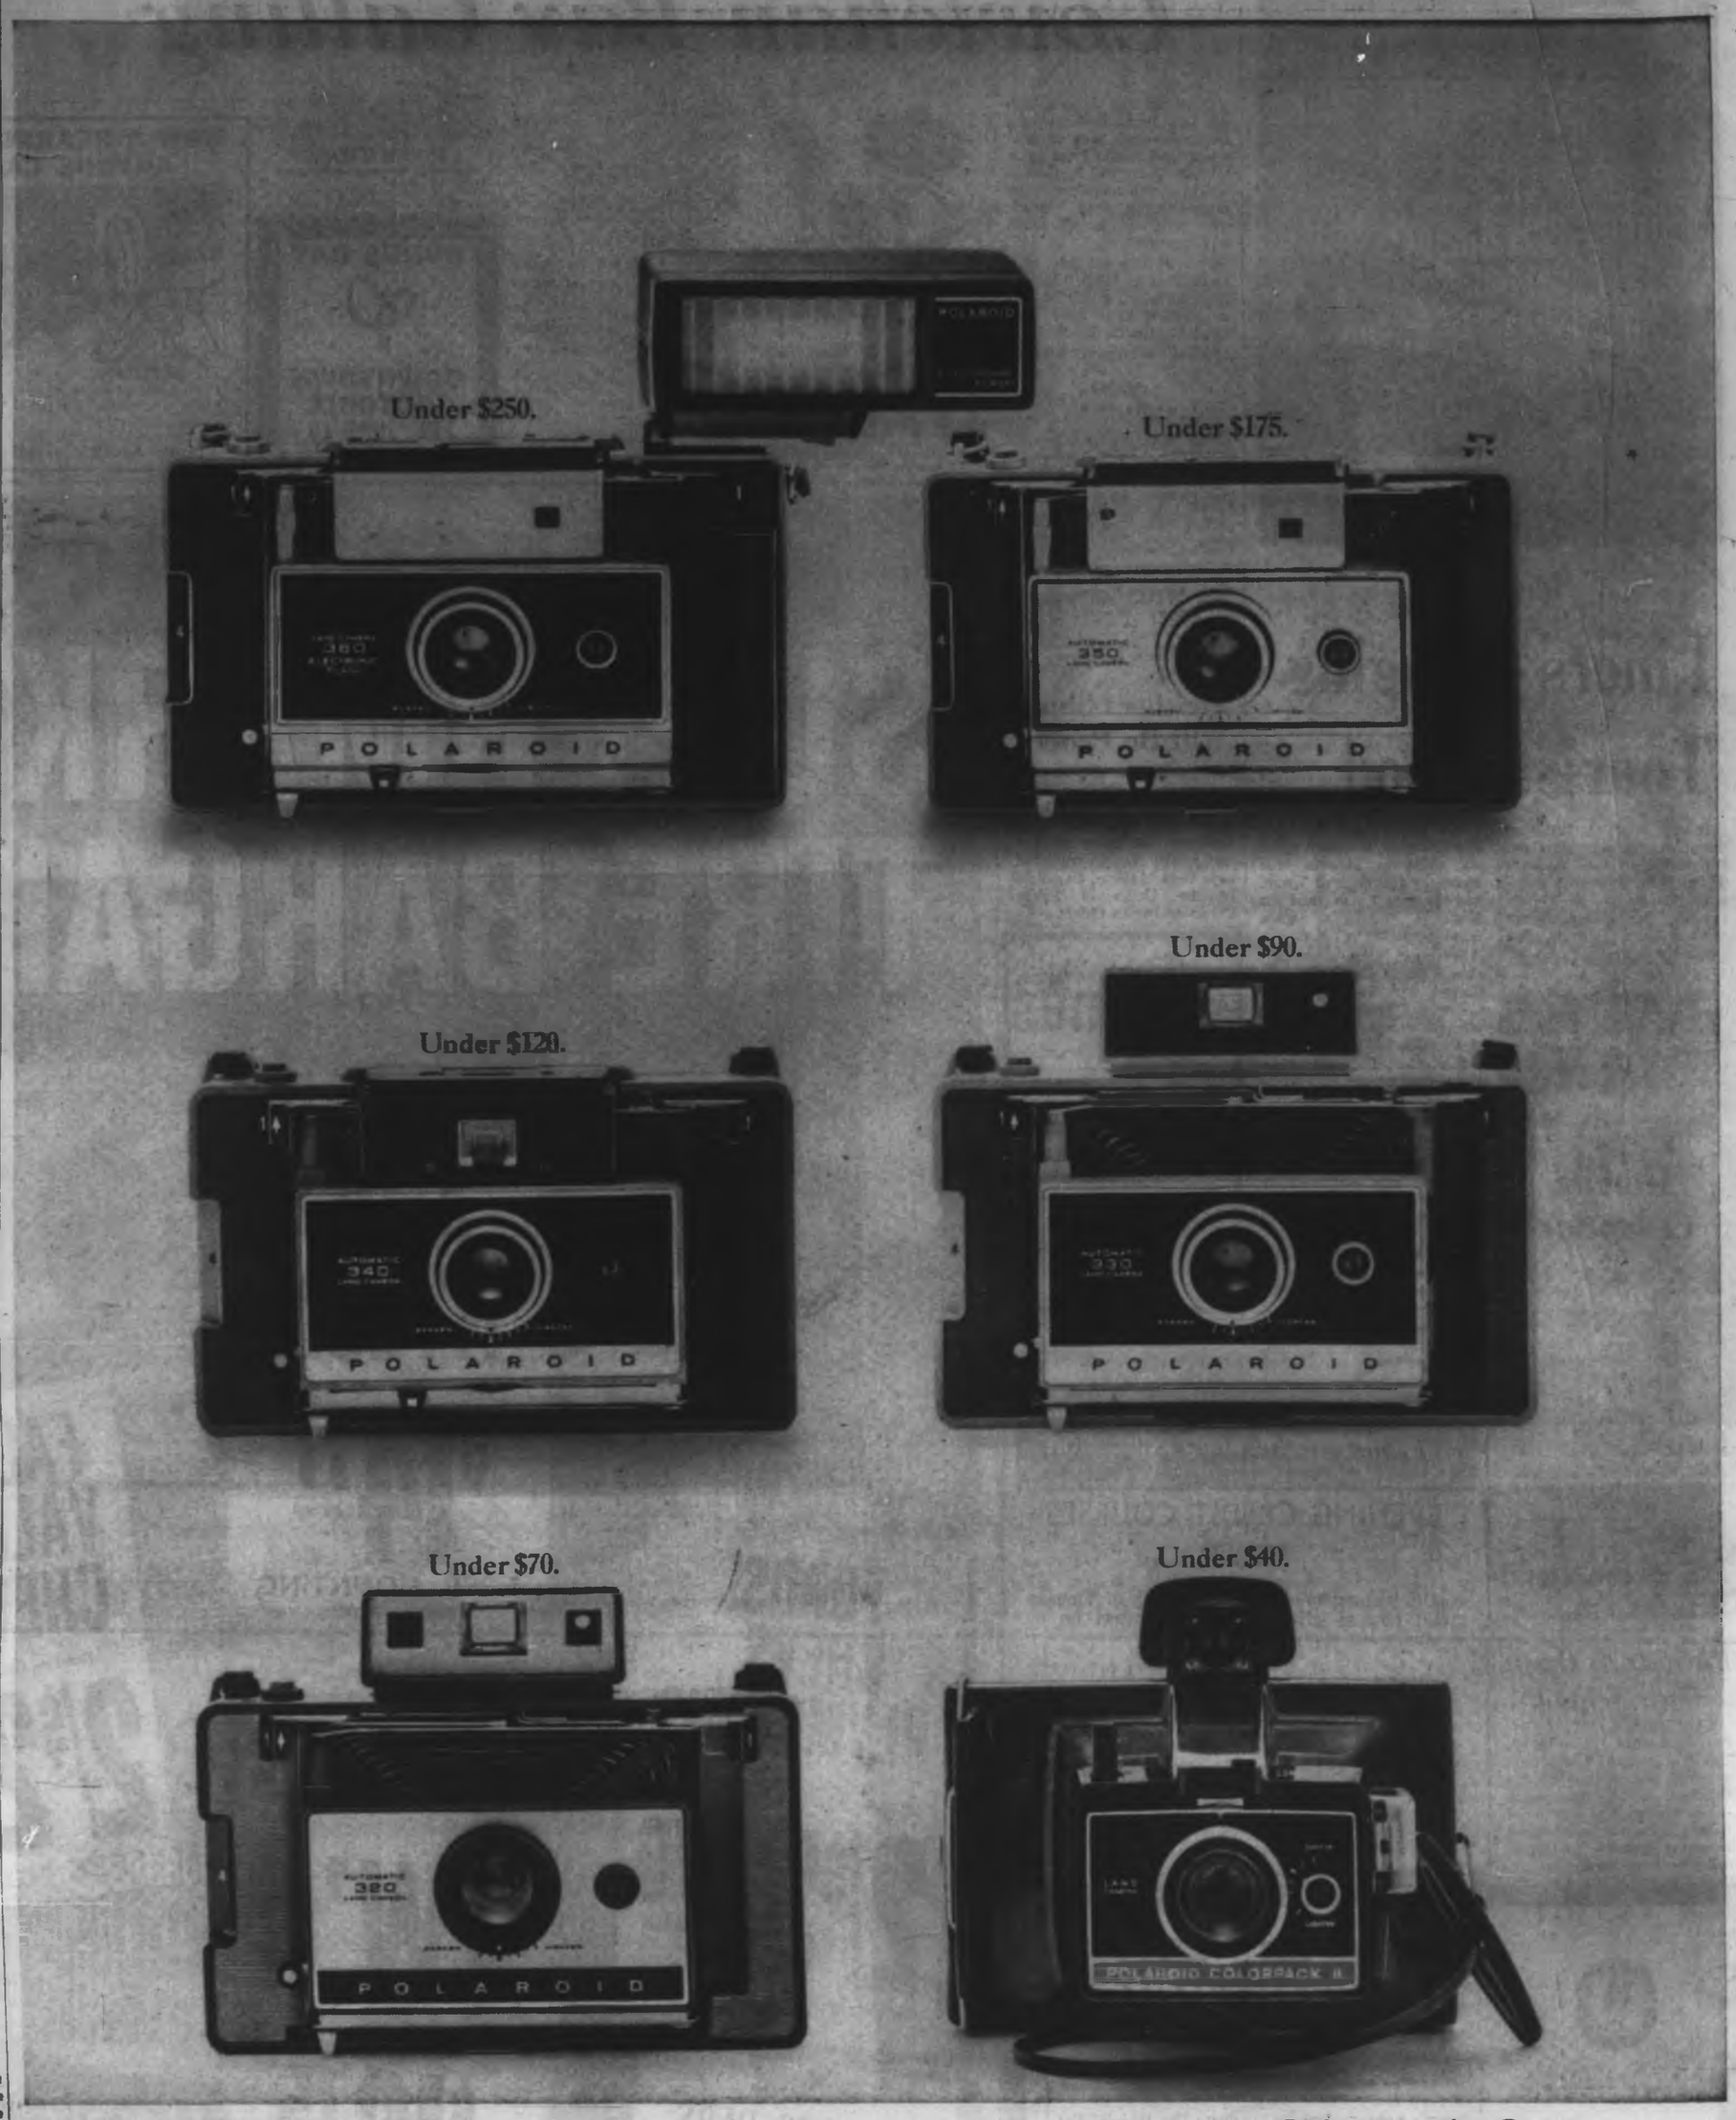

Stanfield and New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas asked about the CLC's suggestion that the government convene a conference with labor and management to discuss restraints.

Benson said the suggestion is being considered.

Give Dad the best minutes of his life.

After all, he's given you the best years of his. Now's your chance to give him something nice in return.

And what father wouldn't be proud of a son (or daughter) thoughtful enough to give him a Polaroid Land camera on Father's Day? Here are seven to start you thinking.

The Colorpack II, under $40.

The Model 320, under $70.
The most economical in our popular line of folding cameras. Coupled rangefinder-viewfinder lets you focus as you shoot. Electronic shutter and electric eye read and set exposures automatically—even for flash. Detachable camera cover and carrying strap.

The Model 330, under $90.
A lot more gift for a little more money. Built-in mechanical timer automatically tells you when your picture's ready. Transistorized electronic shutter. Precise triplet lens that can use optional filters. Double-image rangefinder-viewfinder for easy focusing.

The Model 340, under $120.
One of the most sophisticated cameras you can give for under $120. Takes indoor black-and-white shots without flash. Built-in development timer. Fold-away rangefinder-viewfinder. Four film speed settings. Handles a whole list of accessories such as close-up and portrait attachments.

The Model 350, under $175.
How automatic can you get? Built-in electronic timer starts counting automatically when you pull out the film packet, "beeps" when your picture is perfectly developed. Takes automatic time exposures up to 10 seconds. Electronic shutter and electric eye. Single window Zeiss Ikon rangefinder-viewfinder. Handsome all-metal body with brushed chrome finish.

The Model 360, under $250.
The most self-sufficient camera in the world. Snap-on electronic flash. (At 1/1000 of a second it can stop the action at a teenage party.) Recharges on ordinary house current. Electronic development timer starts counting automatically when you pull out the film packet, "beeps" when it's developed. Triplet lens and Zeiss Ikon rangefinder-viewfinder. Four exposure ranges. Two for color, two for black-and-white.

The Big Swinger, under $10. Now our least expensive model. Takes 3¼" x 4¼" black-and-white shots in seconds. A built-in photometer reads "Yes" when the exposure's perfect. Built-in flash, no focusing.

And one of the nice things about giving a Polaroid Land camera to your Dad is being able to borrow it now and then.

Wallace leaves Oak Bay

Retiring Principal Applauded, Lauded

Retiring as principal of Oak Bay senior high this year, Wallace says the greatest kick he's had over the years — he's been at Oak Bay since 1937 — is "hearing of students doing well later on. That's always a thrill."

Born at William Head in 1908, Wallace moved to Victoria at age seven. He graduated from Victoria high in 1926, and from Victoria normal school in 1928.

After five years of teaching in various places around British Columbia, he went back to school and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of British Columbia in 1936.

The brother of deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace and University of Victoria vice-president Robert Wallace, Jack taught for a year in Trail, B.C. before joining Oak Bay staff as a mathematics and science teacher.

His role grew along with the school. In 1957, Wallace was one of 14 teachers in a 300-student school. He became vice-principal in 1953, and principal 10 years later. He retires as the administrative head of a 52-teacher, 1,150-student high school.

And, Oliver says, he's received replies from graduates from the 1930s through to today who say they'll be at the Jack Wallace appreciation night at 8 p.m. Friday at the school.

The principal — who's been at home ill since Easter — says he'll be there, too.

Two-Family Clash

Divebombers Active On Bank Street

A Bank Street family and a crow family aren't getting along too well.

But neither the police nor the SPCA, both called to help settle the neighborhood spat, has been able to offer a solution.

One of the Bank Streeters explained that a mother and father crow are raising a newly-hatched brood in a tree on the Bank Streeters' property.

"We're being divebombed by the parent crows," he said. "It's been going on for about 10 days."

The "divebombers" were reported to Victoria police, who referred the complaint to the SPCA, who referred it back to Victoria police.

Then SPCA Insp. Oscar Vennberg visited the scene of the dispute. The nest was too high, he said. Nothing could be done. Maybe the police would destroy the nest and crows before another batch of eggs could be laid next spring.

'This Union Will Not Be Put Out of Business'

Labor Rallies Quickly to Guild's Aid

By DON COLLINS

The B.C. Federation of Labor is moving quickly to prevent what it sees as the possible destruction of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Following an emergency meeting of the federation's executive council Wednesday, secretary Ray Haynes told the Colonist: "We are determined this union will not be put of of business."

The concern is court action taken against the guild as the result of the crippling towboat strike that ended last Saturday. In one case the union's assets were ordered seized. It has also been fined a total of $75,000 for contempt of court and other actions are pending.

Haynes said the federation, guild and legal counsel of both were to meet today "to try and see if there is some way we can assist the union."

The federation said it would not assess members to make up the cost of the fines.

The federation is also calling a meeting in Vancouver next week, probably Tuesday, of representatives of all affiliated unions to deal with the same subject.

The Colonist reported Tuesday that some union officials were afraid the guild would be "wiped out."

"A union of 2,200 just cannot stand fines of the size that have been levied against it," Haynes said. The strike, which idled 20,000 forest workers, began May 3 and involved 1,150 towboat officers.

Safety, manning and accommodation were the main features in settlement.

In other developments Wednesday, the International Woodworkers of America and Forest Industrial Relations finally came together at the bargaining table.

And a second of five unions — the heat and frost insulators — walked out on round-the-clock negotiations aimed at ending the province-wide construction lockout that began April 14.

The plumbers withdrew from the talks Tuesday during their second day. The reason in both cases was objection to a proposal that all union agreements be signed simultaneously.

The forest talks, which involve 30,000 men in the Coast region, started when the IWA and FIR agreed to extend the term of government mediator Clive McKee another 10 days to June 28.

No strike or lockout can be called while the mediator is engaged in talks. However, the IWA is conducting a strike vote in the meantime.

In a statement, FIR president John Billings said the employers were no longer objecting to inclusion in the meetings of outside labor observers from the federation of labor and the international pulp-sulphite union "if such observers can be of help at this late date in discussions."

But he added that FIR was urging that "no further strike notices be issued by the union as these are damaging to discussions."

The IWA was reported to have issued strike notices against two operations in the province.

An original attempt at talks failed in March when FIR refused to negotiate while labor "observers" from outside the IWA were present.

Some union officials saw a decision earlier in the day by the pulp and paper industry to allow outside labor observers to sit in on talks as the reason for FIR's change of mind.

The pulp firms have begun talks with two unions — pulp-sulphite and the united paper-makers.

"This decision to let observers in is a tremendous victory for labor in this province," one IWA spokesman said.

The construction dispute hit another snag during the day when the lathers union filed action against the carpenters union and the carpenters' provincial council to block them from signing an agreement with the Construction Labor Relations Association.

The carpenters, operating engineers and laborers are still bargaining on a 24-hour-a-day basis at the University of B.C. with CLRA.

The lathers claim any agreement by the carpenters would violate a 1903 pact which prohibited the carpenters from asserting jurisdiction over ironwork or lathing claimed by the lathers.

In Vancouver, brewery workers said beer truck drivers would not cross picket lines at hotels involved in strikes and lockouts on the Lower Mainland.

The dispute, mainly over wages, involves 21 hotels in Vancouver and 37 in the Fraser Valley from eastern Vancouver to Hope.

More than 300 maintenance men at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac pulp division booked off sick Wednesday in a dispute involving use of an outside contractor for some work. The 1,000-man plant remained open.

Court Parade

Hearing, Trial Start

The hearing for Larry Alan Preston of 1472 Fort involves a charge of breaking and entering and theft April 11 at the Jubilee Pharmacy at 1775 Fort, while the trial involves a charge of false pretences in obtaining a motor vehicle April 10 from a Victoria firm by means of a worthless cheque.

Preston was originally charged jointly with another man in the case of breaking and entering and theft. But Judge William Ostler withdrew the charge against the other man Wednesday on application of prosecutor John Macintyre, and the other man became the first witness in the hearing.

Indications were that both the hearing and the trial might be concluded in court sessions this morning and afternoon.

Clinton Roy Montgomery, 21, of 211 Helmcken, was fined $35 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of discharging a firearm unlawfully June 5 in the Colwood area.

Court was told that a man living at 201 Helmcken was making supper in his kitchen when a bullet broke his window. The bullet came from 211 Helmcken, where Montgomery was in his yard shooting bottles off fence posts, and it did not have enough velocity to injure the mealmaker.

It was also stated that Montgomery was shooting a .22 calibre rifle. The district was a no-shooting area and Montgomery had no permit.

In Sooke Provincial Court, a 20-year-old Ontario resident was committed to a higher court for trial on a charge of criminal negligence causing death. Committal of James Thomas Bright by Judge Eugene Murphy followed a preliminary hearing held in the Victoria Law Courts building and bail was set at $500.

Victoria's Ministrike

Oldest Dispute In 19th Month

One of the casualties of B.C.'s hectic labor scene is a strike that is both the oldest and smallest in the province.

While newer problems of major proportions vie for public attention, Victoria's nearly-19-month-old "mini-strike" continues unnoticed, forgotten by pretty well everyone but those directly involved.

And they don't constitute much of a crowd in comparison to the 30,000 men concerned in forest industry negotiations, or the 20,000 idled until recently by the towboat strike.

The strike, involving the Teamsters Union effort for an initial contract following certification, began Nov. 27, 1968.

"And they talk about settlements taking long to reach in connection with all those other labor problems right now," teamster representative Jim Scott said Wednesday. "You just have to think of our little strike. How's 19 months when it comes to waiting for settlement?"

The union feels its one hope now lies in negotiations soon to begin with Mortifee Munshaw Photos in Vancouver.

The contract there expires in November and the union is going to fight for one new contract covering employees there and at Hy-Fidelity in Victoria, which it claims is one and the same company.

An attempt by Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan to tackle the problem from a different angle has not been successful.

Ryan asked for an investigation in April when he discovered that A. W. S. Mortifee, who heads Mortifee Munshaw, was a vice-chairman of the B.C. Human Rights Council.

He wrote to Dr. Joseph Katz, chairman of the human rights council, and said the Victoria Labor Council was withdrawing its support of the organization.

The matter was turned over to the human rights body's legal committee and Ryan was informed by letter from Katz this week the executive had no equipment to conduct an investigation. The letter suggested the labor council refer the matter to the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

It is written ... that on Father's Day 'Woodward's food will be served to the master'

From Bea Wright

With Father's Day almost here, plan to make HIS DAY fit for a king and filled with happy memories. And when it comes to that special dinner, make it a majestic one . . . a thick, hearty steak with his favourite vegetables and dessert. With Dad in mind, we've added tips on steak carving (pamper him, no work to do including carving!) in this week's ad.

Steak

Tell Dad He's a Pretty Good Guy

By DONALD MULLEN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hey, kids! — worried about what to give Dad This Father's Day? Really want to show the Old Man that you think he's Right On? Then be the first on your block to try out these groovy suggestions for honoring him Sunday.

● Get your hair out and weave it into a tobacco pouch.

● Call him long distance and pay for it yourself.

● Bring back the family car with a tankful of gas, an oil change and a lube job.

● Tell him you believe in putting yourself through college as an experiment in self-reliance.

● Let him describe what it was like when he was your age. Be sure to ask him about the big band days of Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey and Benny Goodman, and about such cars as 1936 Ford Roadsters with rumble seats.

● Tell him you think marriage is basically a sound social institution.

● Have a date with a boy who, when introduced, smiles, shakes hands with Dad and says "I'm very pleased to meet you."

● Make your summer dresses and beach clothes out of discarded protest banners.

● Stop using the word "dumb" as a predicate adjective, as in "That's dumb."

● Tell him you plan to spend the summer working — for money.

● Tell him you plan to spend the summer studying to catch up with all the points you missed attending protest rallies.

● Ask if there's anything you can do to help relieve his worries. Like giving assurance you don't smoke pot or shoot speed.

● And, in case he goes into shock from any of the above, here's the coup de grace:

● Tell him it's unbelievable to you how he and Mom could raise such a well adjusted family in such a fine way during such trying times.

Labor of Love

ROSS, England (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Sandra Rutsch stood up at the Conservative party election rally and took off her blouse. Taped across her bare bosom in red letters was "Vote Labor."

Sandra turned and walked out of the hall. Across her back was "Labor has nothing to hide."

"It was all I could do to make staunch Conservatives take notice," said Sandra, wife of a laboratory technician and mother of a baby girl.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A certain woman in our office is such a phoney she makes everyone sick. Miss Virtue (as we call her) wears colorless nail polish, sensible shoes, but no bra and no girdle. Got the picture?

If anyone says "damn" in her presence, she lowers her eyes and acts offended. This Holier-Than-Thou dame reads dirty books and collects pornography. (We found a few choice items in her desk drawers.)

Another gal in this department pointed out that Miss Virtue always wears the same dress on Wednesday that she wore on Tuesday. And on Wednesday her usually perfect hair-do looks like a rat's nest. This means, of course, she has a standing date every Tuesday night with some guy — and she does not sleep at home.

Somebody should tip off Miss Virtue that we are on to her, but no one wants to. Will you do the honors? — In The Know.

Dear In: According to your extraordinary powers of deduction, if a girl wears the same dress to work two days in a row she did not sleep at home. I'd say the evidence is fairly frail, Dearie. Who does your work while you figure all this stuff out?

Thanks for letting me know what some office workers do with their time.

Dear Ann Landers: Some people have terrible telephone manners. Please print my letter. Maybe the guilty will see themselves and get smart.

I have a friend whom I call occasionally. If her daughter answers the phone she says, "Mom is busy. I'll have her call you back." Sometimes Mom doesn't call back until the next day when I am too busy to talk. In other words, my friend will talk to me when it is convenient for her.

I deplore such rudeness. From now on if a friend can't come to the phone when I want to talk, and I am told, "She'll call back," I'm going to say — "Tell her not to bother."

What do you think of that, Ann Landers? — Independent Spirit.

Dear In: Your complaint is a splendid example of social myopia — a common form of distorted vision. Simply because you have a phone doesn't mean whomever you call is obliged to drop everything and speak to you. The person who places the call is the "intruder."

How fascinating that you resent being inconvenienced but you fail to see that your call might inconvenience others. Now that you have the total picture, I hope you will reverse your thinking.

Dear Ann Landers: The whole town is discussing your wonderful meat loaf recipe. I am so pleased it won the prize in New Orleans. I did not see the recipe, unfortunately, because my husband hides the paper whenever he gets mad at me. I'm sure this is what happened the day our local paper carried your meat loaf recipe.

Will you please do me a favor and reprint it, Ann? You are the most popular person in Hopkinsville, Kentucky, on account of that recipe. Thanks a lot. — A Reader When I Can Get the Paper.

Dear Sometimes: I printed that meat loaf recipe twice and several hundred readers thought it was once too many. A few food editors around the country threatened to start writing an advice column if I didn't stop printing recipes. Please ask one of the ladies in Hopkinsville to give it to you.

'Sweet Sixteen' —And Younger

READING, England (AP) — Police were surprised to find that a gang of "skinheads" — identified by braces and close-cropped hair — were in fact girls. Terrorizing youth clubs and dance halls, the female gang, aged between 13 and 16 years, took a trophy from each victim — a ring or bracelet or something similar. "It makes you wonder what the world is coming to," a detective said.

Price Monitoring on Way

OTTAWA (UPI) — The government's prices and incomes commission announced Wednesday it has created a system to monitor monthly price changes for goods sold in Canada's largest supermarkets, department and discount store chains.

As a new tactic in the government's prolonged battle against inflation, the price check will be used to ensure that trend-setting retailers stay within the guidlines agreed to by businessmen at the commission's national conference on price stability in February.

In cases where price boosts are not "clearly less than" cost increases, the commission said it intends to ask the company to reduce its mark-up or gross profit accordingly.

The systematic monthly data is already being received, the commission said, from nationally known supermarket and wholesale food chains such as A and P Stores, Canada Safeway, Dominion Stores, Loblaw Groceterias, M. Loeb Ltd., Steinberg's and Super-Valu food stores.

Other large stores now sending data to the commission include the T. Eaton Co., Hudson's Bay Co., Simpsons-Sears, Canadian Tire, Miracle Mart and a number of other department, variety and discount stores.

The commission said it organized the surveillance system because it realized the average Canadian "spends a large part of his or her income on food, household and personal items."

It noted that limits on time and staff made it impossible to obtain regular reports from the thousands of smaller retail outlets across the country, but said the stores selected "represent a large cross-section of wholesale and retail sales in Canada and have outlets in practically every section."

Detailed discussions with members of the Retail Council of Canada preceded the formation of the monitoring system, the commission said.

As a result of these meetings, "the commission believes the retail trade generally realizes the importance of effectively restraining prices and has willingly given its support to this program," the commission said.

How J CLOTH* Towels help Tessa Bennett grow beautiful houseplants

"You know the secret with houseplants? Proper watering. Not too much. Not too little.
"I've worked out a little trick with J CLOTH Towels that keeps plants watered just right. You simply twist one into a rope, and force it through the hole in the pot-base. Fan it out inside the pot and then put the soil in.
"The J CLOTH Towel acts like a wick. So I simply stand the pot on a few stones in a dish — so the pot never touches the water. But the towel draws water from the dish up into the pot.
"All I do is refill the dish now and then. It's quick, easy, and my plants always have moist soil — not too dry, nor too wet."

L'il Ponchik Ooooo... Let's Coo

MOSCOW (AP) — Gorky Street resounds with strange mating calls in summer. "Where have I seen you before, little pancake?"

"What pleasant skin you have, my pigeon."

It is "kadritsa," chasing the girls Soviet-style, and the more inventive your compliment the better your chances.

Girls are always fair game in Moscow, but the chase begins in earnest with the first balmy breezes of May. The girl who wore shapeless knit stockings and a bulky coat last winter looks more interesting in nylons and a filmsy blouse.

Hair slicked down, wearing their best threads, young men prowl city streets and parks looking for a lively bit of skirt. The name of the game is perseverence, and many play for keeps. A wife is one way of beating the "bachelor tax" imposed on all Soviet young men.

Persistence Pays

"Sometimes it takes five minutes, sometimes five hours," explained one Russian Romeo.

"The girls like persistence. You have to keep talking.

"Sure they'll tell you to shut up and beat it. But most of them don't mean it."

That old line, "Haven't we met before?" still works as an icebreaker in Moscow, but you have to follow up with a lot of sugar. Endearments like "Kiska," kitten, "ponchik," little pancake, and "kroshka," bread crumb, are calculated to melt the stoniest Slavic heart.

Western girls would find some of the compliments rather personal. It's considered acceptable to tell a girl you've just met that you like her "fantastic bosom," as long as you use the polite form of address.

Healthy Chests

Russian girls are not noted for beautiful legs or fine figures. Many are more than a little plump. But almost all boast a healthy chest development. It is not for nothing that a new bra put on sale shortly after Lenin's 100th birthday was nicknamed the "Lenin Hills."

"We Russians will forgive much if the girl has a large bust," explained one of the Gorky Street regulars. "Legs and a skinny waist are not that important."

The best action, in his opinion, is found on Gorky Street and Kalinin Avenue in the city centre. Both have movie theatres, shops and ice cream parlors full of unescorted girls.

Girl chasers also favor city parks which have open-air dance pavilions.

Russian girls can be bold and assertive. Many hold down what would be considered men's jobs in the West, driving steamrollers, painting houses or doing heavy construction work. If they like you they let you know it. If they don't . . . look out.

Couple Marks 60 Years Wed

Mr. and Mrs. James Pickard, 546 Judah in Saanich, will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary Friday.

They will be at home to their friends from 2 to 5 p.m. in the afternoon and again in the evening from 7 to 9 at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Thelma Shaw, 546 Judah. Another daughter, Mrs. Joyce Gibbs, lives at Campbell River. They also have six grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Pickard were born in Exeter, Eng., and were married in Hoquium, Wash. The following month they moved to Victoria where they have lived ever since.

Jimmie, as he is known to all his friends, worked for Weiler Bros. David Spencer, Eaton's, Woodwards and latterly for Sydney Reynolds in the china department as a packer and shipper. He retired last September.

Heads Go High for New Season

Anything Is a Hat

NEW YORK (UPI) — Skirt lengths go down for fall, but heads go high hat for the new season. Crowns are tall, taller, tallest.

"This fall marks a tremendous change in the fashion environment," says the millinery institute of America. "Elegance is epitomized in the grace of the 'longuette' and hats take their place as a major contributor to the new elegance."

Hats make their contribution, the institute said, by rising upward to balance the lengthened skirts. All types of brims, wide and sculptured, emphasized the stretched out look of the body beneath.

The institute made its style points in its "environment '70" collection for fall, shown this week to the nation's fashion reporters. The institute show was one of the openers of the 10 days of semi-annual "press week" in which representatives of press, radio and television will report on the new in all phases of ready-to-wear.

Hats included straight Spanish and Gaucho-like shapes, sweeping cavalier brimmed numbers, flurry furs, and crocheted and knitted caps. Designers included Adolfo, Skolnips, Miss Alice, Betmar, Chesterfield. Lady Knox, Frank Olive. Biltmore, Amrose, Chanda and Jack McConnell. They represented all price ranges.

Hats were shown for every type of woman — business girls, school girls, young matrons, and the bridge club "ladies." The collection was presented as part of a skit between a publisher and fashion editor.

Cowboy styled ranchero hats, wool knit turbans, and high crowned and wide and floppy-brimmed felts, leathers and suedes were featured for the office girls. A medieval pink hood was even shown, followed by the comment, "anything that goes on the head is a hat."

The school girl collection included satin turbans for evening, crocheted caps and floppy knit and leather hats with high crowns. Wide-brimmed stetsons and crocheted caps with matching scarves were among those shown for young mothers.

For "the ladies" with a lot of leisure time for travel and the theatre, there were wide-brimmed suedes, leathers and felts and "hats small enough to leave on" during the matinee, such as the head-hugging turbans.

Mink, fox, lynx, sable and chinchilla were on the fur scene. One hat was done in grey and white checked mink and another in white fox decorated with tiny feathers. Fakes included imitation leopard, tiger, and lamb.

Hats, said the institute, are "made not just to go with clothes but to aid them in creating a totally fresh environment." So saying, they showed special hats to complement and complete pants ensembles in all the groups. These hats included sleek velors, fabric caps and suede, leather and felt hats.

Gull Gall Too Tall

ASCOT, England (UPI) — Hats always draw attention at Royal Ascot races here, but a three-foot high turban decorated with plastic seagulls and worn by Mrs. Ronald Shilling was too much for one elderly spectator. She walked over and hit it with her race scorecard.

"Some people have got no sense of humor," said Mrs. Shilling's husband.

ERMA BOMBECK . . . TV Sponsors

They're Laughing . . . All Way to Bank

I wasn't too surprised to read the outstanding commercial of the year was the bride who was planning her next meal while the groom was belting down Alka Seltzer to get over the last one. ("I never saw a dumpling quite that big before.")

I think for the greater part, commercials are getting better. Sponsors are discovering that humor is the fastest way to a viewer's pocketbook and that the company that laughs at itself does so all the way to the bank.

A few of them, however, still bug housewives. I'd like to recommend the following as the seven worst commercials.

1. The Lyndon Johnson Credibility Gap award goes to Mr. America and his thin partner who are involved in a contest of strength over a all those muscles in my scuff mark. Honey, if I had heard of buffalo left their kitchen, I wouldn't notice if a mark.

2. The Gina Lollobrigida acting award goes to the dows. Wash them. Their eyes three women cleaning winnever leave their faces as they read every word of testimonial with all the excitement and spontaneity of Georgie Jessel saying, "I do."

3. The Plumber's Mafia award could only be presented to the shifty character who promises a housewife he'll solve her clogging problems, while concealing a 98-cent bottle of cleaner behind his back. Jane Withers wouldn't pull that.

4. The Ana Corio Modesty award is won by the bikini-draped Swede who shares her tanning secrets with us. That's not all she shares. As my husband remarked, "She isn't Brian Keith, is she?"

5. Capturing the Ding-a-ling award for the second consecutive year is the woman returning from the supermarket who answers the phone and tells a perfect stranger how she solves her irregularity problems.

6. The Doris Day Saccharine award goes to the mother - daughter look - alikes who eat look-alike cereals. Just once I'd like to have the boyfriend exclaim, "Good grief, Mrs. Robinson, I thought you were Dale's father!"

7. Stick-in-y our-throat award is claimed by the cigarette that proclaims, "You've come a long way baby" to get your own cigarette. So who rejoices in "equal emphysema?"

I know I've left out a lot of losers and I'm sorry. Worse luck next year.

Happiness Is a Workshop

Vacation—Who Needs It?

By HELEN MORRIS

It's one of those stranger-than-fiction things. There really are 54 perfectly sane adults in Victoria who have to be forced to take a month's holiday.

When Arbutus Crafts for the Disabled goes into its yearly shutdown in August, 54 mentally alert but physically disabled workers complain they have nothing to do.

Remarkable?

Arbutus administrator Bob Knight says it's because "you can see for yourself by the noise they make here, they're a happy lot."

And you can. The four or five workshops stuck more-or-less at random throughout a graying one-storey building on Vancouver Street vibrate with the kind of sounds people make when they're making things and liking it.

In one room assorted people with assorted handicaps — polio, multiple sclerosis, arthritis, amputations, cerebral palsy, Parkinson's disease, muscular dystrophy — put mosaic patterns on ashtrays and cheese boards.

The finished products are pretty. Knight says: "We don't let anything go out of here unless it's topnotch." But it's the process that's fascinating.

One woman with arthritic hands oh-so-carefully places one brown ceramic piece on a design — two little children in springtime dresses. That one piece is placed with three tries. It seems to fit. But the craftsman doesn't think it's perfect; she removes it, and tries again.

Another shop at Arbutus makes — just as carefully — hand-woven purses, scarves and things (the Victoria Hand Weavers Club supplies the looms).

The woodworking shop makes picture frames, foot stools, ashtrays, and one swallow-sized birdhouse.

A basket weaving shop makes foot stools and umbrella stands and those woven flower baskets that children in French paintings always carry.

Each October Arbutus Crafts holds a sale. Seventy-five per cent of the sale's profits go back to the workers. Last year about $7,600 was raised at the annual sale, and at small sales throughout the year.

The other 25 per cent goes back into buying more goods to make more things, because as Knight says, "it's a recreational thing, not a money-making thing."

Operating costs at the centre last year were about $20,600. Some of the returns came from sales, some from personal donations, but most from a Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation grant.

POETS Party

One big event is staged each year by POETS, the police-sponsored youth organization in Esquimalt, to finance its activities for the coming season—and the 1970 event takes place Friday.

A spokesman for POETS, which translates as Police Organization for Esquimalt Teens, said Wednesday that all teenagers in Greater Victoria are invited to a teen dance in the Esquimalt Sports Centre from 9 p.m. to midnight Friday.

Music will be by a Vancouver group called Long Time Coming.

CAREFREE® Tampons protect up to 3 hours longer.

Johnson & Johnson introduces CAREFREE, the most absorbent, the most reliable tampon ever made. It is, in fact, so absorbent that it can be worn up to 3 hours longer than ordinary tampons. Comes in Regular and Super absorbencies.

Available in Regular and Super absorbencies.

It expands into a full, round, natural shape that adjusts itself to the body contours, moulding faithfully.

So CAREFREE protects better and longer.

CAREFREE is also the smallest tampon you can buy. It's smaller than a lipstick. That's because you don't need an applicator with CAREFREE. There's only the tampon—compact, smooth and firm enough to be used without an applicator.

Try the CAREFREE Tampon—a new concept in sanitary protection. It's the mini-tampon with the super absorbency.

Pot Legalization Premature, Says UN Narcotics Chief

By EARL W. FOELL

UNITED NATIONS (LAT)— The Yugoslav director of the United Nations narcotics division Wednesday criticized moves to legalize marijuana in any country as premature.

Dr. Vladimir Kusevic, who heads the narcotics control office of the UN in Geneva, nonetheless expressed sympathy for youths who say they have smoked marijuana without ill effect.

He noted that American medical analysts had found the active agent in marijuana leaves varied as much as 80 times between the strongest Mexican leaf and the weakest American-grown plants.

"Some young men are telling the truth," Kusevic asserted," when they say they didn't feel anything after smoking the weak product — sometimes diluted even further by cutting."

"But marijuana is something not defined at the moment," he added. "So any tendency to legalize it . . . would be wrong before we know more about it."

Somebody In There Hates Me

REGINA (CP) — A Regina man who set an elaborate shotgun trap in a church was sentenced to two years less a day Tuesday for attempted murder.

James Metro Woloschuk, 61, was convicted Friday by a court of Queen's Bench jury of trying to kill Knox-Metropolitan United Church caretaker John D. Smith, 51.

Court was told Woloschuk rigged a loaded shotgun with string, wire and pulleys so it would fire when the door to the church workshop was opened.

A police constable found the trap but it didn't fire.

Woloschuk, a former church employee, said Smith had ordered him from the church and he wanted to frighten him.

Queen Toasted, Trudeau Roasted

OTTAWA (CP) — With a stirring call to rally around the monarchy, well over 500 people turned out in an Ottawa hotel Tuesday night to form a chapter of the Monarchist League of Canada.

The average age of the participants was somewhat higher than you would get at your normal basketball game, but the enthusiasm was roughly the same.

And while the league is billed as politically nonpartisan, the Trudeau government took its lumps from the main speaker, Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North).

Coates accused the Trudeau government "and the Pearson government before it" of regarding "royal" as a dirty word and "undermining the form of government we have today."

To rousing cheers from the audience — about 75 per cent women — Coates said that the whittling away of Canada's traditions and heritage must be stopped.

He said there is a move afoot to change the name of Dominion Day. "If the Grits had it their way they'd call it Trudeau Day."

Situation Bleak But Not Hopeless

Student Jobs: Co-ordination Is Key

By ROY WRIGHT

Volunteer high school student employment bureaus in the Victoria area should co-ordinate their efforts with the student centre of the Canada Manpower office here, Manpower officials say.

Manager George Bevis, commenting on the setting up this month of a number of groups to find summer jobs for school students, said the efficiency of the groups would be increased if they utilized existing facilities of the Canada Manpower services.

William Rapanos, assistant manager said the Victoria office was willing to provide space, telephones, advertising and advice if the student bureaus requested it.

The summer work situation for both high school and university students looks bleak, Bevis said because of the troubled labor situation in B.C. and the nation wide tight-money situation.

But, he said, if B.C. labor problems are solved soon, more job opportunities will be available to students.

Some high schools have begun to set up employment bureaus in an attempt to find part-time jobs such as baby-sitting and yard work for students.

Oak Bay senior high school has set up it's offices in the school and has a student as a secretary taking work orders for the 40 to 50 students that are registered, Roland Jones, a teacher at the school said this week.

A spokesman for the Mount Douglas high school employment group said that about 30 students have registered with it and most have been able to get part-time work such as house cleaning.

Lansdowne high school opened it's offices Monday but has had no luck in placing any of the 100 students that showed interest in summer employment, a student spokesman for the group said Wednesday.

Mrs. Betty Stewart, a faculty spokesman for the Oak Bay junior high student employment bureau, said it won't be in a position to assign many jobs until the term is officially over June 26.

She said about 130 students had registered for work but they might be forced to take lower wages than the senior high school and university students in order to compensate for their lack of experience.

A student from Esquimalt high school said that a few students tried to set up an employment service at their school but it collapsed because of lack of interest.

Berry-picking, once an almost sure job for high school and university students, has been a poor source of employment this year, said a spokesman for Canada Manpower.

He added that an early frost this year killed many blossoms and the continued cool spring weather made the crop slow in ripening.

He said that with the light snows on Vancouver Island during the winter, the water reserves in many areas are lower than usual, and this might force an early forest closure, affecting those students attempting to find work in the bush.

University students still unemployed are feeling the pressure as many need from $800 to $1,000 in summer earnings to return to classes in the fall, Bevis said.

A spokesman for the University of Victoria Manpower office said that about 2,000 students registered this year but few have returned to check with the office for job opportunities.

She said many of the university students who were able to find work after classes were finished have now been laid off.

Canada Manpower has set up a branch office on Humboldt to handle student employment and has hired seven university students to assist them in the task of finding jobs.

A spokesman for the branch office said the students have contacted over 150 businesses in attempts to find companies willing or able to hire students for the summer.

Bevis said students will have to make the most of the few lower paying, part-time jobs currently available until the situation improves.

Worley smiles at work

His Relief Indescribable

By BILL THOMAS

"It's far worse than a broken heart, an unhappy love affair, or any other kind of pain, real or imagined," said deputy minister of travel Ron Worley in describing the migraine headaches he suffered for years until he was cured by a dramatic surgical technique developed by three doctors at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The operation involved freezing a group of small blood vessels with liquid nitrogen at a temperature of between 120 and 140 degrees below zero.

"I just can't describe the pain migraine headaches bring," said Worley, "but in addition to the actual pain there is the nagging and gnawing feeling inside that one of these dreadful headache pains may strike at any minute.

"It's like something you just can't shake off your back. Just knowing that one of these attacks can come at any time, I just can't describe the mental and psychological relief."

Worley works a frantic day, under constant emotional stress and tension. "Sometimes I would go for a whole week at top pressure, looking forward to relaxing at home over the weekend, only to find that when the time came to relax I was seized with an excruciating headache that brought me to the verge of tears.

"I realize that the operation has not been explained completely to medical satisfaction, but when my surgeon Dr. Norman Cook performed my operation in Royal Jubilee Hospital on May 5, I was sort of a guinea pig in that Dr. M. J. W. Penn filmed my operation for showing to members of the American Neurological Association.

"I admit that when I first told people I was going to get a part of my head frozen in an effort to relieve my migraine problems some of my friends thought I was crazy, but anyone who has suffered a migraine headache knows that anything is worth trying to get relief from the searing pain."

"I was recently in Hollywood and talked to a number of friends including doctors, who just couldn't believe the change they saw in me," Worley said. Several of the physicians in Los Angeles, one of whom treat a number of stars including Marlon Brando, have phoned me asking if they can meet Dr. Cook or read any papers he may have prepared on the technique."

One of the things which most impressed Worley was the fact he was in hospital only two nights.

"I still can't really accept the fact that the pain is gone," Worley said.

The treatment — doctors don't know how or why it works — is carrried out by Cook, a surgeon, in conjunction with neurologists Dr. Robert Peet and Dr. Charles Simpson. The operation has been usd at Royal Jubilee for the past two years but it was not until this week that the medical team was sufficiently satisfied with its results to make the findings public. So far, 55 patients between the ages of 20 and 70 have undergone this surgical treatment for migraine headaches.

The medical team is still working on refinements in the technique and probing for the reason that makes the treatment effective.

Throne Lost By Obesity

PHNOM PENH — The French doctor who sent Prince Norodom Sihanouk abroad for his health says the former Cambodian ruler's obesity probably cost him his county.

Dr. Armand Riche also denied reports that Sihanouk was mentally ill.

"Prince Sihanouk's only problem was his weight," Riche said. "I'd have to send him off to France and have him put in a clinic under lock and key to make him lose weight. It was I who chose the clinic."

Target: Senate, Prices Board

OTTAWA (CP) —The New Democratic Party will make a last-ditch attempt today in the current session of Parliament to abolish the Senate and the prices and incomes commission.

T. C. Douglas, party leader, gave notice Wednesday on the Commons order paper that he will move that the government shut off funds for the commission.

The NDP agrees with the principle of a commission but not with the way in which the present one is operating.

Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, gave notice at the same time of a motion to cut off all funds for the Senate, thus doing away with the upper chamber.

Old-Timer 'Wasn't Lost' Though Big Search On

SWAN RIVER, Man. (CP) — When Phil Toporoski hobbled back into his bush camp on a badly sprained ankle he was a little peeved at the attention he received.

He was greeted like a man returned from dead and was taken immediately to hospital.

"They knew I was coming back, didn't they? I said I was."

Not everyone in that bush camp 210 miles northwest of Winnipeg was sure he would be back.

Phil is pushing 72 and had been missing in dense bush for one week without food, water or gear. He had a pack of matches and the sharp sense of a man who has spent 40 years in lumber country.

An intensive search started June 9 when Toporoski failed to return from his timber cruising activities near Red Deer Lake. The search expanded to involve 20 men and tracking dogs, one aircraft and a helicopter.

"I knew where I was all the time. It's just that they didn't," said Toproski in an interview from his Swan River Hospital bed.

What had happened was that on the afternoon of June 9 he caught his foot between two logs and badly sprained it. He had to recover for several days before starting a painful walk back to camp.

Using cold water from nearby muskeg — the ice is still only 10 inches below the surface — he managed to reduce the swelling as he hobbled home.

He spent three days and two nights at his first campsite because of his injured ankle but on the third day the rains came hard and fast drenching everything including his matches.

"I knew then it was time to get home before I got sick."

Exactly one week after the search started he hobbled back into the bush camp.

Irish Ike Was a Nice, Nice Man

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ike Sinnamon was the friendly corner grocer with the little touch of extra for his customers.

Like Tuesday night.

It took a few minutes. At 6:10, he was rolling on the sidewalk outside of the store with a holdup man's bullet in his abdomen.

Five shots were fired through the side door of the store he tried to lock as two holdup men approached. One broke a glass panel, three ripped into the wood paneling. One struck Sinnamon, 67.

He died two hours later.

He was white, in a predominantly black neighborhood, an Irishman from Ireland, who catered to their needs.

There had been some hectic minutes in the past for the man they called "Ike" or "Mr. Sinnamon." Another holdup shooting where the bullet missed. And a cutting.

"He was a nice, nice man, friendly and courteous," said Mrs. Mary Shepherd, a Negro, who lives a couple of doors up the street.

Police had little to go on. Mrs. Anthony and other neighbors who saw the killers loitering in the neighborhood, described them in the early 20s.

Sinnamon just reopened his store three weeks ago after it was burned out last December. He was hoping to sell it to the city's redevelopment authority.

"We put every cent into the remodelling," his widow said.

Not quite.

There was $2 and some change in Ike's butcher apron. That was from the sausage sale.

Ottawa Corps Preparing Assault on Iron Curtain

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian cabinet ministers have begun an assault on the Iron Curtain.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield is joining the penetration into Communist Eastern Europe. During July he will spend three days each in Yugoslavia, Leningrad and Moscow.

Informants said Wednesday it now is definite that Prime Minister Trudeau will go to Russia in October for one week at the longest.

It is still indefinite whether he will visit the Soviet Arctic. This depends on whether Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien tours that region during his tenatively-planned earlier visit.

Communications Minister Eric Kierans is planning to go to Moscow in September for talks on technology, communications and space. He had planned to go this month, and also to Hungary, but the post office troubles wiped out this schedule. The Hungarian part of the trip has been eliminated.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene may go to Bucharest at any time to provide additional support for Canada's attempts to sell Romania a $100,000,000 nuclear reactor.

Employers' Head: Too Many Pitfalls In Profit-Sharing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A suggestion that British Columbia forest firms use profit-sharing schemes to avoid wage disputes with their employees could cause worse problems, F. G. Peskett, president of the Employers Council of B.C., said Wednesday.

Commenting on a suggestion by Forests Minister Ray Williston, he said the extent of profit-sharing still would have to be bargained for.

Such bargaining probably would be complicated by demands by employees to share in company management because management decisions affect profit and hence the workers' incomes, he said.

Employees might be happy with the scheme when profits are on the increase but would not be when profits are going down.

Such a scheme also could lead to three-way bargaining, because shareholders would also want to have a say in how profits were disbursed, he said.

Jack Moore, B.C. regional president of the International Woodworkers of America, said profit-sharing has never worked and no one has come up with a formula to make it work.

Shulman: —Mafia In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, under police protection because of a threat to his life, claimed in the Ontario legislature Wednesday that two members of the Mafia are registered in the downtown Royal York Hotel under assumed names.

Shulman identified one of them as Jack Poelemans, whom he described as a Cosa Nostra courier from Switzerland. He promised to turn over the name of the second man to Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

Shulman, NDP member for Toronto High Park told the house Tuesday that the Mafia has a "contract out" for his death.

Trouble In Spades

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Melvin Sisson bought a "king of spades" for $200 hoping to complete a "royal flush" worth $1,000 in a current cigarette promotion, but wound up getting burned, he told Vancouver police Wednesday.

Sisson told police he bought what he thought was a king of spades, paying $60 cash and signing a promissory note for $140 more, but was later told by the cigarette company the king was actually a king of clubs, altered with ink. The fraud was the sixth such instance in Vancouver, the company said.

Manson Cultist 'Star' Witness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The prosecution separated its star witness from other defendants in the Tate-LaBianca murder trial Wednesday as Charles Manson and three of his female followers sought in vain to catch her eye.

In a surprise move, 20-year-old Linda Kasabian was brought into the courtroom to have her own trial set back to Aug. 17, by which time she presumably will have given an eyewitness account of what she knows about seven killings charged to the "Manson Family."

Over the heated objections of defence counsel and with Manson and the three young women co-defendants waving and trying to attract Miss Kasabian's attention, Superior Court Judge Charles Older agreed to a postponement of her case.

According to testimony before a grand jury, she stood as a lookout during bloody forages at the homes of actress Sharon Tate and grocery store chain owner Leno LaBianca.

Bill 203: Canada Cracks Down on Foreigners

New Idea in International Fisheries

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern about depletion of fishing resources lies behind federal legislation designed to curb the activities of foreign trawlers on Canada's East and West coasts.

In the process, the government is arming itself with tools for strengthening offshore security and policing offshore pollution.

Bill 203, officially an act to amend the Territorial Sea and Fishing Zones Act of 1964, has been publicly denounced by the United States. Japanese criticism has been made through diplomatic channels and other countries with maritime interests are not happy with Bill 203.

12-Mile 'Sea'

But the government appears intent on pressing ahead to obtain parliamentary approval this session. Federal officials express hope it will speed international law affecting marine resources.

When the bill comes into force, Canada will have a 12-mile territorial sea, compared with the present three-mile territorial zone and contiguous nine-mile fishing zone reserved to Canadian fishermen except for special treaty rights.

Since states do not normally allow foreign fishermen to operate in their territorial sea this aspect of the legislation does not fundamentally change matters.

Innocent Passage

It will, however, enable the government to deal more forcibly with vessels causing pollution off the coasts, and to protect national security by exercising greater control over movement of foreign ships.

Under international law, ships have a right of "innocent passage" through territorial seas, but the coastal state has a right to see that such passage is, in fact, innocent.

The most revolutionary aspect of the bill—and the one that has sparked most interest abroad-would shut off thousands of square miles of Canadian waters to overseas fishing vessels.

It provides for what Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has called "a new idea in international fisheries." This involves closing lines across the entrances to both the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Queen Charlotte Sound.

The delicacy of the move can be gleaned from the fact that many other states have been sending their fishing fleets to the areas concerned for years — in some cases centuries.

Talks Promised

Canada has promised to conduct negotiations on a phased withdrawal with Britain, France, Norway, Denmark, Portugal, Italy and Spain — whose vessels have traditionally fished in the waters affected.

"Perhaps by 1974 they should be out," Davis has said. "... I do not think we are going to ring down the curtain and say, 'You cannot come in any more.'"

Japanese fishermen may for instance be permitted to continue fishing off B.C. for dogfish, which has little market in Canada.

And Canadian officials hint sympathy for Norwegian villagers whose livelihood would be grossly affected if they were denied access to Canada's fishing grounds.

Negotiations with France will be complicated because French fishing rights in some of the waters are covered by treaty.

U.S. Opposed

The country most strongly against the Canadian initiative — the U.S. — stands to lose litle if anything by way of access to fishing resources when the bill goes into effect.

Activities of U.S. fishermen in Canadian waters are covered by treaty and other reciprocal agreements which both sides find advantageous. These are being maintained.

The U.S. opposes the Canadian move for the same reason it has publicly opposed Canada's legislation to establish a 100-mile pollution control region seaward from the Arctic archipelago.

"We are concerned that this action by Canada, if not opposed by us, would be taken as precedent in other parts of the world for other unilateral infringements of the freedom of the seas," Washington said in a statement April 16.

World Court

The statement made clear that the U.S. regards bodies of water such as the Gulf of St. Lawrence as high seas. It said the U.S. was willing to accept a 12-mile territorial limit, but only as part of an international treaty providing freedom of passage through the straits leading to such bodies of water.

Washington has suggested that the dispute be referred to the World Court in The Hague.

Canada, protecting its legal position, has excluded such disputes from its acceptance of the international court's compulsory jurisdiction.

The U.S. takes the same general view of the court's jurisdiction in matters where its national interest could be affected.

Its reservation does not extend to the proposed 12-mile territorial sea, however, since the concept already is well established in international law.

At the heart of the Canadian government's policy is a rapidly growing feeling of alarm that the country's super-abundent salt-water fish resources are in danger from unrestrained operations by foreign trawlers.

Russian Fleets

A fisheries department official said: "Why should we allow those huge Russian fleets to come in and vacuum the Gulf of St. Lawrence, perhaps putting our own little inshore fishermen out of business?"

In 1967 Canada established straight baselines along the east coast of Labrador and along the eastern and southern coasts of Newfoundland.

In 1969 the straight baseline system was further extended to cover the west coasts of Queen Charlotte Islands. But these two land masses were not connected by a line across the entrance to Queen Charlotte Sound.

Now these various gaps are to be filled in. In each case the line to be drawn will be more than 24 miles—the territorial limit doubled for shore-to-shore measurement—and between Vancouver Island and the Queen Charlottes it is likely to be more than 100 miles.

Union Wants More

Proposed federal legislation to protect the coastal fishing industry is a step in the right direction but it doesn't go far enough, Jack Nichols, secretary treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union said Wednesday from Vancouver.

"This is something we have been pressing towards for many, many years," he said. "But it is not the final answer."

He observed that the federal government will use a baseline from headland to headland to work out the 12-mile limit.

"We want the limit taken from a continuous line straight down the coast of B.C. which would make Queen Charlotte Sound, Hecate Strait and Dixon Entrance all Canadian water.

"These bodies would then become internal waters of Canada and foreign fishermen wold have to work outside them," he explained.

He said there are 8,000 members in the union.

He said he would like to see nations recognize that where a species of fish spawns in a certain country, and returns to that country and is harvested to the fullest by that country, it should be considered a natural resource of that country.

This would be a good method of stopping foreign encroachment, he said.

Oil Found Off Ghana

ACCRA (Reuters) — An American consortium has struck oil on the Atlantic continental shelf about eight miles off the coast of Ghana, it was announced Wednesday.

It was the first oil strike in the country.

"It will be some time before we know whether there is oil in sufficient quantities for commercial exploitation, but we are optimistic," said a spokesman for the consortium of Signal Exploration and Development Co., Occidental of Ghana and Amoco Ghana Exploration Co.

Five other consortiums have oil exploration licences from the Ghanaian government.

Jet Crashes, Pilot Killed

MONTREAL (UPI) — A 33-year-old Canadian Forces pilot from suburban Roxboro was killed Tuesday when his CF-5 Freedom Fighter crashed at Lake Mitchinamecus, 140 miles north of Montreal

The body of the pilot, Capt. P. J. Felix, was found in the wreckage, military spokesmen said.

The Canadian plane was on a test flight. The Canadian government is buying 125 of the planes, valued at about $1 million each.

Coronation Street has dropped production for the first time since its twice-weekly run began 10 years ago or so. But never fear, it's only temporary. Filming was stopped when 300 union technicians employed by England's Granada Television quit work in a dispute over extra pay for color jobs. I realize this year's episodes won't be seen here for a couple of years, but C Streeters would be unhappy if the strike wasn't reported.

A quote never to be forgotten: Pierre Juneau, boss of the Canadian Radio-TV Commission, said the CRTC is not trying to build an electronic wall around Canada, but is trying "to allow Canadians to see the world through the eyes of Canadians — not through someone else's eyes." Allow? It still comes out that some Canadians are telling others what to see.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Wednesday's answer — Thor Heyerdahl, who gained his first fame with the trans-Pacific film Kon Tiki, added to it with the Easter Island movie Aku Aku, then quit. And apropos of nothing, Kabul is the capital of Afghanistan. Nice place to visit.

Today's question comes from even deeper in the movie grabbag. Kindly identify the interracial lovers in the 1939 movie The Rains Came and in the 1955 remake The Rains of Ranchipur. Also, who played the teacher and dancer in the excellent English ballet film Red Shoes, which should be on TV more often. Answers Friday.

"If the network news team doesn't show up pretty soon let's just go home."

Thursday Highlights

● C-10:00 p.m. — The BBC series Civilization, which seems to be better each week, enters the Reformation. Kenneth Clark's subjects are Durer, Luther, Montaigne and Shakespeare. Quite an infield — 2, 6.

Thursday Movies

9:00 a.m. — Astonished Heart (1950 Noel Coward, the most refined soap opera ever). Also Celia Johnson, Margaret Leighton. Today's best movies are English, which is often the case — 4.

C-12:45 noon — Young Guns of Texas (sub-par 1962 western). Its only claim to fame is the fact that its stars are kin to stars, to wit, James Mitchum, Jody McCrea, Alana Ladd — 6, 8.

7:30 — No Time for Sergeants (1958 rusticomedy). Andy Griffith, Nick Adams, Myron McCormick. Infrequently hilarious, occasionally funny — 12.

C 9:00 — Where the Spies Are (1966 spy comedy, not very funny). David Niven, Francoise Dorleac, Cyril Cusack. Just think, McCormick, Adams and Dorleac are all dead, which affects me when I'm watching comedies — 7.

11:00 — No title available. Never mind: a goodie is ahead — 13.

C 11:30 — They Won't Believe Me (terribly trite 1947 courtroom trash), Robert Young, Susan Hayward — 7.

11:45 — Naked Edge (poorish 1961 suspense, Gary Cooper's last film). Plus Deborah Kerr, Eric Portman, but a failure — 7.

12:00 — Night To Remember (good 1958 English version of the Titanic tale). Kenneth More, Honor Blackman, David McCallum, many more. Worth seeing, at least once — 6, 8.

1:05 a.m. — Flame of Calcutta (1953, among the worst stinkers ever). Denise Darcel fights oppression and wins; which means you lose — 5.

Thursday Radio

8:00 p.m. — The Life of Beethoven series continues — CBU (690).

8:00 — More of Montreal's vocal competitions — CBU-FM (105.7).

8:05 — Gala Performance has music by Pergolesi, Haydn, Franck, Mozart, Shostakovitch, Lalo — CFMS (98.5).

11:00 — A Winnipeg prom concert has standards by Liszt, Tchaikovsky and Ravel — CBU-FM.

● — Recommended; C — Color.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

Undoubtedly the most tried and trusted methods of play are best in the majority of hands but nevertheless it does sometimes happen that an extraordinary procedure is necessary to achieve the desired result. Usually these procedures are far from difficult in themselves but they tend to get overlooked.

In this deal South was weighed in the balance and found wanting. He failed to perceive the need for an unusual form of play until it was too late.

Vul: N-S

♣ K 7 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	All pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

West led the jack of spades which was covered by the queen and ace. East realized that he would be unable to overruff the dummy if the declarer set out to ruff some clubs, and accordingly he made the best return of a trump.

The trump return proved a great success when West was able to draw three rounds of the suit with the A-Q-x. Declarer was left with only nine tricks and was eventually forced to admit that there was no way of increasing this number to ten.

At that, South could have put the defenders utterly and completely out of business by making an unusual play at trick one. All he had to do was to play low from dummy when West led the jack of spades!

In this case, if East played low and allowed the jack of spades to hold, West would be unable to attack trumps effectively from his side of the table and declarer would obtain one or more club ruffs in dummy. Alternatively, if East overtook the jack of spades in order to return a trump, declarer would make two spade tricks and would not need any club ruffs.

It certainly seems normal to ensure making a spade trick in dummy by covering the jack with the queen, but events proved otherwise. South could well afford to wait for his spade trick until later in the hand, when he could lead the king of spades from dummy and ruff East's ace.

A TRULY HANDSOME SPLIT LEVEL HOME
$35,900
Located among other fine homes, this 12-yr.-old faultlessly constructed home is within easy walking distance of schools, bus, shopping centre and university. The setting is elegant with a long driveway to the rear of the house where we find 2 carports and a garage. Surrounding this fine home is a mixture of decorative shrubs, fruit trees and ornamental trees, a small flower garden with fish pond extends along one side of the front sidewalk. On both sides of the house under the windows brick planters add to the outward appeal. Your acceptance of the home is immediate as you step into the large slate entrance which is separated from the sunken living room by a lovely brick planter and ornate wrought ironwork. The living room is a warm comfortable room with W-W carpeting and floor to ceiling fireplace complete with raised hearth. All eating is in the combination dining room and family room finished in expensive post and beam fashion with beautiful panelling. It has a built-in china cabinet and raised hearth fireplace, sliding glass doors lead from here to a lovely cement patio. The kitchen is galley type with miles of cupboards and a large double oven, built-in range. Off the kitchen is the utility room with its own private toilet. On the upper level 3 excellent bedrooms and vanity bathroom. Downstairs an excellent 4th bedroom and a 20x14 rec. room with full 3-pce. bathroom. Storage galore with easy inside access to remaining 4 ft. basement. An exciting home that demands compliments from all who view it.

TO THE LADIES
This is what you have been looking for. Spacious rooms with all the grace and charm of an older home plus the convenience of all the modern amenities as this house has been brought right up to date with plumbing, heating and wiring and lighting. All this and revenue too. There are two really good suites, with separate entrance which will pay you enough rent to keep up the mortgage payments when you trade in your present cramped quarters as a down payment. There is even room to add a third suite to rent, if you do not require all of the living space yourselves. Full price — $32,500. Phone George Randall, 477-4280 and talk over what you have in mind.

ESQUIMALT

OWN YOUR OWN BALLROOM ON THE WATERFRONT!!!
Here we have a large party pavilion (approx. 45'x22') with huge fireplace and masses of windows enjoying superb views of sea, Gulf Islands and Mount Baker. Standing on almost 3 acres of choice water frontage (200 feet of sandy beach) at Gordon Head, this is indeed something different!!
When you have finished dancing or partying to drown your sorrows from the horrible headaches of today's stock prices, there is an enchanting residence to which you may retreat. 'Tis true 'tis older but 'tis renovated throughout. The floors sag here and there, the plan is sad — but the combination of these factors create the typically English charm! Accomodation includes two bedrooms, two bathrooms (complete with lavatories) large living room and various nooks and crannies. This valuable waterfront land alone is worth the asking

P.S. Although most artists are alleged to be paupers, if you do happen to know of one with money, get he or she to call as the pavilion would made a perfect studio !! Incidentally, there is an exquisite little building in the grounds which consists of nothing more than an extra cedar-lined bedroom — an excellent place in which to stack away your Mother-in-law or to hide your Mistress!

Harmac Dispute

Contract Job Halts Work

NANAIMO — About 350 maintenance workers at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac mill booked off sick Wednesday morning following a short meeting called to hear the results of talks with management Tuesday.

The men, members of Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, staged a brief work stoppage Tuesday in a dispute over awarding of a contract for work on the mill's No. 4 chemical recovery boiler.

The union is charging that mill maintenance crews would normally be doing the work.

A company spokesman said the work stoppage was illegal. The union executive and some shop stewards met with mill management at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

In a statement released Wednesday, president Stan Shewage and secretary Bill Bayliss said Local 8 maintenance personnel feared the removal of their jobs "due to the company's insistence on reducing crews by use of planning departments, natural attrition and increased use of outside contractors to do normal mill industrial changes and work."

"The work in question is modification to a steam boiler which is generally done by contractors according to our past practice at Harmac and at other pulp and paper mills in the province."

He said that no regular maintenance employees of the company would lose work as a result of the contracting out. The union was advised of the decision to contract out that work in January.

He continued: "We have advised the union this afternoon that the wildcat strike is a breach of contract and a violation of the law of the province."

North Cowichan

Angry Ratepayer Demands Firings

NORTH COWICHAN — An angry North Cowichan ratepayer demanded Wednesday at a council meeting that the municipality's two tax assessors should be fired because of incompency.

He was William Boykowich of South Chemainus Highway, who was assured by Acting Mayor Tom Burge that his complaint about an alleged unfair tax assessment would be studied "very closely" by a special committee.

Boykowich said he was "bitter" about unfairness in land assessment. He claimed that while his 2.07 acres were assessed at $800, 100 acres next to him had been assessed at $3,600 and that the owner had sold it recently for $88,000.

Quoting another case, he said a person living on the same road had his 6.36 acres assessed at $800.

An assessment board of appeal recently dismissed Boykowich's land assessment appeal, saying "There is no over-assessment so far as the land is concerned."

The board also said "the improvements are not assessed beyond actual value nor are they inequitably assessed within School District 67 (Ladysmith)."

The board found that the improvements were of "high quality" and that "the appellant happens to be a talented workman, and he frankly admitted that much of the construction was the result of his own labor."

Boykowich charged that his assessment on improvements was similar to those in the higher class residential area of Quamichan Heights subdivision, which he thought was highly unfair.

In reference to the board of appeal hearing, Boykowich took strong exception to the fact that a lawyer was hired and "my money was spent to fight me in court. If I deal with the truth, then I don't need a lawyer."

"I am prepared to go to jail" he said. He quoted several land assessments in his neighborhood, all of which he claimed were lower. He said, "They are all land speculators. I am not saying anything against farmers because they pay high taxes anyhow, but I am referring to those people who plan to make a lot of money when they sell their land."

He said he was not a land speculator. He gave up a good job at Victoria to move to the rural area at Chemainus so his children could have ponies, grow up in the country and not to become "bums." He works at the Crofton pulp mill.

In other business Burge told council he was "extremely pleased" with the mosquito situation at Crofton, and credit should go to the mosquito control committee, to council for adopting the committee's recommendation and to the mosquito control officer.

He said a Crofton resident told him very recently that he only had seen "two mosquitoes."

"Last year at this time we had a protest meeting, and the plague at Crofton was assuming epidemic proportions. We went through a critical time," he said.

Stamps Sign Dual Threat

CALGARY (CP) — Larry Lawrence, a quarterback and halfback from the University of Iowa, has been signed by Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League.

A 205-pounder, Lawrence completed 113 of 231 passes for 1680 yards and 10 touchdowns. His 1969 record also showed he rushed 108 times for 579 yards and five touchdowns.

Hospital Costs Efficiency Team's Target

The provincial government has approved the appointment of a management efficiency team for the Capital Region. The team will attempt to slow the rapid escalation of hospital operating costs.

The announcement, made Thursday by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, said the formation of a Regional Management Engineering Unit here wasn't approved "with the objective of laying-off staff."

He added, however, that it is designed to reduce operating costs in the Capital Region by assisting local hospitals "to make the best use of health care resources available to them."

The new unit, Loffmark said, is the result of a study commissioned by the Greater Victoria Hospital Administrator's Council. It will be comprised of management engineering analysts and their activities will be directed by a special steering committee.

Representatives of all hospitals in the district, including extended care hospitals, will sit on the steering committee together with a representatives of B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

The minister said it is anticipated St. Joseph's Hospital will act as "base" for the new program and provide accommodation for the unit.

The benefits of such a program, Loffmark said, have already been demonstrated by St. Joseph's Hospital, which recently introduced an accelerated bed-use program, and by the Hospital Management Engineering Unit of BCHIS.

BCHIS units will continue to provide efficiency studies for the rest of the province with exception of Vancouver General Hospital which also has its own unit.

Oratory Watered Down

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A quiet, relatively normal graduation ceremony at Newport Harbor high school in this Orange County community turned into brief chaos Wednesday evening as the valedictory speaker began speaking of the "insanity of day-to-day living."

Roberta Magnusson, valedictorian for the class of 1970 was telling the 550 graduating seniors, the band and a bleacher full of parents and relatives "in spite of the insanity of day-to-day living . . . " when it happened.

Sewage Woes Getting Worse

The need for storm water drainage in parts of Colwood and Langford could bring about a change in policy for the Capital Region Board.

Executive director Bill Long, commented Wednesday on a report citing lack of needed services in unorganized areas, and pointed out to the board that it has authority to provide certain services.

"This question of sewage disposal and drainage is going to become more and more of a problem." Long told the regional planning committee.

"On two occasions the board has passed resolutions saying that in these areas they have no intention of becoming a substitute for local government, even though we have the authority to provide works and services.

"This general policy statement we have always explained to people in this area when they approach the board — the answer is getting to be less acceptable," warned Long.

Planner Tony Roberts told the board it has become apparent that serious problems are arising in the unorgainzed areas, primarily due to the lack of a responsible authority and administrative and financial resources to provide needed services.

There are, he said, surface water drainage problems in seven areas in Langford and Colwood.

According to Roberts, problems are also arising over small sewage disposal plants built to treat sewage from various subdivisions. There is no public authority to take over maintainance and repair of the plants once the lots are sold and the developer released from responsibility, Roberts said.

Another problem area in small subdivisions came in park provisions, said Roberts. A number of developers were prepared to dedicate parkland, but there is no authority to develop and maintain them.

The report was received and no action taken.

The Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health is prepared to allow garbage trucks to receive garbage over weekends when the Hartland Road dump is closed, director Leslie Passmore told the public works committee.

He said he had met senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread to discuss the problem of garbage strewn along the road to the dump over the weekends.

The trucks, said Passmore, should be placed in strategic places by municipalities so that individuals could place their garbage there for disposal.

Passmore said he had suggested that other dumps in the Highland area should be reopened with compacting and landfill used, but Whitbread had rejected the idea.

Top RCMP Officer Retires

Irving

Price

Retirement of the head of the RCMP's criminal investigation branch in B.C. and his replacement by a Victoria-born officer were announced Wednesday by officials of the force.

Ending his career with the force is Supt. H. F. Price, who has been officer in charge of the CIB in this province since early 1962. His replacement is Supt. W. B. Irving, a native of Victoria who belonged to the old B.C. Provincial Police force before joining the RCMP.

Price was born at Minnedosa, Man., and joined the RCMP at Winnipeg in 1935. He served in B.C. until he was commissioned in 1956 and was in Ontario until his return to Victoria in 1962. From 1951 to 1956, he was in charge of the RCMP drug squad at Vancouver.

Irving was with the B.C. police from 1939 until 1950, when he became an RCMP member at Haney. He was promoted to commissioned rank in 1959 and has served in Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and B.C., coming to Victoria from command of the Edmonton subdivision.

The transfer of Insp. D. J. Beiersdorfer also was announced. He leaves the position of officer in charge of financial services and supply in Victoria to take up the post of assistant director for services and supply at headquarters in Ottawa.

His replacement in Victoria will be Insp. B. D. Sawyer, officer commanding the subdivision at North Battleford, Sask.

Another RCMP announcement was the retirement of Regina-born Insp. E. A. C. Hertzog as divisional personnel officer in Victoria.

The son of an inspector in the Royal North West Mounted Police, he joined the RCMP in 1933 and was commissioned in 1960, serving in B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Thousands Flock to Drag Gag

Danny La Rue, Color Him Blue

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The glamorous figure in the glittering, skin-tight gown sidles across the stage, delivering double-edged innuendoes in a husky, Mae West drawl. The illusion of a brassy female is complete.

Then, without warning, the voice drops to a masculine level and grates out a raucous Cockney "Wotcher mates!"

The audience roars with appreciative laughter and Danny La Rue, London's latest theatrical favorite, has scored another hit.

His native Ireland would never recognize Daniel Patrick Carroll now, the Cork carpenter's son who has achieved the feat of making "drag" respectable on the British stage. Royalty, the jet set and the brightest stars of show business are fascinated fans of Danny, whose flair for female impersonation, first developed "as a gag" during service with the Royal Navy, has made him the highest-paid performer in the West End.

For six years, Danny La Rue's nightclub on Hanover Square has been the "in" place for connoisseurs of London's cabaret circuit, frequented by such fans as Princess Margaret, Sir Noel Coward, Dame Margot Fonteyn and the Beatles.

The accolade of respectability came in 1968 when Danny performed his drag act in front of the Queen and Prince Philip at a royal command charity benefit.

Now Danny has his own lavish revue-style show at the huge Palace Theatre on Shaftesbury Avenue. Even The Financial Times ran a rave review and the coach-loads from the provincial towns are parked five deep outside.

Last year Danny earned £100,000 ($260,000) and acquired in rapid succession a £30,000 house in fashionable Hampstead, a country place in Sussex, a Bentley, a Mercedes and a cabin cruiser.

At the Palace he is making £3,000 a week and his contract runs for three years.

Danny, now 42, is a phenomenon in British show business. Male impersonators such as Vesta Tilley and Hetty King were a popular feature of the old-time music halls — though Queen Mary never could bring herself to approve — but men dressed up as women didn't win the same acceptance.

Danny La Rue and a wide-open change in taste on the entertainment scene have altered all that. His act, if hardly fit for family audiences, is regarded as good dirty fun by the middle-aged, middle-class married couples who make up the bulk of British theatre-goers.

His humor is deep blue and virtually all the jokes in his new 2½-hour show are variations on a single theme, but that's a British music-hall tradition, too, brought to its smutty zenith by the late Max Miller.

On another level, Danny

La Rue

dazzles his audiences by the sheer virtuosity of his costume changes — in one scene alone he gives devastating impersonations of Barbra Streisand, Shirley Temple, Maw West, Ginger Rogers and Marlene Dietrich, all in the space of a few minutes.

Danny claims it's almost impossible for anyone to take offence at his act, which one critic described as parodying rather than impersonating the female of the species.

"The point is that the whole thing is really a big joke," he says. "Somewhere along the line I never let them forget I'm a man."

He says women get a "strange kick" out of watching him.

"I'm a chap letting birds know that he has caught on to them. Birds know that they are largely an illusion created by men — by the hairdressers, the makeup men and the dress designers. And they know that I know."

Danny is a slim figure just under six feet tall, with hefty shoulders and thick brown hair turning grey. One of a family of six — one brother is a house painter, another in Australia — he lives in his Hampstead home with his sister and mother, who cooks him his favorite Irish stew.

He says he would like to be married and have his own children — "but if you're devoted to your profession it takes a lot out of you."

Italy Gives Davids To Screen Goliaths

ROME (UPI) — The Italian film industry passed out its equivalent of the Oscar Tuesday to the foreign films The Lion in Winter and Midnight Cowboy.

The David of Donatello prize committee chose Liza Minelli as best foreign actress for her performance in The Sterile Cuckoo. Best foreign actor was a tie between Dustin Hoffman in Midnight Cowboy and Peter O'Toole in Goodby, Mr. Chips."

The prize for The Lion in Winter went to producer Martin Poll and for Midnight Cowboy to director John Schlesinger.

On the home front, Sophia Loren was named best actress for her role as the deserted wife in the Italo-Soviet production The Sunflowers.

Fishing Date Moved Up

'Set' Tomatoes

The sex life of the tomato plant is not a complicated affair. The little yellow blossom is a "perfect" flower; this is a botanical term meaning that the blossom has both male and female sex organs in the one flower.

To achieve pollination it is only necessary for pollen to be transferred from the male anthers to the female stigma, just a tiny fraction of an inch away. Given ideal conditions, the pollen may even fall from another to stigma, without benefit of insects.

This being the case, it is hard to understand why it seems so difficult to get the earliest cluster of blossoms to set. The later clusters seem to make fruit fairly readily, but only too often the first blossoms to appear just dry up and fall to the ground leaving no little green tomatoes behind them.

I have never understood to my complete satisfaction just why this should be so. Could be poor weather conditions at the time of the first blossoms, cool nights, a lack of vitality in the plant, or simply because the first clusters come along at a time when the plant is still in a state of shock after being transplanted to the open garden.

In any case, I can't see any point in leaving matters to chance. The thing to do is to make absolutely sure those first blossoms turn themselves into tomatoes by spraying them with a fruit-setting hormone chemical.

This causes seedless tomatoes to form even when atmospheric conditions are all against natural pollination.

Actually, I think it pays to use this stuff throughout the growing season, on every cluster of blossoms, both early and late, as they form. It is just plain good insurance, making sure tomatoes will form whether or not the blossoms are pollinated.

Besides, it seems to me that the artificially-stimulated tomatoes make better eating than the naturally pollinated, with meatier, more solid flesh, fewer seeds and less watery pulp.

This hormone spray isn't something rare and hard to come by, as practically every garden shop and centre selling garden chemicals will have a stock of it. There are a dozen different brands on the market under such trade names as Blossom-Set, Tomato-Fix, Seed-Less-Set and Fixit.

Nor are these preparations expensive. One ounce — enough to make a quart of spray — sells for 50 to 70 cents, depending on the brand, or you can buy an aerosol bomb of the stuff for about $1.50.

Don't spray too soon, but wait until the youngest blossom in the cluster is fully open and the oldest is beginning to wilt slightly.

The spray should be applied to the blossoms only rather than to the whole plant, and it is best to shoot at a slight upward angle, directing the spray so it hits the undersides of the blossoms as well as the centre sex organs. The little green tomatoes should start to form within a week after spraying.

The aerosol bomb is the easiest way to apply the spray as there is no mixing or filling to do — just push the little red button on top of the pressurized can. If you mix your own spray, though, you'll find the regular garden sprayer is far too big and clumsy for such a delicate job and such precision application.

It is best to find some substitute which will deliver a fine, misty spray over a very small area; an old perfume atomizer or nasal spray works well, and until I treated myself to an aerosol bomb I used a little plastic squeeze bottle that originally contained an underarm deodorant.

What Is a Father?

Sunday is Father's Day and it is not too late to ask: "What is a father?"

A father is someone who comes into the house at the end of the day and is greeted by his wife with the question, "Do you want to hear what your children did today?"

A father is the person who waits up all night until his daughter comes in from a date, and goes right to sleep as soon as his son goes out.

A father is the person the children appeal to when their mother says they can't stay up at night.

He is also the one the mother refers any problems to that she doesn't want to decide, with, "Ask your father."

A father is the one who gives children the money to go to a drive-in, where they spend the evening complaining that he doesn't understand them.

A father is the person the name of the car is registered in that his son wants to borrow every night.

A father is someone who can't stand loud rock music blasting from the bedroom at midnight and who is always shouting, "Turn it off!"

He is the person who is called to school during the height of his work day to hear that his son or daughter was caught smoking in the washroom.

A father is someone who doesn't trust any boy who takes his daughter for a drive.

He also is someone who can't fathom why they're not impressed that he lived throught a depression or started with nothing.

A father is the dolt on TV who is constantly being outwitted by everyone in the family.

A father can't understand what the big attraction is to pot, and why the kids are turned off by alcoholic beverages.

A father is a person whom his young daughter wants to marry if she can just get rid of her mother.

One of the main functions of a father is to see that his son gets a haircut.

A father is the one blamed by his wife for (A) being too permissive, (B) too strict, (C) not caring enough, (D) taking their side against her.

A father is someone who has no idea what's happening to the younger generation and is certain they will make a hash of everything.

A father is the party whom his college son or daughter wires when they want money to go to a demonstration to protest everything the father has worked for.

A father comes in all different colors, sizes and shapes. Believe it or not, he has strengths and hangups and pride and guilt just like everybody else.

Scientists threaten that as artificial insemination methods keep improving, there will soon be no need for fathers.

This would be a great loss to the world. There are very few people who would want to see fathers, with all their faults, go the way of the bald eagle.

Star Proud Mum

SHEILAH GRAHAM

When I was in Italy, I went to Padua, to visit Sophia Loren. She was working nearby with Marcello Mastroianni in The Priest's Wife, a provocative title, especially in connection with Sophia who has had problems with the Catholic church because of her marriage with Carlo Ponti, whose previous wife is still living.

I found her in a caravan dressing room on the grounds of a beautiful and very old villa. She immediately, at my request, showed me the latest photographs of her son Carlo.

"Strangely," she smiled, "I just happen to know where they are," and she dived into a brief case and produced the pitcures, dwelling adoringly on each one. "He speaks now," she said proudly. "He loves me to stroke his arms. When I do, he murmurs, 'Again.' "

The boy is brought to the set every day by his nurse for a morning visit with his mother. He is usually asleep when she leaves for the set. The senior Carlo is working in Rome but visits his family in the north every weekend. They are staying at the fine Orologia hotel, famed for it's mud baths and hot springs, and also for the fact that Napoleon stopped there between campaigns. I can vouch for the food, the best I ever tasted anywhere.

Did Sophia believe that priests should marry? In the film, she has a love affair with a priest who wants to marry her. "I believe this should be left to the individual. If a priest wants to marry, he should. If he does not, well there is no problem."

What did she think of the current legislation in favor of divorce in Italy? "It does not affect me now," she replied without bitterness, "although at one time I would have been pleased. Yes, I am in favor of divorce, if a marriage has disintegrated.

Was she planning to have more children? "Oh yes, in between making films I will have vacations. When this film is over, we are all going to stay with Tito on his summer vacation island, Brioni. We have been there before and it is lovely."

I have not yet seen Sophia's previous film, Sunflower, also with Mastroianni. It has been released in Italy but not yet seen in North America. "I hear it is doing well in Italy," I said. "Doing well? It is a great success. I consider it the best film I have ever made, including Two Women, for which she won the Oscar. "Every picture I have made with Marcello," she concluded, "has been successful."

I was told the story of The Priest's Wife by Rissi, the rotund director. I would bet on the success of this one.

Groups Learn Best

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Those who know group dynamics realize that vastly more important than appeals through logic or lectures, we communicate best; and get better decisions through group efforts.

Something a group itself will do, rather than have done to it, can transform an impending change from a misfortune to be resisted, to a positive program willingly undertaken.

One serious student of such question writes: "Much of the anxiety and disorganization which accompanies changes, is due to the serious dislocation of the social framework — that serves both as a guide to action, and as a reference system for meaning."

Consider for example the problem of a company which wants to introduce a new, large electronic machine into one of its key departments. The introduction of the machine is bound to shake up quite a few jobs.

If the company installed it without prior discussion with the workers, and if they arrived, say, on a Monday morning and were shocked to discover it in operation, the whole organization might very well fall apart.

But if the company were wise it would attempt to develop a group decision, rather than a unilateral course of action.

All efforts should be undertaken which would explain the machine, indicate the short and long term results, interpret to the workers just what was really at stake.

And after time for preliminary investigation and discussion, then allow the group to accept the idea as its decision.

Until the machine is "digested" and its place accepted, the group - approach offers the workers a measure of security through the sharing of control and the sharing of anxiety until a new normalcy is arrived at.

Approaching significant problems through the medium of "group dynamics" is something we have still to understand.

For centuries the ancient tutorial system at Oxford and Cambridge concentrated on one student at a time. During the Second World War the system necessarily broke down, and it was necessary to deal with groups — of five or six at a time.

To everybody's surprise, it was discovered that group instruction was superior to private instruction.

In general, we learn best and excel more if we are able to work together in groups. After all, the purpose of education is to teach us how to live in society.

If, the very process of learning and deciding can be socialized, we move from the isolation and loneliness of a rugged individualism to a life based upon sharing and caring, together.

Inflation Fought By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon delivered a stern lecture to business and labor Wednesday, urging them to curb price boosts and wage demands. To back it up, he created two commissions and a new "inflation alert" system to spotlight excessive increases.

"The fight against inflation is everybody's business," Nixon said in a United States-wide radio and television broadcast.

"If you act against the national interest, if you contribute to inflation in your price and wage demands, then you are acting against your own best interests and your customer's best interest."

Nixon's words were the strongest of his presidency and appeared to mark another step away from his earlier policy of not seeking to influence industry's prices or labor's wage settlements.

It was the first time he had gone so far as to set up an entirely new mechanism for helping control inflation, which is emerging as a crucial issue of the November congressional elections — in which the Republicans have hopes of capturing control of Congress.

The president's steps received a mixed reaction in congress, and drew praise from some Democrats.

His tone was optimistic. He said the U.S. is succeeding in its tasks of converting from a wartime to a peacetime

Job Insurance Aim: $100 Weekly

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey Wednesday unveiled an unemployment insurance white paper seen in part as a counterweight to government planners interested in putting slack in the economy to cure inflation.

The white paper calls for vastly broadened and increased benefits for the unemployed at a time when the federal government is emphasizing economic restraint, a policy which runs the risk of creating unemployment.

● New job insurance plan reflects work instability. Page 15

Of government planners committed to the restraint idea, Mackasey said his white paper "will give them something to think about." His comment came in an interview after he tabled the 8,500-word document in the Commons chamber.

Under the new plan the government would have to absorb the entire extra charge on the unemployment insurance fund should the unemployment rate rise above a national, seasonally-adjusted average of 4% of the work force.

For each .1 per cent escalation in the rate, the government would need to pay out an estimated $12,000,000—a sobering consideration, perhaps, for members of the government prepared to accept a relatively high rate of unemployment in the fight against inflation.

The white paper changes also would increase maximum insurance benefits to $100 a week from $53 and reduce eligibility requirments to a minimum of eight employment weeks in a year from 30. Coverage, meanwhile, would be extended to all but self-employed members of the work force, adding 1,160,000 contributors to the fund for a total of 6,500,000.

The new plan would be entirely self-financing at an unemployment rate of less than 4 per cent and the government's liability would be sharply reduced from the $175,000,000 it now contributes to the fund annually.

Where the reforms in effect now, however, they would mean that the 5.6-per-cent national rate of unemployment in April would cost the

By DON COLLINS

Vancouver Island's turn in the rotating mail strike came Wednesday — along with other communities across Western Canada — and strike leaders in Victoria and Vancouver were so pleased with the results they said they feel there may be no need for an overall national strike.

Union officials said mail service would return to normal today.

Jim McCall of Vancouver, strike director for the Council of Postal Unions in the coastal region, said:

"The rotation strike method (separate cities or sections of the country on a 24-hour basis) has been so effective there just may be no need for one nationwide strike."

Stan Darlington, president of the Victoria local of the Canadian Union of Postal Employees, said the strike in

Sniper Fire Rips Miami

MIAMI (UPI) — Authorities clamped a strict curfew on nearly half the city of Miami Wednesday night and blocked several main thoroughfares through a black district. But sporadic sniper fire, looting and rock throwing broke out for the third consecutive night.

County police reported a market in the curfew area was raided. Sniper bullets hit a police patrol car. No one was reported injured in the outbreak.

One police car was pinned down briefly by a sniper with a rifle. A food market was set on fire and firemen were bombarded with rocks and bottles. Patrol cars were sent in to protect the firemen.

One car was set on fire and city police reported difficulties enforcing the curfew in two areas where crowds of 50-100 blacks gathered.

"It's relatively quiet in comparison to last night," reported a police spokesman.

At the height of the disturbance early Wednesday, Miami City Manager Melvin Reese declared "a state of emergency" and ordered an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew over most of the northwest section of the city and in the Coconut Grove area southwest of downtown.

The limits of the curfew were reduced slightly during the day by Reese and supplemented by another curfew order from Wilson Purdy, county public safety director and sheriff.

The orders prohibited the sale or display of weapons, alcoholic drinks and the sale of inflammables such as gasoline except into the tank of motor vehicles.

There were 36 persons injured in the first two nights of violence, including five people shot and 33 arrested.

Police exchanged gunfire with snipers throughout the night, and two men were critically injured, George Curtis, 18, suspected of being a sniper, and L. C. Morris, 42, owner of a contracting firm who was shot by police while on the roof of his firm's warehouse. Another man also shot with Morris was not so badly injured.

U.K. Vote Changes From Shoo-In To Cliffhanger

LONDON (UPI)—British party leaders Wednesday threw everything into a final battle for votes amid growing Conservative confidence that warnings of impending economic crisis and devaluation may at last be striking home.

Britons vote today in a parliamentary general election to decide whether Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party or Edward Heath's Conservatives will govern for the next five years.

But party strategists could not explain why some gave him more than a 12 per cent lead and others only 2 per cent. The confusion was increased by a series of local polls that indicated the Conservatives may be catching up or even may have overtaken Labor's lead in some key voting districts.

Heath at his final campaign news conference acted more relaxed and confident than he has for days. His campaign manager, Anthony Barber, said his own reports from 50 key areas he has visited indicated the Conservatives still could win.

Home Secretary James Callaghan said, however, "I have every confidence Harold Wilson will continue to be prime minister of this country."

But British commentators said the economic crisis issue may well have turned an apparent shoo-in victory for Wilson into a cliffhanger.

Kidnappers Covered By Clan-Type Hoods

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — West German Ambassador Ehrenfried von Holleben said Wednesday night he was abducted by persons wearing Ku Klux Klan-type hoods, and was chloroformed and stuffed into a wooden box while being driven to the kidnappers' hideaway.

Speaking at a news conference at his residence, the 61-year old career diplomat said, "I never saw my kidnappers because they were always masked.

"They looked like the masks of the Ku Klux Klan so you could not see anything."

The ambassador was kidnapped from his car last Thursday by a group of leftists as he was driving home from the embassy. The kidnappers shot and killed a federal police officer assigned to guard him and wounded another policeman.

Von Holleben was released Tuesday night after the Brazilian government freed 40 political prisoners and flew them to Algeria.

Asked if his kidnappers explained why they chose to abduct him, the ambassador said, "They informed me that they had chosen me because I was the ambassador of a country which did a lot in Brazil and therefore the Brazilian government would be entrusted not to harm the friendly relations between our two countries."

Meanwhile, a nationwide search was started Wednesday for the kidnappers. Airports, bus depots and rail stations were watched and roadblocks set up on access roads to both Rio and Sao Paulo.

Another upshot of the kidnapping was that it has thrown a major scare into an already-frightened diplomatic corps in Brazil. As one diplomat said Wednesday, "We're afraid it can be all repeated again at any moment."

Postal Powwow Still Deadlocked

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators reported no progress Wednesday as the federal treasury board and the Council of Postal Unions attempted to break their deadlock in contract negotiations.

The parties spent the morning discussing differences over statutory holidays, and were also reported to have probed other issues.

Rotating strikes called by the postal unions hit British Columbia hardest.

An unscheduled walkout in Montreal ended after a meeting was scheduled to settle issues of using temporary labor to clear backlogs and the lack of air conditioning in the city's main post office.

Calgary Lottery Aids Arts

CALGARY (CP) — The provincial government has given approval in principle to a lottery to raise money for the performing arts in Calgary, businessman Harry B. Cohen said Wednesday.

The beneficiaries of the lottery would be the Calgary Philharmonic Society, Theatre Calgary and Five Corner Productions. Cohen said details on the size and draw date will be submitted to Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart.

Abandoned Salt Mine Could Be First N-Bin

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission announced Wednesday tentative selection of an abandoned salt mine near Lyons, Kan., for the nation's first underground radioactive waste repository.

Mercury Pollution Ruins Whale Meat

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — Thousands of cans of whale meat will have to be destroyed at the Northwest Territories community of Rankin Inlet because of mercury content nearly twice the level accepted by the federal government for human consumption.

The territorial government was told the cans must be destroyed because the meat contained .99 parts per million of mercury.

Acceptable level for the federal health department is between .05 and .5 parts per million.

Canadian Vessel to Probe Loss to West Coast Boats

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The fisheries department is preparing a companion for the Russian fishing fleet when it makes its annual appearance off the western shore of Vancouver Island this summer.

A fisheries research board vessel, the G. B. Reid, is being fitted out to fish alongside the Russians and obtain first-hand information on the size and content of the Soviet haul.

The object, officials say, is to secure information rather than to plan action against the Russians, who operate outside the 12-mile Canadian territorial limit now being enacted by Parliament.

As far as possible, equipment identical to that used by Soviet trawlers will be employed, though trawl nets from the G. B. Reid will be lowered over the side rather than over the stern.

There has been increasing concern on the West Coast

about operations of the Soviet fleet which moves into offshore fishing banks each year for several months.

Though the Russians have been thought to be primarily interested in ocean perch and halibut, British Columbia fishermen suspect they are also taking sizable quantities of free-swimming salmon, thereby possibly depleting stock available to inshore fishermen.

There also is an underlying anxiety that whatever the Russians are taking, the great size of their catch may be upsetting the natural balance among salmon, perch, halibut and other species such as herring.

Canadian authorities have no way of knowing the exact mix of fish the Russians are catching. In the past, when observation planes have flown over the Soviet fleet, tarpaulins have been drawn over the catch.

Public opinion on the coast can be gauged by the fact that 33,000 Vancouver Islanders signed a petition earlier this year calling for Canadian fisheries control to the limits of the continental shelf.

The petition was presented to Liberal MP David Anderson (Esquimalt—Saanich), who in turn presented it to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Trudeau visited the island's west coast with Anderson last weekend and talked to some of the people who fear their livelihood may be jeopardized by the activities of the Soviet fleet.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has rejected the suggestion that Canada should unilaterally appropriate the area of the continental shelf, which goes out 100 miles and more from land, for exclusive exploitation by Canadian fishermen.

However, he believes that the coastal state should have primary responsibility for management and conservation of fish resources out over the shelf. Canada may move at the next law-of-the-sea conference to have this concept accepted in international practice.

Streaking Shamrocks Down Burrards Again

By KEVAN HULL

Ken Alexander broke out of his slump Wednesday to lead Victoria Shamrocks to a 15-11 victory over Vancouver Burrards in a tempestuous Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena.

The burly forward, who tied Nirmal Dillon for the club lead last season with 31, scored four goals and picked up three assists to lead the Rocks to their second victory in two nights over the Burrards.

The win, their third in four games, moved the third-place Shamrocks to within six points of Burrards and New Westminster Salmonbellies, who meet last place Coquitlam tonight and Saturday.

Wednesday's game was a far cry from te fast, clean contest in Vancouver the previous night, when Shamrocks romped to an 18-8 win with only 22 minutes in penalties between the clubs.

Referees Jim Follis and Barry Ballance had their hands full at Memorial Arena, assessing a total of 85 minutes, 43 of them to Shamrocks.

Both the public-address system and time clock went on the fritz to add to the confusion of the players and referees in what started out to be a fast-paced, clean game.

The score was 3-3 after the first period, thanks to some more outstanding goalkeeping by Victoria's George Grover, but was no contest after that.

Alexander put Shamrocks ahead to stay at 47 seconds of the second period, made it 5-3 midway through the period and then set up Tom Churchill for the 6-3 goal.

Rocks came out of the period with an 8-5 lead and boosted it to 15-7 before easing up in the final six minutes.

THEY GOT MAD

Play became more chippy as the margin widened, culminating in a butting and kicking battle between Brian Ansley of Vancouver and Frank Alexander of Shamrocks late in the third period. Both received match penalties.

For Ken Alexander it was the first time he had scored more than one goal since his three goals in the 15-14 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs, May 23.

Brothers Ranjit and Nirmal Dillon both got five points to leave Nirmal one point ahead of his older brother in the league scoring race. Ranjit scored three times and Nirmal, who has 49 points, twice.

PENALTIES HELP

Churchill also scored twice for Shamrocks, who got six of their goals on power play and four of them while shorthanded.

Champion Tops Field Schwantje Qualifies

PITT MEADOWS — Defending-champion Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver's Marine Drive, won medal honors in the B.C. men's amateur golf championship Wednesday, shooting a 70 in the last round to finish the 72-hole qualifying test with 288.

Roxburgh scored to a 76 in the first of Wednesday's two rounds and was within one stroke of being caught by Carl Schwantje, a youngster from the Victoria Golf Club.

STROKE AWAY

Schwantje started the final day with a 73 to pick up three strokes on the leader but the long-hitting Victorian finished with a 72 which left him in third place at 291.

A stroke ahead of Schwantje was Neil Crofton of Vancouver, who moved past Schwantje with a last-round 70.

Six of the eight who qualified for the match play which will decide the provincial honors were Vancouver golfers, the only "outsiders" being Schwantje and Gary Clinton of Seattle, who meet today in one of the quarter-final matches.

Veteran John Russell finished fourth with a 294 after Wednesday rounds of 73 and 74. Then Cake Mike Buckley, Bert Tiechurst and Clinton at 295. Larry Haddock and Mark Daniel of Vancouver finished in an eighth-place tie at 296 and had to play off for the eighth qualifying berth.

FOUR HOLES

It took four holes. They halved the first two in pars and the third with bogeys before Haddock won with a par three on the fourth hole.

Victory put Haddock in against Russell in the quarter-finals. Other matches today are betweenRoxburgh and Ticehurst and Crofton and Buckley.

DAVE CAME CLOSE

Jack Frank of Campbell River and Ron Howard of Victoria, other Vancouver Island golfers who made the 36-hole cut, finished at 304 and 305, respectively. Frank finished 76-78 and Howard 74-78.

NHL to Choose Oakland's Owner

MONTREAL (CP) — Two bids for the financially-troubled Oakland Seals National Hockey League franchise will be heard by the league governors at a special meeting in New York June 29.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said Wednesday the league now is in a position to choose who should operate the franchise.

DATE CHANGED

Previous reports had indicated the meeting would be held in Montreal June 26-27.

Jerry Seltzer, the Roller Derby king, and two unnamed partners have offered $4,500,000 for the Seals, while Charles O. Finley, owner of Oakland Athletics of baseball's American League, has offered $4,100,000.

Finley's offer was found "commercially reasonable" Tuesday by Judge Robert H. Schnacke of San Francisco Superior Court.

The Seals were sold a year ago by San Francisco Seals Ltd., to Trans-National Communications Inc. of New York for $3,400,000.

TNC Inc. defaulted on payments and Judge Schnacke ruled the Seals be returned to the club's original owner, Barry Van Gerbig, for resale to Finley.

IT WORKED

But Trans-National claimed Finley's bid was too low, filed a bankruptcy petition and obtained a restraining order in a United States federal court to prevent any sale until Seltzer was considered.

Cardinals May Be Ailing But Not When Bob Pitches

St. Louis Cardinals, National League champions in 1967 and 1968, are having troubles for a second straight year but there is nothing wrong with Bob Gibson.

The fireballing righthander flirted with the first no-hitter of his brilliant career Wednesday before settling for a one-hit, 8-0 win over San Diego Padres.

Before that, the 34-year-old veteran was virtually untouchable. He had struck out 10 and had faced the minimum number of 23 hitters, Nate Colbert being wiped out by a double play after a fifth-inning base on balls which at the time was all that stood between Gibson and a perfect game.

Gibson, now 8-3 for the season and winner of six in a row, wound up with 13 strikeouts. It was his second one-hitter, the first coming against Philadelphia in 1965.

CUBS GAIN

Chicago Cubs gained a game in the Eastern Division, clobbering San Francisco Giants, 6-1, while Cincinnati Reds bounced back to end New York Mets' win streak at four games.

Paul Popovich and Ernie Banks both hit two-run homers and Ken Holtzman turned in a strong pitching job for the Cubs.

Trailing, 2-4, after seven innings, the Reds tied it in the eighth on a two-run homer by Lee May and won it when pinch-hitter Hal McRae hit a bases-loaded single in the ninth.

PURSUERERS WIN

Atlanta's second-place Braves and the third-place Los Angeles Dodgers were also Western Division winners.

The Braves scored three runs in the seventh inning and one in the eighth to slip by Montreal Expos, 6-5. Claude Osteen got out of two early jams and carried on to pitch the Dodgers to a 4-0 win over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dock Ellis, who pitched a no-hitter last week, didn't yield a hit until the fourth inning. The Dodgers got to him for a run then and scored twice more in the seventh.

ORIOLES LOSE AGAIN

Baltimore Orioles continued their skid in the American League, taking a 5-1 trimming from Milwaukee Brewers.

It could have cut Orioles' Eastern Division lead to a single game but New York Yankees ran into trouble with a rookie pitcher and had their win streak snapped at six games by losing, 3-6, to Chicago White Sox.

Jerry Janeski, who lasted until the eighth inning to gain credit for his sixth victory, drove in three runs with a bases-loaded single and a squeeze bunt.

Detroit Tigers, who will have ace-righthander Denny McLain off the suspended list on July 1, continued to sneak up by outscoring Oakland Athletics, 9-7.

The Tigers made it despite six errors and 10 Oakland hits off four pitchers who combined for a total of four throwing errors.

Light-hitting Ken Szotkiewicz, connecting with two mates on base, and Jim Northrup hit home runs for the Tigers. Northrup's four-baser came in the seventh inning and ended a scoreless skein at 27 consecutive innings for Oakland reliever Mudcat Grant.

Quarry Upsets Foster

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Quarry moved himself back into the middle of the heavyweight picture Wednesday night by stopping previously unbeaten Mac Foster on a technical knockout in 2:39 of the sixth round at Madison Square Garden.

Foster weighed 210, Quarry 196 pounds.

Foster, an ex-Marine from Fresno, Calif., who had won all of his 24 previous fights by knockouts, was dropped through the ropes on the ring apron by a right hand punch after a wild barrage by Quarry. The referee stopped the bout after the count had reached three.

Curved Bluelines To Get Trial Run

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP) — The curved blueline will make its debut on a trial basis in exhibition games in the International Hockey League next season, president Bill Beagan announced Wednesday.

Beagan said the lines will be curved back so that the wingers would be a stride ahead of the centre going into the opposing area.

"I've worked the lines in the National Hockey League and I've seen thousands of offsides by a foot or less," he said. This should speed up play by cutting down on the offsides."

Another innovation next season is the making of face-masks mandatory for all goalies. The IHL made helmets compulsory for other players last season.

'Bloody Fool' Winner Over 'Communist Pig'

LONDON (AP) — Tennis stars Frew McMillan of South Africa and Alexander Metreveli of Russia swapped insults and a woman umpire walked off the court during a match at the London grass court championships Wednesday.

McMillan won the stormy match 9-7, 6-4. The trouble started over a disputed line call at 6-6 in the first set.

As the two men changed ends for the next game, Metreveli shouted across the net: "Bloody fool."

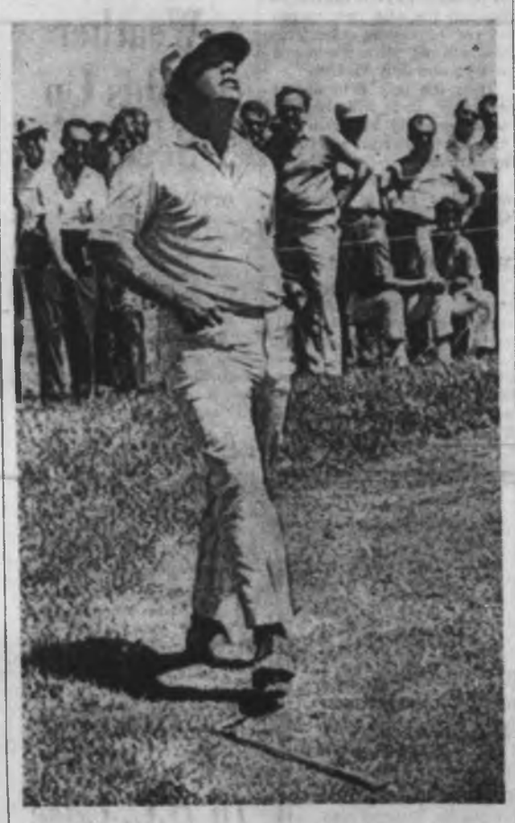

McMillan was heard to say: "Communist pig."

Later McMillan walked over to the umpire, Mrs. Dorothy Cavis-Brown, pointed to a group of Russians who were talking behind the umpire's chair, and said, "Will you please clear these people out?"

The umpire on an adjoining court, where American stars Marty Riessen and Stan Smith were playing, looked over and shouted, "Will you please all behave?"

The argument went on and a linesman said to Mrs. Cavis-Brown: "Would you like me to take over?"

Mrs. Cavis-Brown, one of Britain's veteran tennis umpires, nodded, climbed down from her seat and walked off.

Denford Electric handed Bate Construction its second loss in the last three games by beating the Victoria Major Men's Softball League leaders, 3-1, Wednesday night at Central Park.

Bates have managed only five runs in their last four games but good pitching enabled them to break even with 1-0 and 2-1 victories. However, the two defeats have narrowed their lead over second-place Molsons to one game.

Rick Rawnsley held Bates to four hits and scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth inning. With the score tied, 1-1, Rawnsley reached base on a fielder's choice, stole second base and scored on Pete Isaacson's double.

Mix Up a Bit of Hackett, Chaplin and Hope And You Get a Funny Fellow Who's No Joke

By MILTON RICHMAN

Everybody knows Lee Trevino is the nearest thing in the hemisphere to Bob Hope. He's funny. Naturally funny.

Everything about him is funny including the name by which those in his gallery go by, Lee's Fleas.

Lee Trevino's jokes usually are home-made. Fresh, never stale. His general build reminds you a lot more of Buddy Hackett than Rock Hudson and when you hear some of the situations he has been in during his lifetime he is reminiscent of nobody so much as the perpetually muddled, mixed up Charlie Chaplin who was so familiar to all movie-goers. But the one thing you have to give Lee Trevino, that amusing happy-go-lucky son of poor Mexican parents, he sure knows his way around a golf course.

That's not all he knows either. He also knows there's a time to be serious and when Lee Trevino gets serious and starts talking about a number of things, say even something like what the U.S. Open means to him, he has a way of making the other golfers sound as if they're talking with potatoes in their mouth. When Lee Trevino gets serious he suddenly becomes inordinately articulate and then he isn't so funny anymore, Ha, Ha.

"I think," he says, "the United States Open is the greatest tournament in the world. It's called the U.S. Open because everybody who carries a golf bag and wants to qualify regardless of what his background is, or where he comes from or if he's got a (PGA) card or hasn't got a card, he has a right to play in this thing. And if he's good enough to win, then he's good enough to win."

Without saying so, Lee Trevino is saying look at me!

The most noticeable aspect about Trevino since he came to Rochester, N.Y., two years ago with only one shirt, the same one he had on his back, and won the U.S. Open is that he hasn't changed a speck since then.

"The only change I've noticed is that people recognize me more," he says. "I'm having the time of my life. I've never been the type person who watches what he says and I don't think I'll ever be. Wait-a-minute-now. Yeah, I have changed a little. Before I won the U.S. Open all I ever drank was beer. Now I drink scotch. Sometimes. I still drink a lotta beer though. I haven't really changed. I don't think I ever will."

Whips Ease Hurt For All-Out Fan

His money was returned Tuesday with an invitation to become a weekend celebrity in Winnipeg, new home of the International League team.

Christopher J. Parker of suburban West Seneca will make the trip as the guest of the Winnipeg Whips management. He has been invited to participate in a parade through the city's main streets, take sight-seeing trips and attend three Whips' games.

Italy in Spectacular Win To Earn Chance at Brazil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Italy defeated West Germany, 4-3, Wednesday night in a nerve-tingling match in which Gianni Rivera got the winning goal in extra time to send the Italians into the final of the World Cup soccer championships Sunday against Brazil.

In the other semi-final, Brazil defeated Uruguay 3-1 at Guadalajara.

Both Brazil and Italy have won the Jules Rimet trophy twice—Brazil in 1958 and 1962 and Italy in 1934 and 1938.

No matter who wins, therefore, it means the end of the present trophy. The rules state that any team winning the championship three times has the right to take the cup home for keeps.

Mexico, as host country, has offered to provide a new trophy. The International Football Federation (FIFA) will debate the issue Tuesday.

The scene is set for one of the most enthralling finals in the 40-year history of the championship—a European-Latin American affair between two superbly fit and talented teams.

The final will be played at Aztec Stadium.

Brazil's victory over Uruguay, after trailing 1-0, was completely overshadowed by the epic staged by Italy and West Germany before a crowd of 90,000 at the Aztec Stadium here.

About 80,000,000 people in more than 50 countries watched on television a contest that undoubtedly will go down as the most exciting match ever seen in the championships.

The stadium erupted in wild cheering and the match went into 30-minute extra time.

It looked as though the Germans would go on to win when Gerhard Mueller scored in the 95th minute.

Now it was 2-1 for Germany and the noise from the fans seemed to thunder all over Mexico City.

Five minutes later Tarsisio Burgnick scored for Italy tying it up again.

Then Italy shot ahead in the 110th minute, star left winger Luigi Riva scoring.

There were fears that this great match would end in a tie.

If that had happened the team to advance would have been decided by the drawing of lots.

But Rivera came storming through in the 111th minute to settle the issue.

When the two hours of drama were over, players of both teams fell to the ground—at the end of their strength.

Then the Germans congratulated the Italians.

It was the 14th international match between the two countries. The Italians now have won nine games, the Germans two and three ended in a draw.

In Guadalajara, Uruguay took the lead in the 15th minute on a goal by Luis Cubilla. Clodoaldo evened it for Brazil in first-half extra time allowed due to stoppages of play due to injuries.

The ninth world soccer championships goes into the final without a single player being sent off by a referee. That in itself makes history.

With West Germany's 3-2 victory over defending champion England in the quarter-finals, Wednesday's dramatic clash between Italy and West Germany, Mexico's feat in reaching the quarter-finals for the first time in its history, plus a dozen other incidents, the championships will be remembered as one of the best since it all started in 1930 in Uruguay.

Mexican Hostility Bothers Ex-Champs

LONDON (AP) — England's defeated World Cup soccer champions arrived home to a rousing reception Wednesday and said they couldn't understand why they weren't liked in Mexico.

As 200 fans waved banners and cheered, Bobby Charlton told reporters the hostility of the Mexico public had had an affect on the players.

"I couldn't understand it," he said. "We were not a dirty side — but I think the Mexicans wanted a change in the world champions."

On manager Sir Alf Ramsey's uneasy relations with the Mexican press, Charlton said: "I don't see why he should have co-operated with them more than he did. One thing you can say is that Alf is not two-faced."

Ramsey strode off the plane into a brush with reporters. He refused to talk and waved aside a microphone snapping: "Turn that thing off."

Ramsey said: "I have had a very long journey and I am very tired."

Both Medallists Among Last Four

Co-medallists Shirley Naysmith of Gorge Vale and Dale Shaw of Glen Meadows have reached the semi-finals of the City and District Ladies Golf Championship along with Margaret Todd and Dalma Mann of the host Victoria club.

Mrs. Naysmith, Miss Shaw and Mrs. Todd continued their impressive play Tuesday with comfortable victories for the second straight round.

LONE SURPRISE

Unheralded Mrs. Mann needed to go to the last hole to defeat Lil Thirlwell of Uplands, a former finalist, 1 up.

Miss Shaw, 23, who is currently running second in the qualifying tests for the ladies' inter-provincial team, had the largest margin of victory in the quarter-finals. She downed Elsie Saunders of Gorge Vale, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Todd, seeking her unprecedented 12th title, sidelined Kay Tribe of Uplands, 5 and 4, while Mrs. Naysmith, another former champion, downed Edna Hicks of Uplands, 4 and 3.

In today's semi-finals, Mrs. Naysmith meets Mrs. Mann and Mrs. Todd faces Miss Shaw.

Seattle Gets $585,000 From Pilots

SEATTLE (CP) — A $585,000 settlement between the city and former owners of the Seattle Pilots' baseball club has been approved by city council.

Mayor Wes Uhlman has asked the council to decide on the proposal from Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., offering the city $505,000 plus equipment valued at $80,000.

Corporation counsel A. L. Newbould said the city had claimed $1,200,000 in federal bankruptcy court against Northwest Sports for rent due on Sicks' Stadium and for the cost of remodelling the facility.

Northwest Sports had paid $100,000 rent for the stadium in 1969 and had agreed to rent the stadium for four more years.

Century Inn is taking a serious run at the lead in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League after getting away to a slow start.

The second-place club made it four victories in a row and got within three points of the top on Wednesday night by defeating league-leading Colwood Inn, 9-3, at Heywood Avenue Park.

Winners broke the game open in the second innings, making the most of three errors and contributing four hits to score five times.

Two runs followed in each of the next two innings to build a 9-0 lead for Mike Cox, who eased up a bit in the last two innings but finished with a three-hitter.

U.S. Team Outbids Lions For Rookie Canadian Star

VANCOUVER (CP) — Running back Dave Corcoran may be one of the best pro football prospects ever to come out of the University of British Columbia, but he doesn't think that means much to his local professional football team, B.C. Lions.

Corcoran, 22, a star for four years with UBC Thunderbirds and third-round Canadian college draft choice by Lions of the western Football Conference, reports July 19 to the training camp of San Francisco 49ers.

He says the decision to head south was strictly a question of $11,000.

Lions offered Corcoran a $6,500 basic salary plus a $1,500 bonus for the season.

A BIT DIFFERENT

The 49ers will give him $500 for showing up at training camp, a $14,000 salary, a $4,500 bonus if he makes the 40-man squad and an automatic $16,000 next year plus bonuses.

If cut from the team he still can play on the taxi squad for $1,000 a month.

The 49ers first became interested in Corcoran three years ago, put him on their negotiating list and waited for him to develop under the eyes of UBC coach Frank Gnup, who after 15 years as Thunderbird coach says Corcoran "is possibly the best pro prospect to come out of here in my time."

NOT INTERESTED?

"I felt I was getting the brushoff as soon as I entered the Lions' office in March," Corcoran said.

"First of all they kept me waiting for about 20 minutes, then I had to talk contract with Ackles (Bobby Ackles, Lions' minor football co-ordinator) because Veitch (general manager Denny Veitch) was out of town.

"Canadians are paid a basic salary because they wear the Canadian label," he said. "That's the difference between the big time and the Canadian Football League. Americans judge you on your talent, not on your nationality.

"It's disheartening for Canadians to watch Americans come up here to training camp driving a Rolls Royce, bought from the bonus they got to sign."

Minor Upset In Doubles At Club Meet

Faith Graham and Ken Scorey, third seeds, advanced to the final of the mixed doubles competition in the Oak Bay Tennis Club tournament by beating second-seeded Heather Graham and Howie Tooby, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, Wednesday.

In men's quarter-final play, Ivor Goodmanson eliminated Glen MacDonald, 8-6, 7-5.

Play continues today and finals in all events will be held Saturday.

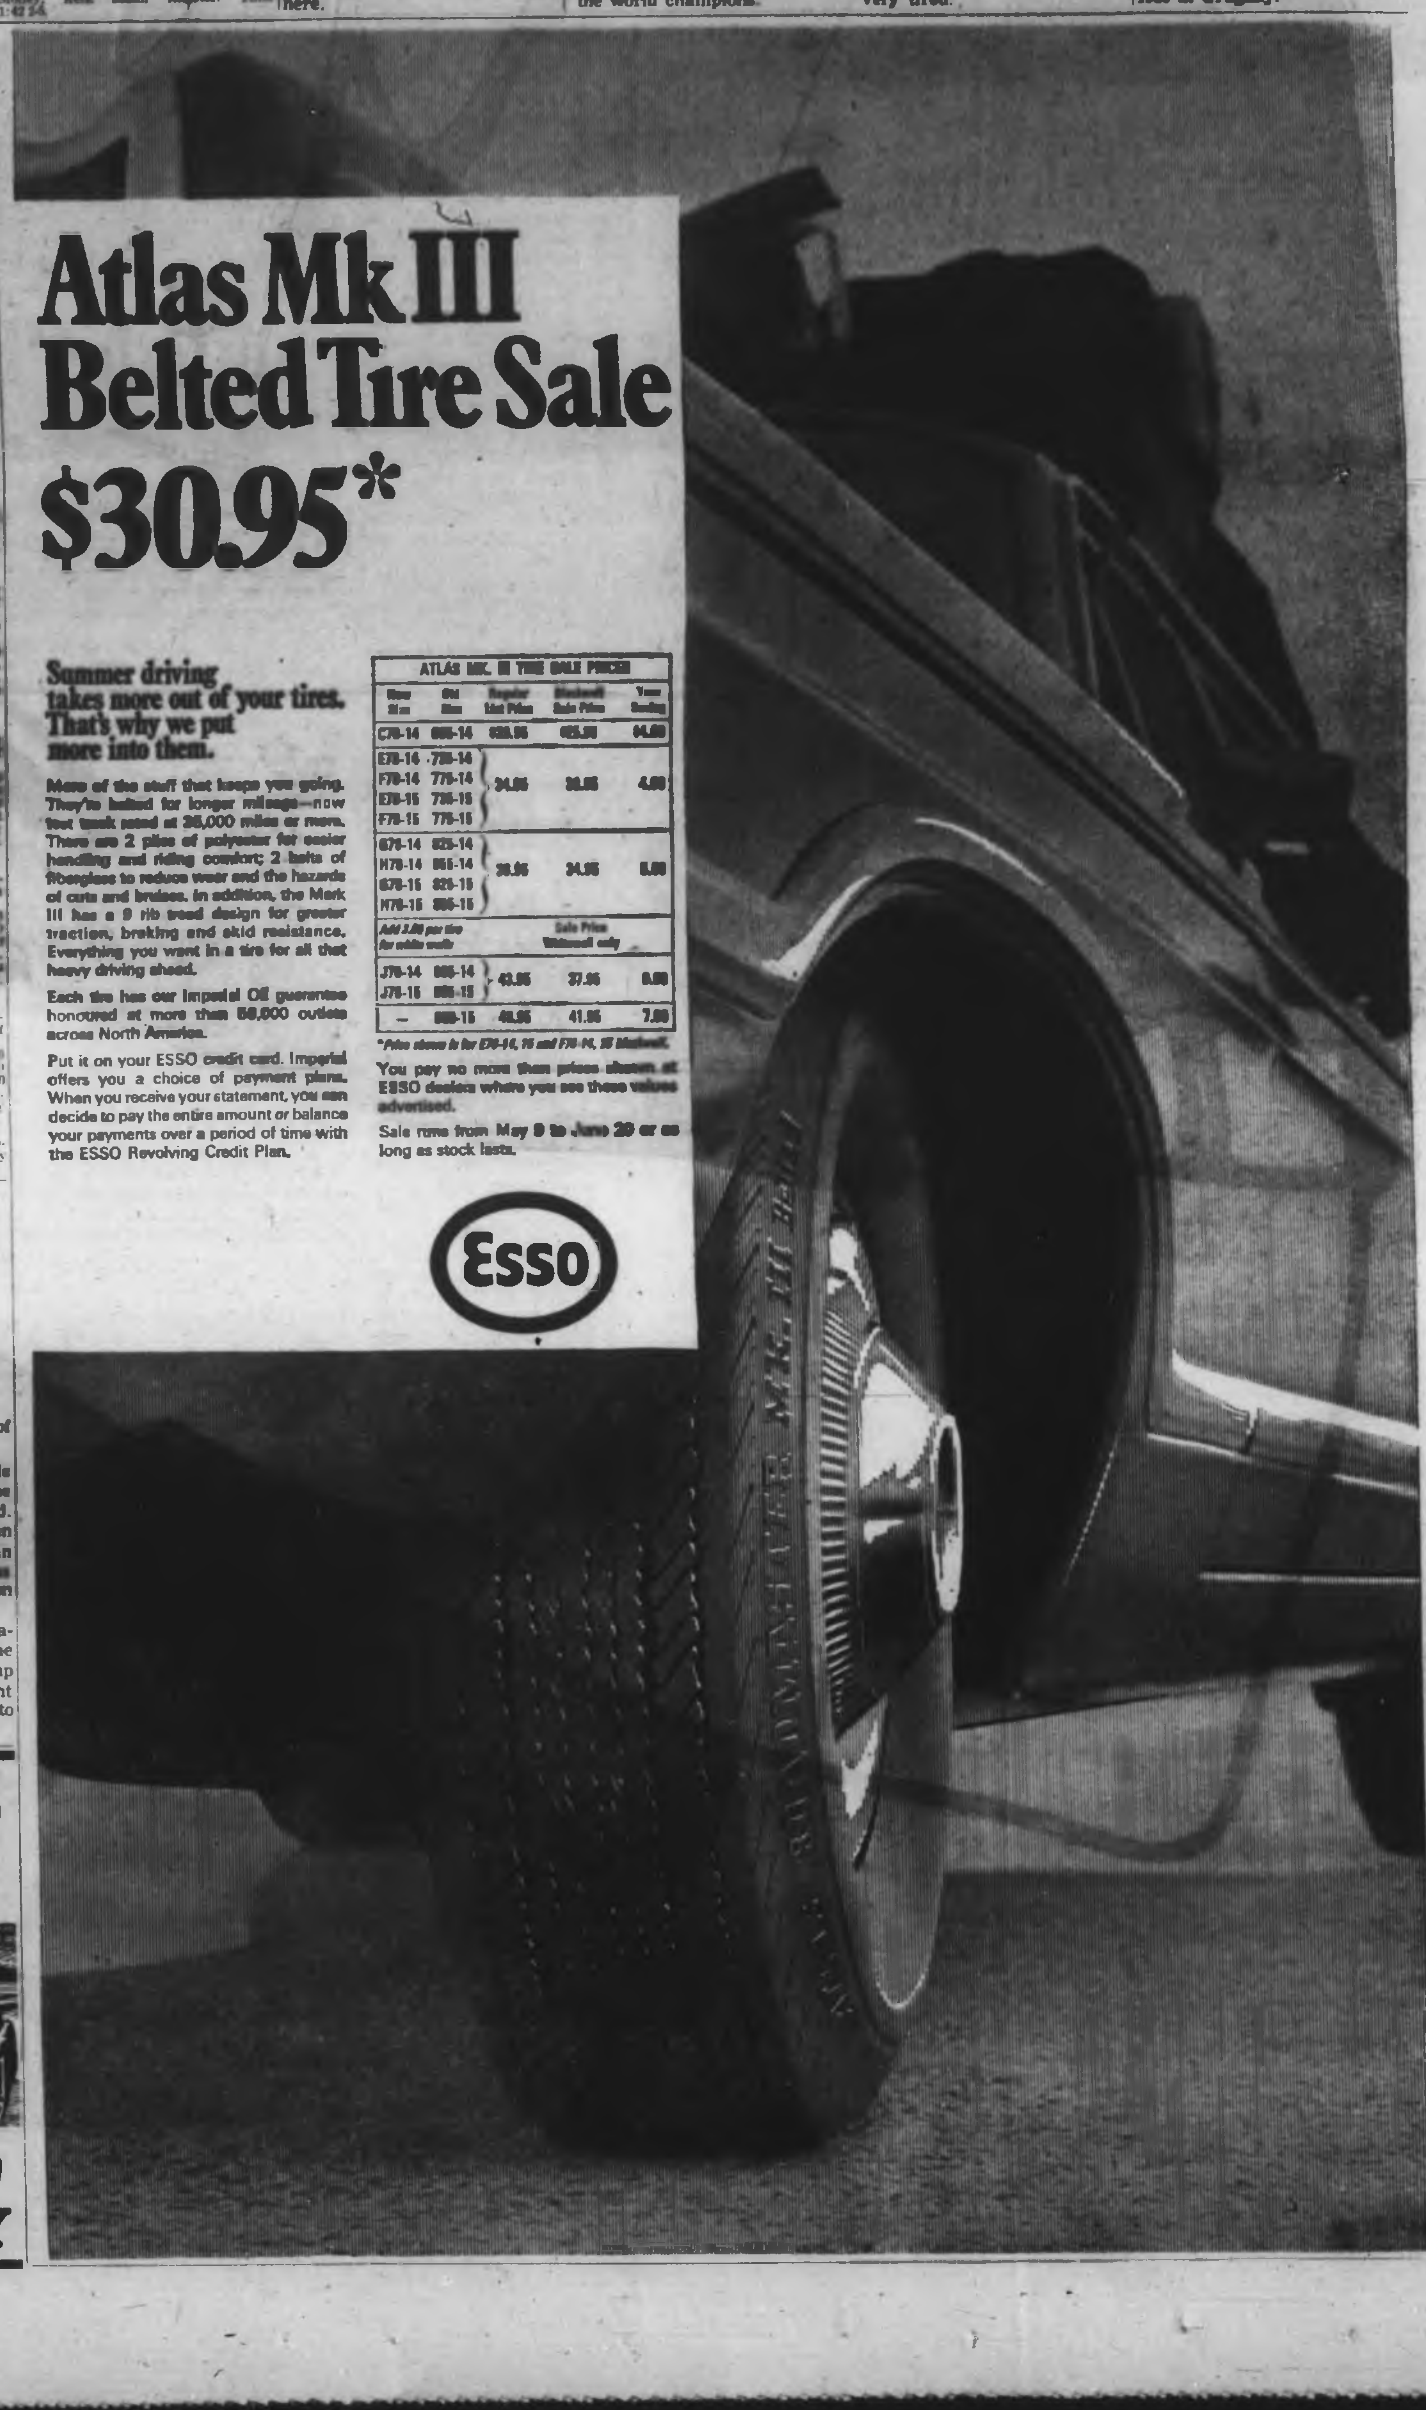

Today's draw:

5:30 p.m.—Martin Taylor vs. Jim Hassard, Ivor Goodmanson vs. Ted Davies, Faith Graham vs. Kay Metcalfe.

Incompetence, Unfairness Charged

North Cowichan Ratepayer Seeks Assessors' Dismissal

NORTH COWICHAN — An angry North Cowichan ratepayer demanded Wednesday at a council meeting that the municipality's two tax assessors should be fired because of incompetence.

He was William Boykowich of South Chemainus Highway, who was assured by Acting Mayor Tom Burge that his complaint about an alleged unfair tax assessment would be studied "very closely" by a special committee.

Boykowich said he was "bitter" about unfairness in land assessment. He claimed that while his 2.07 acres were assessed at $800, 100 acres next to him had been assessed at $3,600 and that the owner had sold it recently for $88,000.

Quoting another case, he said a person living on the same road had his 6.36 acres assessed at $800.

An assessment board of appeal recently dismissed Boykowich's land assessment appeal, saying "There is no over-assessment so far as the land is concerned."

The board also said "the improvements are not assessed beyond actual value nor are they inequitably assessed within School District 67 (Ladysmith)."

The board found that the improvements were of "high quality" and that "the appellant happens to be a talented workman, and he frankly admitted that much of the construction was the result of his own labor."

Boykowich charged that his assessment on improvements was similar to those in the higher class residential area of Quamichan Heights subdivision, which he thought was highly unfair.

In reference to the board of appeal hearing, Boykowich took strong exception to the fact that a lawyer was hired and "my money was spent to fight me in court. If I deal with the truth, then I don't need a lawyer."

"I am prepared to go to jail" he said. He quoted several land assessments in his neighborhood, all of which he claimed were lower. He said, "They are all land speculators. I am not saying anything against farmers because they pay high taxes anyhow, but I am referring to those people who plan to make a lot of money when they sell their land."

He said he was not a land speculator. He gave up a good job at Victoria to move to the rural area at Chemainus so his children could have ponies, grow up in the country and not to become "bums." He works at the Crofton pulp mill.

In other business Burge told council he was "extremely pleased" with the mosquito situation at Crofton, and credit should go to the mosquito control committee, to council for adopting the committee's recommendation and to the mosquito control officer.

He said a Crofton resident told him very recently that he only had seen "two mosquitoes."

"Last year at this time we had a protest meeting, and the plague at Crofton was assuming epidemic proportions. We went through a critical time," he said.

Power Sculpture

Model of bear from single block of wood is sculpted at Woss Lake by Henry Stadlbauer of Courtenay who uses min-power saw for his creative work. Stadlbauer also produced Snoose, a 10-foot high model of a logger which stands outside Glen Duncan's logging museum at Sayward.—(Helen Mitchell).

'We're Being Overtaxed'

Residents Oppose Water, General Tax Increase

COURTENAY — More than 30 persons attending Courtenay city council this week expressed dissatisfaction with the water frontage tax and an increase in general taxes.

Andreas Dahlhelm estimated his taxes had increased 37 per cent. He said taxes on his back road property were $434 last year and $595 this year.

"I feel we're being overtaxed on the back road," Jack Armstrong told the council. He opposed the frontage tax and said he was against the area being brought into the city. It became part of Courtenay in 1967.

"All we've got on the back road is one light, which I could rent from (B.C.) Hydro for 50 cents a month. The road is a goat trail. I voted against coming into the city, and man, did our taxes go up," Armstrong said.

Mayor George Hobson explained that the users own the water system and "it is not budgeted for a profit."

He asked Armstrong what he would like to see council cut back. In answer to the question, "Do you want sewers?" answers both affirmative and negative were heard.

The mayor told the group that the biggest bite in the budget is for education, then welfare, and council has no control over them. "What of the remaining services do you want cut, "police, parks or fire?"

Mrs. M. J. Chaster said taxes on three lots which were $37 last year had risen to $112, $107 and $106 this year. She also calimed she was forced to pay the frontage tax when the water line does not run past her property. She said it comes to the corner of her road and she uses the facility, but not on the three additional lots which do not have houses.

"I think you have a goood case," Ald. Harry Harris told her. Later in the meeting her case was referred to the administrator for investigation and report.

"If we made a mistake, we must rectify it," Hobson said.

Bob Fraser asked council why, if lot values go up because of inflationary trends, they can't go down, "now that some of us are facing a gravel cliff."

He was referring to the area where Ryan Road is in the process of being pushed through to Anderton and CFB Comox. The road construction has left some homes in the area well under the road level.

"Are you going to keep bleeding, bleeding us?" Charles Locke asked. He had asked if the frontage tax was just for one year and was told it would be an annual tax. He then asked if land speculators pay the $50 tax.

Hobson told him they pay, "if the water is at the property. If the land is subdivided, they pay on each lot, but if it is one parcel of land, then the tax is on the whole parcel to a maximum of 100 feet."

Heinz Gutman asked if higher taxes must be paid just because the land around rises in value. Later he admitted he did not consider his taxes too high. He also said, "This regional board could be a monster. Is there any check on where the money is spent?"

He was told that the regional budget is inspected and that Ald. Bill Bell, as the delegate from the city, keeps "an eye" on every development.

Others who spoke gave the impression that residents would sooner pay a higher water rate than the frontage tax. At the time the tax was imposed, the user rate was lowered from $2.50 to $1.

The mayor explained that the frontage tax was more equitable because it applied to all people able to use the water facility.

Nanaimo Shooting Incident

Judge Orders Probation

NANAIMO — A 31-year-old Nanaimo man was put on three years probation after pleading guilty Wednesday in Provincial Court to possession of firearms dangerous to the public peace.

Glen Tannock, 1151 Graham Crescent, was charged after a three-hour shooting spree at his home May 17. The fracas involved 20 RCMP officers and ended when police used tear gas.

Bert Tannock, the man's father, praised police for their restraint and said his son did not know what he was doing at the time.

Tannock had threatened to take his own life, and when police were called they faced a barrage of pistol shots from the house.

Mill Contract Job Causes Work Halt

NANAIMO — About 350 maintenance workers at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac mill booked off sick Wednesday morning following a short meeting called to hear the results of talks with management Tuesday.

The men, members of Local 8 of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, staged a brief work stoppage Tuesday in a dispute over awarding of a contract for work on the mill's No. 4 chemical recovery boiler.

The union is charging that mill maintenance crews would normally be doing the work.

A company spokesman said the work stoppage was illegal. The union executive and some shop stewards met with mill management at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

In a statement released Wednesday, president Stan Shewaga and secretary Bill Bayliss said Local 8 maintenance personnel feared the removal of their jobs "due to the company's insistence on reducing crews by use of planning departments, natural attrition and increased use of outside contractors to do normal mill industrial changes and work."

Mill manager Don Blake said, in a statement, "The wildcat strike by maintenance employees at Harmac is a serious breach of our contract which threatens our continued operation.

"The work in question is modification to a steam boiler which is generally done by contractors according to our past practice at Harmac and at other pulp and paper mills in the province."

He said that no regular maintenance employees of the company would lose work as a result of the contracting out. The union was advised of the decision to contract out that work in January.

He continued: "We have advised the union this afternoon that the wildcat strike is a breach of contract and a violation of the law of the province."

Historical Society Helps Out

Trainees to Clear View At Seymour Narrows

CAMPBELL RIVER — Visitors to the Seymour Narrows Lookout on the Island Highway about 10 miles northwest of Campbell River will soon have an uncluttered view of the Ripple Rock area and northward to Johnstone Straits.

Since the brush was cut from the area about 12 years ago to provide a vantage point for the blasting of the twin peaks of Ripple Rock, the trees have grown until a person could hardly see the swirling waters over their leafy tops.

Many complaints were voiced by both tourists and residents. Campbell River and District Historical Socieety secretary Mrs. Rose McKay contacted Frank Rainsford of Victoria, representative of Merrill and Ring, logging operators who owned the property in question. Rainsford came to Campbell River recently and viewed the area in company with caretaker Bill Jossul and museum trustee Neil Brady-Browne.

Brady-Browne talked with Harry Bacon, correctional officer at Snowden Minimum Security Camp who obtained permission for the Snowden trainees to clear the brush.

The historical society executive met last week and completed plans for a field trip Sunday to Cape Mudge on Quadra Island, to view the mysterious petroglyphs on rocks which are normally below the water mark.

It is planned to make a family picnic of the occasion. Anyone interested should be at the lighthouse at 11:30 a.m. Ferries leave for Quadra Island at 10:15 and 11:15 a.m. After lunch, Edward Meade, authority on petroglyphs, will lead the group to the rocks and explain their origin.

The large glass cases have been received from the Provincial Museum in Victoria on a long-term loan. These will be filled with displays in time for the Summer Festival's Discovery Days on July 2 and 3.

Fireworks

Duncan Law To Stay

DUNCAN — Although Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife is very pleased about the Cowichan Valley regional district board giving first readings to a bylaw regulating the sale and exploding of fireworks and firecrackers, the city will not change its more stringent bylaw.

While the regional district, in its bylaw, will restrict the sale of fireworks and firecrackers to a short period at Halloween, the sale for the same commodities is prohibited in the city throughout the year.

Passing of the new bylaw in the regional district will not affect either the Duncan or the North Cowichan municipality. The latter has a similar fireworks bylaw as is proposed by the regional district.

Quaife said, "The city has a very stringent bylaw. We have been criticized in the past but there are indications from other areas that such a bylaw is required. I fully endorse and support the new Cowichan Valley regional district fireworks bylaw, but we will not ease our bylaw in favor of the regional district bylaw. The provincial government should have introduced this type of regulation years ago."

Group May Adopt Ombudsman Role

COURTENAY — Courtenay District Electors' Association, inactive for about two years, may take up an ombudsman role, retiring president Harry Harris said.

The group formed as a sounding board for public opinion when the regional college for mid-north Vancouver Island was being discussed. The group opposed the inclusion of Courtenay school district in the college scheme. Later residents of the school district voted to opt out of the college plan.

The electors' group was also active when regional districts were first introduced.

The organization might also carry on educational work, it was suggested.

An early project will be a meeting to hear both sides of the forthcoming $3,000,000 hospital money bylaw.

Free Health Tests Could End

ALERT BAY — Some commercial enterprises in the northern Vancouver Island area may lose their free health tests.

It was decided at a recent Upper Island Health Unit meeting at Alert Bay that a service fee should be charged for inspections, including water and sanitation facilities. The board was told that there were hundreds of free tests held annually.

It was stated that approval would have to come from the provincial government, which would also provide a charge schedule. However, it was anticipated that there would be little difficulty in obtaining support as the health branch had acknowledged that the unit was seriously short-handed and required an additional health inspector.

The board was told that Dr. G. A. Gibson, unit secretary, had been told that insufficient funds "prevented appointment of more staff.

Receipts from a moderate charge for a professional service would provide ample funds for one or possibly more staff members to inspect the Island area, board members were informed.

The need for more staff is being felt acutely at present with the introduction of a new water quality testing method in the Comox Valley, Campbell River and Port Hardy areas.

Weekly samplings will be taken at each of the 16 beaches in those districts. A graph study will provide current, accurate information on the cleanliness of local swimming spots.

A motion requiring the provincial government to provide necessary funds to implement the recently recommended Rubella vaccine program was made by Dr. Jack Pickup of Alert Bay. The proposal was approved.

Psychiatrist, Dr. Ken MacKay, reported that inclusion of Powell River into the upper Island area for mental health services had been cancelled.

Park Work To Wait For Talks

LAKE COWICHAN — Further development of Gordon Bay Park will not continue until mid-summer negotiations affecting industry are concluded, Lake Cowichan Chamber of Commerce was told Wednesday.

Bob Ahrens, director of the recreation and conservation department's parks branch, was guest speaker at the final summer meeting of the chamber.

The park, west of Honeymoon Bay, covers 69 acres. "It is just unfortunate that it is not larger," Ahrens said. "Probably camping facilities should not have been developed here in view not only of the size, but of the nearness of residential development.

"The development is intended to meet some of the demand for camping facilities until a larger park can be consolidated elsewhere on the lake," he said. Of the 28 units planned for the park, only 15 are presently developed.

Ahrens said Lake Cowichan has provincial park potential and the department considers it as an attractive feature for public recreation, and one with a recreation drawing power of provincial significance.

"We are hopeful that on the delta of Cottonwood Creek, west of Youbou, a fine multi-recreation provincial park can be consolidated and developed. This would be made up of public land already reserved for park purposes and privately-owned forest land for a total of 630 acres. The park as visualized would have 3,600 feet of beach frontage," he said.

"This park setting at Cottonwood Creek would make possible a development such as those at Shuswap Lake Park, Okanagan Lake Park and others," Ahrens said.

"People must remember there is no such thing as a national park on the West Coast yet, and it will not be until after 1975 that the national park will be proclaimed. At present it is only an agreement between the federal and provincial governments."

Port Alberni Sixth In Incomes

The city's average income was $8,551 with $906 in average total collection of federal income tax, old-age security tax and provincial income tax.

Vancouver was 14th with $6,345 and $863. No other Island areas are listed.

Campbell River Takes Donations

Arena Fund Nears $75,000

So far, $74,904.62 has been collected in cash donations, pledges and payroll deductions toward the arena which is expected to cost $350,000 to build.

Recent donations include: $324.50, Campbell River Roller Skating Club, $100, Coastal Reforestation Contractors and $181.27, Safeway sweepstake.

The sweepstake was won by Mrs. Margaret Sandholm who picked up $171.09 worth of groceries during a three-minute spree. The next sweepstake will be sponsored by Overwaitea. A draw will be held on July 11 and the winner will shop on July 18.

An old-timers' baseball game, with proceeds going to the Arena fund will be held during the annual summer festival between teams of players over 40 from Courtenay and Campbell River. The first game will take place during Courtenay's Dominion Day celebrations and with a return match is scheduled for Lane Field, Campbell River July 5.

The arena fund will be more than $2,000 richer when pledges have been received for the Lions' Club Walkathon which was held on June 7.

More than $4,300 was pledged on 300 hikers who undertook to walk 10 miles. The money will be divided equally between the arena fund and proposed additions to the Lions Club senior citizens' housing development.

More than 260 of the starters finished the walk, more than twice last year's number. Bruce Johnstone was first to finish the 10 miles, in one hour and 10 minutes. First female to finish was Janice Holmstrom.

Other results were first boy under 12, John Chepyha; first girl under 12, Anne Burns; oldest walker, 65-year-old Dick Boiston; largest family participating, Mr. and Mrs. Don Elmore and their three children; most sponsored walker Marvin Clark, with a total of $427 in pledges.

Phosphates Take Drop

COURTENAY — The Comox Valley branch of the society for Pollution and Environmental Control says phosphate-free detergents are gradually appearing on the shelves of local stores.

Mrs. Melda Buchanan, chairman of the detergent committee said, "The recent appearance in our local stores of at least two more no-phosphate detergents shows the anxiety of smaller manufacturers to get with the housewives' interest in pollution from phosphates."

Basic L, since April, is now a "new phosphate-free organic laundry cleaner." Formerly in the low category of about 8 per cent, Basic L now claims no nitrates and less than .1 per cent phosphates, with up to 50 washloads per heavy box, Mrs. Buchanan noted.

French Maid (B.C. produced) has on the shelves a box of laundry detergent advertising "no phosphate pollutants," she said.

The three companies that carry more than 90 per cent of the market are still producing detergents in the 25 to 45 per cent phosphate category, the committee chairman pointed out.

Amway has introduced a heavy-duty laundry detergent with less than 10 per cent phosphate, she said. In a public information campaign Amway suggests using this "where phosphate nutrients are considered to be causing an immediate problem."

PURE SOAP

Interest by consumers is indicated by the news that Victoria has a specialty store to sell only phosphate-free cleaners.

Though this form of pollution blamed on detergents has not been a major problem except in the Great Lakes area and possibly the Okanagan, the Canadian government is writing into the Canada Water Act the gradual elimination of phosphates from cleaners. Present amendments call for a reduction in phosphate content of cleaners and water conditioners to 20 per cent by Aug. 1 and an outright ban by Jan. 1, 1972.

Speed Loses Lead

COURTENAY — The May report of Courtenay RCMP shows that speeding, which has been the leading cause of accidents for some months, has fallen behind dangerous or careless driving as the prime cause.

In April speeding caused 48 accidents, and dangerous driving caused 44. In May speeding caused 55 accidents, and dangerous driving 65.

Speeding as the cause of accidents for this year to date is down by 11 from the same period last year while accidents caused by dangerous driving have doubled.

The amount of property damage and the number of accidents causing property damage both rose over the same period of 1969, and passing when unsafe also showed a similar excessive increase as the cause of accidents.

Cleanup Project Urged

DUNCAN — Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan is said Monday that he was confident that residents, businessmen and various organizations would cooperate in a painting and cleaning campaign "in the spirit of community beautification."

He said: "I urge all residents and businessmen to participate in this worthwhile project which, I hope, will be held in the very near future."

Quaife's recent improvement drive recommendation to city council, asking for full backing, followed his report on housing conditions in the city.

HOUSES CHECKED

He said: "Following a statement by Ald. Allan Kerr in regard to housing conditions, council authorized me to undertake whatever action was necessary to alleviate the situation. The city's administrator, the building inspector and I went on a house-to-house inspection of all houses alleged to be sub-standard.

"After consultation with the building inspector I could see no justification for the demolition and evacuation of families with the exception of three or four dwellings whose owners have been given a time limit in which to bring their properties up to standards.

"One building was condemned and another one has been vacated by the tenants, but the balance of the properties, other than barns, just require a good cleanup and a coat of paint. Our inspection proved that the other houses are structurally sound and that is our first concern."

Contest Sparks Holiday

PARKSVILLE — Nine young Parksville women who are now competing for the title of Miss Parksville will be a feature attraction July 4 at a dance in Parksville community hall.

The new queen will be crowned during a beauty contest at the dance by Marion Robertson, retiring queen.

The weekend celebration includes a parade July 4, a fashion show, baseball games, a sand castle building contest. Pancake breakfasts July 4 and July 5 start the festivities. An open-air religious service will be held July 5 in the community park.

An unusual prize is being offered in a raffle being conducted in conjunction with Parksville Pageant days. This is a 20-cubic-foot deep freeze with an 800 to 900 pound steer to fill it. Gordon Campbell is chairman of the pageant committee, and he reports that events will get underway on July 3 with the start of a baseball tournament that will end July 5 with trophies being awarded at a special ceremony at 8:30 p.m.

Victoria Council

Senior Pay For Review

By HUBERT BEYER

Salaries of Victoria's senior administrative personnel will be reviewed by city council within the next two weeks, and Mayor Courtney Haddock has already predicted a sizable increase.

"It wouldn't be fair to discriminate against one group of employees," Haddock said.

"We've granted raises for our inside and outside workers, so I think we must adjust the salaries of our senior employees as well," he said.

"It may look like a fairly high increase, but they are always on the bottom of the totem pole when it comes to salary reviews.

He said his bid to get backing from the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities at its annual convention in Halifax last week for an immediate wage and price freeze imposed by the federal government had nothing to do with the forthcoming salary adjustment of the city's senior officials.

"We have a capable staff. We were able to reduce the mill rate and the business tax this year, but we must not forget the people who made it possible — the department heads in our administration."

Haddock said his motion to ask the federal government for an effective wage and price freeze (which was not discussed by the convention because it had been submitted too late) was designed to control inflation on a national level.

A possible increase in the salaries of the city's senior staff members, Haddock said, was necessary to maintain a top-flight administration.

Ald. Percy Frampton, the city's finance committee chairman, said it was "only reasonable to assume that they will get a fair raise."

In assessing the amount of the proposed increase, the city had to make an honest attempt to hold the line, Frampton said.

"We can't, on the other hand, expect the city to function as an efficient unit if we don't pay our top men an adequate salary."

He said he couldn't predict the percentage of the proposed raise, but the matter would be discussed by finance committee behind closed doors sometime this week.

"Council will probably act on it within the next two weeks," Frampton said.

Ald. Peter Pollen said he would strongly object to "unreasonable salary adjustments." Job security and fringe benefits enjoyed by city hall employees should be considered by the committee during salary discussions.

"How the devil can we justify the building of a municipal empire with fantastic salaries paid to its employees when the man on the street is glad to have a job and make a buck," Pollen said.

Victorian's Memories

$5,000 Cigarette Inflation Sign

All the talk of inflation in Canada and the United States these days reminds W. A. Scott of China between 1940-47.

Those days, when all Chinese doggedly fought the Japanese, then switched over to bitter civil war between Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tse-tung, were a terrible period for Victoria's lighthouse philosopher, he says.

That's why he dislikes to see Canada's current inflation — insignificant though it is beside Germany's terror after the First World War or China's problems which culminated with Chiang driven to Formosa.

Inflation was much worse in 1940 than anything the North American continent has seen. A tiny bill was the equivalent of our nickle, and would buy a cigarette then.

As the difficult years rolled on, it was not long before the same cigarette cost the 50-cent bill shown here and value of money continued to fall and fall with ever-increasing rapidity.

After six years it took $2,000 to buy a cigarette, and a year latter a staggering $5,000, Scott said.

In 1940, the currency was solidly backed by gold, as it stated in bold print on the English side of the bill. To the end the claim remained, but the gold had crept across the Pacific to the United States. Chiang used it in increasing amounts, first to fight a war, then in an attempt to prop up a corrupt regime, until there were no gold reserves at all.

He can also remember paying for an annuity worth $10,000 U.S. But after inflation had run its course, and Scott returned, he recovered $32. A nice memento for a survivor of a Japanese prisoner-of-war camp.

After showig some currency to The Daily Colonist, Scott dumped another thick roll of currency on the desk. Face value $44,000 — real value, nil.

Inflation Fought By Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon delivered a stern lecture to business and labor Wednesday, urging them to curb price boosts and wage demands. To back it up, he created two commissions and a new "inflation alert" system to spotlight excessive increases.

"The fight against inflation is everybody's business," Nixon said in a United States-wide radio and television broadcast.

"If you act against the national interest, if you contribute to inflation in your price and wage demands, then you are acting against your own best interests and your customer's best interest."

Nixon's words were the strongest of his presidency and appeared to mark another step away from his earlier policy of not seeking to influence industry's prices or labor's wage settlements.

It was the first time he had gone so far as to set up an entirely new mechanism for helping control inflation, which is emerging as a crucial issue of the November congressional elections — in which the Republicans have hopes of capturing control of Congress.

The president's steps received a mixed reaction in congress, and drew praise from some Democrats.

His tone was optimistic. He said the U.S. is succeeding in its tasks of converting from a wartime to a peacetime

Job Insurance Aim: $100 Weekly

● New job insurance plan reflects work instability. Page 15

By IAN PORTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey Wednesday unveiled an unemployment insurance white paper seen in part as a counterweight to government planners interested in putting slack in the economy to cure inflation.

The white paper calls for vastly broadened and increased benefits for the unemployed at a time when the federal government is emphasizing economic restraint, a policy which runs the risk of creating unemployment.

Of government planners committed to the restraint idea, Mackasey said his white paper "will give them something to think about." His comment came in an interview after he tabled the 8,500-word document in the Commons chamber.

Under the new plan the government would have to absorb the entire extra charge on the unemployment insurance fund should the unemployment rate rise above a national, seasonally-adjusted average of 4 per cent of the work force.

For each .1 per cent escalation in the rate, the government would need to pay out an estimated $12,000,000—a sobering consideration, perhaps, for members of the government prepared to accept a relatively high rate of unemployment in the fight against inflation.

The white paper changes also would increase maximum insurance benefits to $100 a week from $53 and reduce eligibility requirments to a minimum of eight employment weeks in a year from 30. Coverage, meanwhile, would be extended to all but self-employed members of the work force, adding 1,160,000 contributors to the fund for a total of 6,500,000.

The new plan would be entirely self-financing at an unemployment rate of less than 4 per cent and the government's liability would be sharply reduced from the $175,000,000 it now contributes to the fund annually.

Where the reforms in effect now, however, they would mean that the 5.6-per-cent national rate of unemployment in April would cost the

Vancouver Island's turn in the rotating mail strike came Wednesday — along with other communities across Western Canada — and strike leaders in Victoria and Vancouver were so pleased with the results they said they feel there may be no need for an overall national strike.

Union officials said mail service would return to normal today.

Jim McCall of Vancouver, strike director for the Council of Postal Unions in the coastal region, said:

"The rotation strike method (separate cities or sections of the country on a 24-hour basis) has been so effective there just may be no need for one nationwide strike."

Kidnappers Covered By Clan-Type Hoods

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — West German Ambassador Ehrenfried von Holleben said Wednesday night he was abducted by persons wearing Ku Klux Klan-type hoods, and was chloroformed and stuffed into a wooden box while being driven to the kidnappers' hideaway.

Speaking at a news conference at his residence, the 61-year old career diplomat said, "I never saw my kidnappers because they were always masked.

"They looked like the masks of the Ku Klux Klan so you could not see anything."

The ambassador was kidnapped from his car last Thursday by a group of leftists as he was driving home from the embassy. The kidnappers shot and killed a federal police officer assigned to guard him and wounded another policeman.

Von Holleben was released Tuesday night after the Brazilian government freed 40 political prisoners and flew them to Algeria.

Asked if his kidnappers explained why they chose to abduct him, the ambassador said, "They informed me that they had chosen me because I was the ambassador of a country which did a lot in Brazil and therefore the Brazilian government would be entrusted not to harm the friendly relations between our two countries."

Meanwhile, a nationwide search was started Wednesday for the kidnappers. Airports, bus depots and rail stations were watched and roadblocks set up on access roads to both Rio and Sao Paulo.

Another upshot of the kidnapping was that it has thrown a major scare into an already-frightened diplomatic corps in Brazil. As one diplomat said Wednesday, "We're afraid it can be all repeated again at any moment."

SNIPER FIRE RIPS MIAMI

MIAMI (UPI) — Snipers, looters and firebombers stalked the city's northwest section Wednesday night in Miami's third straight night of racial violence.

City officials clamped a curfew on nearly half of the city Wednesday but police were unable to stop the sporadic, widely scattered incidents.

A sniper who had pinned down two patrolmen was shot and taken to Jacksonville Memorial Hospital. His condition was unknown.

A woman was shot in the arm as she watched a fire at a convenience store. It was not known who fired the shot.

Jacksonville Memorial Hospital said it had admitted 22 persons with injuries, seven of them with gunshot wounds. City and county police reported more than 60 arrests, mainly for curfew violations and looting.

Heavily-traveled U.S. 1, about six miles south of the main trouble area, was closed because of youths throwing missiles at passing motorists.

"Curfew areas are not completely evacuated," said a police spokesman. "There still are a few people milling around and a few small gangs here and there.

"There's been a few incidents of sniper fire here and there," he said. At least a half-dozen police units were pinned down by snipers during the night.

At the height of the disturbance early Wednesday, Miami City Manager Melvin Reese declared "a state of emergency" and ordered an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew over most of the northwest section of the city and in the Coconut Grove area southwest of downtown.

The limits of the curfew were reduced slightly during the day by Reese and supplemented by another curfew order from Wilson Purdy, county public safety director and sheriff.

The orders prohibited the sale or display of weapons, alcoholic drinks and the sale of inflammables such as gasoline except into the tank of motor vehicles.

U.K. Vote Changes From Shoo-In To Cliffhanger

LONDON (UPI)—British party leaders Wednesday threw everything into a final battle for votes amid growing Conservative confidence that warnings of impending economic crisis and devaluation may at last be striking home.

Britons vote today in a parliamentary general election to decide whether Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor party or Edward Heath's Conservatives will govern for the next five years.

But party strategists could not explain why some gave him more than a 12 per cent lead and others only 2 per cent. The confusion was increased by a series of local polls that indicated the Conservatives may be catching up or even may have overtaken Labor's lead in some key voting districts.

Heath at his final campaign news conference acted more relaxed and confident than he has for days. His campaign manager, Anthony Barber, said his own reports from 50 key areas he has visited indicated the Conservatives still could win.

Home Secretary James Callaghan said, however, "I have every confidence Harold Wilson will continue to be prime minister of this country."

But British commentators said the economic crisis issue may well have turned an apparent shoo-in victory for Wilson into a cliffhanger.

Postal Powwow Still Deadlocked

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators reported no progress Wednesday as the federal treasury board and the Council of Postal Unions attempted to break their deadlock in contract negotiations.

The parties spent the morning discussing differences over statutory holidays, and were also reported to have probed other issues.

Mercury Pollution Ruins Whale Meat

YELLOWKNIFE (CP) — Thousands of cans of whale meat will have to be destroyed at the Northwest Territories community of Rankin Inlet because of mercury content nearly twice the level accepted by the federal government for human consumption.

The territorial government was told the cans must be destroyed because the meat contained .99 parts per million of mercury.

Acceptable level for the federal health department is between .05 and .5 parts per million.

Canadian Vessel to Probe Loss to West Coast Boats

Companion-Fishing Will Check Soviet Catch

By JOHN BEST

OTTAWA (CP) — The fisheries department is preparing a companion for the Russian fishing fleet when it makes its annual appearance off the western shore of Vancouver Island this summer.

A fisheries research board vessel, the G. B. Reid, is being fitted out to fish alongside the Russians and obtain first-hand information on the size and content of the Soviet haul.

The object, officials say, is to secure information rather than to plan action against the Russians, who operate outside the 12-mile Canadian territorial limit now being enacted by Parliament.

As far as possible, equipment identical to that used by Soviet trawlers will be employed, though trawl nets from the G. B. Reid will be lowered over the side rather than over the stern.

There has been increasing concern on the West Coast

about operations of the Soviet fleet which moves into offshore fishing banks each year for several months.

Though the Russians have been thought to be primarily interested in ocean perch and halibut, British Columbia fishermen suspect they are also taking sizable quantities of free-swimming salmon, thereby possibly depleting stock available to inshore fishermen.

There also is an underlying anxiety that whatever the Russians are taking, the great size of their catch may be upsetting the natural balance among salmon, perch, halibut and other species such as herring.

Canadian authorities have no way of knowing the exact mix of fish the Russians are catching. In the past, when observation planes have flown over the Soviet fleet, tarpaulins have been drawn over the catch.

Public opinion on the coast can be gauged by the fact that 33,000 Vancouver Islanders signed a petition earlier this year calling for Canadian fisheries control to the limits of the continental shelf.

The petition was presented to Liberal MP David Anderson (Esquimalt—Saanich), who in turn presented it to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Trudeau visited the island's west coast with Anderson last weekend and talked to some of the people who fear their livelihood may be jeopardized by the activities of the Soviet fleet.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis has rejected the suggestion that Canada should unilaterally appropriate the area of the continental shelf, which goes out 100 miles and more from land, for exclusive exploitation by Canadian fishermen.

However, he believes that the coastal state should have primary responsibility for management and conservation of fish resources out over the shelf. Canada may move at the next law-of-the-sea conference to have this concept accepted in international practice.

After Victoria, Campbell Meet

Fire, Police Forces No Nearer to Unity

By HUBERT BEYER

Victoria's bid to bring about unification of fire and police forces in the four core municipalities seems to have failed, Victoria Ald. Harold Olafson said Wednesday.

He told the Colonist that a meeting earlier in the day between city officials and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell had produced no results.

"I think, for the time being, we can forget about unification of Greater Victoria's police and fire services. We got a very good reception and the minister listened to our case, but I doubt that the matter will go any further at this time," Olafson said.

The attempt to bring police and fire services of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt under regional control began three weeks ago when Victoria city council approved a motion calling for the minister's "advice and assistance" in the amalgamation drive.

Olafson, who introduced the motion at the time, said Wednesday he didn't think the minister was against the idea as such.

"I believe he's very sincere and co-operative, but for some reason or other, nothing will be done about the matter right now," he said.

In spite of apparent temporary setbacks, Olafson said, he would continue to press for amalgamation of fire and police services.

"They are obvious fields for co-operation between the municipalities. Maybe some day, we will have one police and one fire department for Greater Victoria."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, who also attended the meeting, was a little more optimistic.

"I think we accomplished as much as we could hope to accomplish at an initial meeting. Mr. Campbell listened to us, and I'm sure he will at least think about it," he said.

"We have to give him time. These things aren't accomplished overnight."

"There was every reason to believe that eventually police and fire services will come under regional control," Ramsay said.

Campbell said he didn't want to make any comment at this time.

"I will write a letter to all four municipalities and inform them of the contents of today's discussion, but it wouldn't be fair if I told the press before I let the municipalities know," he said.

Mayor Courtney Haddock said he wasn't sure if Campbell would be of immediate assistance in bringing about the unification of services.

"I was very pleased with the meeting, and who knows — something may eventually be accomplished," the mayor said.

"I don't believe that amalgamation of our police and fire departments would save money as far as operating costs are concerned, but the taxpayers would get better service for their money."

Unification, Haddock said, would eliminate duplication and result in better utilization of equipment.

★ ★ ★ ★

"From that point of view it would be a desirable thing. On the other hand, I think it's only fair to say that the various police and fire departments are doing a fine job now."

Delegates' Surprise Visit Heightens Harbor Hopes

A delegation of transport department officials from Ottawa paid a quick visit to Victoria Wednesday in connection with the city's bid for a harbor commission.

Deputy Transport Minister A. H. Brown and head maritime transportation administrator Pierre Camu spent several hours with Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock discussing the pros and cons of the proposed harbor commission.

The mayor said in an interview the meeting had been "very informative and encouraging." Both the deputy minister and Camu had, once again, told him that Victoria's chances of getting control over its harbor facilities were excellent.

"The only difficulty we could possibly foresee was to get Canadian National Railways to give up its jurisdiction of Ogden Point," Haddock said.

"They have control over the dock facilities now and they have invested some money in the operation recently. I think that the CNR may be the biggest obstacle in the city's way towards control over the harbor."

From unofficial sources, the mayor said, he had heard that the CNR might not oppose the idea of giving up Ogden Point, but he would have to check that.

He said the question of who would hold the land leases for the waterfront properties, currently controlled by the federal government, had also been resolved.

"The deputy minister assured us that the city would get permission to hold the head (main) leases on those properties."

Last week, Camu stated that Victoria's chances of getting control over its harbor were "very good indeed." He said the matter would have to wait until a major study of Canadian harbor administration was released. This would probably be within the next two months, he said..

Meanwhile, a feasibility study prepared by Harold Elworthy and a special committee has been awaiting final approval by Victoria and Esquimalt councils for more than two months.

The report, which strongly recommended the formation of a Greater Victoria Harbor Commission, will be sent to Ottawa as soon as the two councils have approved it.

Haddock said, "This will be done very soon, and something will happen within a few weeks now."

Among the recommendations contained in the study were an immediate facelift for Ogden Point docks, further development of all harbor facilities and promotion of increased commodity shipments through the proposed commission's facilities.

Story of a Fugitive: It's Been a Nightmare

By BRUCE LOWTHER

On July 21, 1967, Anthony Garfield Brown escaped from the William Head minimum security prison near Victoria. Wednesday, he was sentenced to six months in jail for staging that escape.

In between, he was cleared of three charges in California, including one of murder.

His story — which he described in Victoria Provincial Court as "a nightmare" — was pieced together Wednesday from reports from Colwood RCMP, Victoria police, Los Angeles police and The Los Angeles Times.

Brown, 30, first appeared Tuesday in the Victoria court, where a two-count charge was read — escaping custody July 21, 1967, from William Head and being unlawfully at large within Canada after that date. The case was adjourned for one day.

Wednesday, Brown elected trial before Judge William Ostler and pleaded guilty to both counts. Police told court that after his escape Brown obtained transportation from a private citizen "to downtown Esquimalt," then took a taxi to Swartz Bay.

Police also said that Brown was arrested in San Diego, Calif., soon after. He had been "only free approximately 10 days" since his escape, they said. He was returned to Canada from the U.S. about nine weeks ago and is presently completing his sentence in the B.C. penitentiary.

Prosecutor John Macintyre said that Brown was sentenced Aug. 2, 1966, in Winnipeg to a total of three years in prison on five counts. He also said that Brown had received prison terms in 1961 and 1963 for various offences.

The record read by the prosecutor for Brown included such offences as breaking and entering and theft, possession of stolen goods, car theft and forgery.

"I can't understand the mentality of escaping when you were in an open institution like William Head," the judge said. "You certainly brought a lot down on your head by escaping."

"Yes, it's been a nightmare," Brown replied.

The judge, taking note of the fact that Brown had imposed punishment on himself, gave him a total of six months in jail for escaping and for being unlawfully at large.

What about the time between the escape and the sentence?

Colwood RCMP said their information was that Brown was arrested Aug. 10, 1967, in San Diego on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. He was ordered Oct. 9, 1967, deported to Canada from the U.S. at San Diego but, at about that time, he was charged in San Diego in connection with the theft of one or more cars.

The Colwood police said that Brown was eventually cleared of both San Diego charges.

But on Oct. 30, 1968, he was removed from the San Diego jail to be charged in Los Angeles with murder.

A spokesman for Los Angeles police and a reporter at The Los Angeles Times said that the case involved the death of Mrs. Inga Danielson Wester, 45, a Hollywood surgical nurse and divorcee who was reported missing March 21, 1968.

Two days later, her car was found in Santa Ana, 30 miles south of Los Angeles. Brown was sleeping in it but was not arrested at that time.

On Oct. 13, 1968, Mrs. Wester's badly-decomposed body was found by hikers in foothills near the Los Angeles suburb of Chatsworth. The body had three bullet wounds but only one bullet was recovered.

Last March 13, a Los Angeles Superior Court jury that deliberated for two and one-half days acquitted Brown of the murder charge. He had testified during his trial that he was driving Mrs. Wester's car with her permission and had denied any knowledge of how she was killed.

Colwood RCMP said that Brown is due to be released from the penitentiary at New Westminster July 20, 1971, after completing the three-year term received in 1966. Six months was added to that Wednesday, making his probable freedom date Jan. 20, 1972.

'Mackasey Mosaic' Viewed

Some Answers, Some Questions

The federal government's proposed new unemployment insurance scheme should be dubbed the Mackasey mosaic, says Victoria Labor Council secretary-treasurer Larry Ryan.

He said he hopes it will provide a basis for further reassessment of social and economic needs in Canada.

Ryan noted the white paper tabled in the House Wednesday continues the old policy of not giving benefits to workers involved in labor disputes.

"Whether it can be criticized on that count I'm not prepared to say," said Ryan.

The incentive clauses, under which employers with below average lay-offs pay lower premiums, Ryan said, were interesting and imaginative inventions to try to stabilize employment.

"This is an arbitrary bench mark. Four-per-cent unemployment in industrially advanced countries is an untenable figure," said Ryan.

He also felt there would be difficulty in the differences between the amount to be received by those on unemployment insurance and those on welfare.

Any meaningful reform would have to take into account conditions beyond the periphery of the insurance, said Ryan.

"In labor we don't subscribe to marginality," said Ryan. "The marginal groups —those on welfare, the fishermen, and other small groups — can't be ignored. It's to be hoped the Mackasey mosaic comes up with some answers for them."

Four Area Yachts Among 23 Starters

Preparations Half the Battle on This Sailing Course

By JIM BRAHAN

It takes a tremendous amount of sailing and lots of luck for a 36-foot sloop to win the 2,310-mile Victoria-Maui International yacht race, says veteran skipper Wally Meakes.

"But it can be done," Meakes said Wednesday night, and recalled the 1968 classic when the 35-foot sloop Jeunesse of Seattle missed out on winning the race by 20 minutes after the handicaps were tallied.

"In a race like this it doesn't necessarily mean the biggest boat is going to win," he said and explained that a boat's rating based on so many seconds per mile makes it an even race.

The third biennial Victoria to Maui classic will start at 3 p.m. July 1 off Brotchie Ledge and finish at Lahaina on the Island of Maui in the Hawaiian chain.

Twenty-three yachts will be in this year's race, of which 11 are Canadian, including four from Victoria. The remainder are from the U.S.

Entries from this area are: Gabriel II, owned by Ralph Higgins; Potlatch, Wally Meakes; Oriole, Canadian Forces; Cubara, owned by Don Lawson.

The race is organized by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Meakes

"There is a tremendous amount of preparation for such a long race, and the preparations are every bit as important as the race."

He added the participants would start arriving at Victoria's Inner Harbor about June 28 to make last-minute preparations.

"It took us 21 days last time and we hope to shave a couple of days off our time in this race," said Meakes as he talked about his 36-foot sloop Potlatch and its six-member crew.

"Every skipper has his own ideas about how to win the race and when you have boats strung out with about 500 miles between them, nobody can see what the other boats are doing," he said.

"It's heavy drill all the way, and it's also mighty hard to outguess the weatherman in a race of this distance," Meakes added.

He agreed that storing for the race was of prime importance.

"We work on a five-day menu and slightly in excess of 15 gallons of fresh water per man. We also use salt water for non-drinking purposes whenever possible.

"Last time we had prepared an adequate, varied diet and we fared fine," he said.

He described the race as being a tremendous experience.

The first Victoria-Maui race was a trial run in 1965 when three boats took part. In 1968 there were 14 yachts competing for various trophies.

Wallace leaves Oak Bay

Retiring Principal Applauded, Lauded

Retiring as principal of Oak Bay senior high this year, Wallace says the greatest kick he's had over the years — he's been at Oak Bay since 1937 — is "hearing of students doing well later on. That's always a thrill."

Born at William Head in 1909, Wallace moved to Victoria at age seven. He graduated from Victoria high in 1926, and from Victoria normal school in 1928.

After five years of teaching in various places around British Columbia, he went back to school and received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of British Columbia in 1936.

The brother of deputy provincial secretary Lawrie Wallace and University of Victoria vice-president Robert Wallace, Jack taught for a year in Trail, B.C. before joining Oak Bay staff as a mathematics and science teacher.

His role grew along with the school. In 1937, Wallace was one of 14 teachers in a 300-student school. He became vice-principal in 1953, and principal 10 years later. He retires as the administrative head of a 52-teacher, 1,150-student high school.

Wallace's vice-principal, Don Oliver — who calls Wallace a "modest man" — can fill in a little of the man behind the statistics.

And, Oliver says, he's received replies from graduates from the 1930s through to today who say they'll be at the Jack Wallace appreciation night at 8 p.m. Friday at the school

The principal — who's been at home ill since Easter — says he'll be there, too.

Two-Family Clash

Divebombers Active On Bank Street

A Bank Street family and a crow family aren't getting along too well.

But neither the police nor the SPCA, both called to help settle the neighborhood spat, has been able to offer a solution.

One of the Bank Streeters explained that a mother and father crow are raising a newly-hatched brood in a tree on the Bank Streeters' property.

"We're being divebombed by the parent crows," he said. "It's been going on for about 10 days."

The "divebombers" were reported to Victoria police, who referred the complaint to the SPCA, who referred it back to Victoria police.

Then SPCA Insp. Oscar Vennberg visited the scene of the dispute. The nest was too high, he said. Nothing could be done. Maybe the police would destroy the nest and crows before another batch of eggs could be laid next spring.

'This Union Will Not Be Put Out of Business' ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Labor Rallies Quickly to Guild's Aid

By DON COLLINS

The B.C. Federation of Labor is moving quickly to prevent what it sees as the possible destruction of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Following an emergency meeting of the federation's executive council Wednesday, secretary Ray Haynes told the Colonist: "We are determined this union will not be put of of business."

The concern is court action taken against the guild as the result of the crippling towboat strike that ended last Saturday. In one case the union's assets were ordered seized. It has also been fined a total of $75,000 for contempt of court and other actions are pending.

Haynes said the federation, guild and legal counsel of both were to meet today "to try and see if there is some way we can assist the union."

The federation said it would not assess members to make up the cost of the fines.

The federation is also calling a meeting in Vancouver next week, probably Tuesday, of representatives of all affiliated unions to deal with the same subject.

"A union of 2,200 just cannot stand fines of the size that have been levied against it," Haynes said. The strike, which idled 20,000 forest workers, began May 3 and involved 1,150 towboat officers.

Safety, manning and accommodation were the main features in settlement.

In other developments Wednesday, the International Woodworkers of America and Forest Industrial Relations finally came together at the bargaining table.

And a second of five unions — the heat and frost insulators — walked out on round-the-clock negotiations aimed at ending the province-wide construction lockout that began April 14.

The plumbers withdrew from the talks Tuesday during their second day. The reason in both cases was objection to a proposal that all union agreements be signed simultaneously.

The forest talks, which involve 30,000 men in the Coast region, started when the IWA and FIR agreed to extend the term of government mediator Clive McKee another 10 days to June 28.

No strike or lockout can be called while the mediator is engaged in talks. However, the IWA is conducting a strike vote in the meantime.

In a statement, FIR president John Billings said the employers were no longer objecting to inclusion in the meetings of outside labor observers from the federation of labor and the international pulp-sulphite union "if such observers can be of help at this late date in discussions."

But he added that FIR was urging that "no further strike notices be issued by the union as these are damaging to discussions."

The IWA was reported to have issued strike notices against two operations in the province.

An original attempt at talks failed in March when FIR refused to negotiate while labor "observers" from outside the IWA were present.

Some union officials saw a decision earlier in the day by the pulp and paper industry to allow outside labor observers to sit in on talks as the reason for FIR's change of mind.

The pulp firms have begun talks with two unions — pulp-sulphite and the united papermakers.

Court Parade

Hearing, Trial Start

The hearing for Larry Alan Preston of 1472 Fort involves a charge of breaking and entering and theft April 11 at the Jubilee Pharmacy at 1775 Fort, while the trial involves a charge of false pretences in obtaining a motor vehicle April 10 from a Victoria firm by means of a worthless cheque.

Preston was originally charged jointly with another man in the case of breaking and entering and theft. But Judge William Ostler withdrew the charge against the other man Wednesday on application of prosecutor John MacIntyre, and the other man became the first witness in the hearing.

Indications were that both the hearing and the trial might be concluded in court sessions this morning and afternoon.

Clinton Roy Montgomery, 21, of 211 Helmcken, was fined $35 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of discharging a firearm unlawfully June 5 in the Colwood area.

Court was told that a man living at 201 Helmcken was making supper in his kitchen when a bullet broke his window. The bullet came from 211 Helmcken, where Montgomery was in his yard shooting bottles off fence posts, and it did not have enough velocity to injure the mealmaker.

It was also stated that Montgomery was shooting a .22 calibre rifle. The district was a no-shooting area and Montgomery had no permit.

In Sooke Provincial Court, a 20-year-old Ontario resident was committed to a higher court for trial on a charge of criminal negligence causing death. Committal of James Thomas Bright by Judge Eugene Murphy followed a preliminary hearing held in the Victoria Law Courts building and bail was set at $500.

Victoria's Ministrike

Oldest Dispute In 19th Month

One of the casualties of B.C.'s hectic labor scene is a strike that is both the oldest and smallest in the province.

While newer problems of major proportions vie for public attention, Victoria's nearly-19-month-old "ministrike" continues unnoticed, forgotten by pretty well everyone but those directly involved.

And they don't constitute much of a crowd in comparison to the 30,000 men concerned in forest industry negotiations, or the 20,000 idled until recently by the towboat strike.

The strike, involving the Teamsters Union effort for an initial contract following certification, began Nov. 27, 1968.

"And they talk about settlements taking long to reach in connection with all those other labor problems right now," teamster representative Jim Scott said Wednesday. "You just have to think of our little strike. How's 19 months when it comes to waiting for settlement?"

The union feels its one hope now lies in negotiations soon to begin with Mortifee Munshaw Photos in Vancouver.

The contract there expires in November and the union is going to fight for one new contract covering employees there and at Hy-Fidelity in Victoria, which it claims is one and the same company.

An attempt by Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan to tackle the problem from a different angle has not been successful.

Ryan asked for an investigation in April when he discovered that A. W. S. Mortifee, who heads Mortifee Munshaw, was a vice-chairman of the B.C. Human Rights Council.

He wrote to Dr. Joseph Katz, chairman of the human rights council, and said the Victoria Labor Council was withdrawing its support of the organization.

The matter was turned over to the human rights body's legal committee and Ryan was informed by letter from Katz this week the executive had no equipment to conduct an investigation. The letter suggested the labor council refer the matter to the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

"This decision to let observers in is a tremendous victory for labor in this province," one IWA spokesman said.

The construction dispute hit another snag during the day when the lathers union filed action against the carpenters union and the carpenters' provincial council to block them from signing an agreement with the Construction Labor Relations Association.

The carpenters, operating engineers and laborers are still bargaining on a 24-hour-a-day basis at the University of B.C. with CLRA.

The lathers claim any agreement by the carpenters would violate a 1903 pact which prohibited the carpenters from asserting jurisdiction over ironwork or lathing claimed by the lathers.

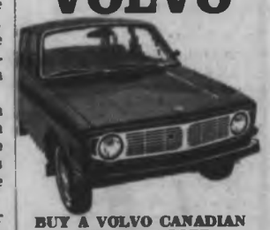

In Vancouver, brewery workers said beer truck drivers would not cross picket lines at hotels involved in strikes and lockouts on the Lower Mainland.

The dispute, mainly over wages, involves 21 hotels in Vancouver and 37 in the Fraser Valley from eastern Vancouver to Hope.

More than 300 maintenance men at MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac pulp division booked off sick Wednesday in a dispute involving use of an outside contractor for some work. The 1,000-man plant remained open.
